For MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

BERMUDA'S LEGISLATIVE TERCENTENARY.

HARRY E. HUBER.

The Bermudas were discovered early in the 16th century (before 1511), by Juan de Bermudez, but the Spaniards made no settlement, and when Sir George Somers' ship, the Sea Venture, en route to Virginia, was shipwrecked upon one of the reefs of the islands, in 1609, they were still uninhabited. Sir George Somers died there the following year, and his companions named the group after him—The Somers Islands. Favorable reports of the group caused the Virginia Company to ask for an extension of their charter to include these islands, and this was granted them by King James I. Shortly after, the group was sold, for £2000, to certain members of the Virginia Company, who incorporated as "The Governor and Company of the City of London for the Plantation of the Somers Islands."

In 1684 the Company dissolved, and their charter was abolished, and the islands passed into the hands of the Crown. Under the Company's constitution, provision was made for a reasonable amount of self-government by the settlers including the right to elect representatives to make laws within certain limitations,—and the first general assembly was held at St. George's, on the 1st August, 1620. Under the Crown, the commission to the first Royal Governor confirmed this grant of representative institutions, which have continued to the present day. Next to the House of Commons, the House of Assembly of Bermuda is the oldest legislative body of its kind in the British Empire, for representative government was introduced one year only after the Assembly of Virginia, which was the first to be introduced in British Colonies.

The laws of the Colony are now enacted by a Legislature consisting of the Governor, the Legislative Council, and the House of Assembly. The Governor is assisted by an Executive Council consisting of four official, and three unofficial members. The Legislative Council consists of 9 members, three official, and six unofficial,—while the House of Assembly has 36 members, each of the nine parishes electing four members.

In 1909 the tercentenary of the founding of the Colony was celebrated, and in August of this year the tercentenary of the first general assembly. In connection with the proposed celebrations and the visit of the Prince of Wales in October, the Governor (Sir James Willocks) in Executive Council, decided last March to have special stamps issued in honor of the occasion. The Crown Agents were asked to secure an appropriate design, and at the same time the Colonial Secretary advertised in the Official Gazette for suggestions for designs of the proposed stamps.

"The Local Government has under consideration the issue of special postage stamps in two values, 1d and 2½d, to commemorate the Tercentenary of the Establishment of Parliamentary Institutions in Bermuda which is to be celebrated in August next.

"Suggestions are invited for an appropriate design for the proposed stamps. Suggestions may be either accompanied by a rough sketch or design, or may merely indicate in general terms the form which it is proposed that the design should take. What is required is not a design, but a suggestion which can be worked up to a design.

"As the time available for the preparation of the stamps is short, it is particularly requested that any suggestions forwarded may reach the Colonial Secretary on or before Saturday, the 13th inst. (March)."

One sketch only was received in answer to this advertisement, and that was not favorably acted upon; but De La Rue submitted, through the Crown Agents a design showing two ovals the one at the left containing the head of King George, and that at the right, the "Sea Venture",—and above these respective ovals, the dates 1620 and 1920. Across the top of the stamp, in one line was "Bermuda Commemorative Stamp" while at the bottom, in two lines of small uncolored caps, appeared "Tercentenary of Establishment of Representative Institutions." Between the ovals at the top was a crown and in the space below, the denomination expressed in figures. This design was approved by the Governor and his Council, and Rue for a supply of 1d and 2½d stamps in this design.

At the meeting of the House on June 8th it was decided to recommend to the Governor that a special series of stamps be issued for the occasion in 9 values, ¼d to 1s—unaware that the Governor had already acted.

When the House was informed by the Governor of his previous action in the matter of stamps, and they were sent the design to which De La Rue were working, the House would not approve. They did not consider the design sufficiently suggestive or in keeping with the event to be celebrated. The ovals, they claimed, should be transposed to bring the "Sea Venture" under 1620, and King George under 1920,—even though this was giving the honor position to the former. The design was returned to the Governor on June 23rd, and before the House adjourned a Select Committee was appointed to secure an appropriate design.

The following Monday, June 28th, the House met again, and the Committee reported with a design which had been prepared locally by Mr. J. H. Dale. This being of "great artistic beauty", it was accepted with but minor modifications. In the upper left corner in a square is a miniature of the "Sea Venture", and in the corner opposite, the modern coat of arms. In the center in an oval is a full face portrait of the King; on either side of the oval are figures of value, and under these, at the left, is the date 1620, and the Sword of State of that period, while at the right is the date 1920, and the Speaker's gavel of today. "Tercentenary of Establishment of Representative Institutions" appears around the central oval.

Member Am. Stamp Dealers' Assn. 21 SO. 17TH ST., PHILA., PA.

When the House submitted their approved design to the Governor, De La Rue had proceeded too far with the order placed with them, and considerable expense being involved in cancellation, it was decided to have two series of stamps—each of 9 denominations—one in the design of the Governor's choosing, and the other in the Assembly's design. The stamps from the former are being typographically printed, while those of the Assembly will be from recess engraved plates.

Two values of the first series—1d red and 2½d ultramarine—were issued at Hamilton, on November 11th, 1920, and are on the new script type lettering watermarked paper recently adopted by the Crown Agents, and used here for the first time. The other values will follow shortly.

In the issued stamps the design has undergone some changes from that originally submitted by De La Rue, and approved by the Governor—the ovals are transposed, so that the head of the King is at the right, and "Sea Venture" at the left.

DO YOU APOLOGIZE FOR PHILATELY?

By BILL BLOSS.

Last week I stepped in one of the local stamp stores to pass the time o' day with the dealer. While I was picking over a bunch of covers he had just received, looking for "sleepers" a gentleman came in and asked for a certain new set of stamps for his little boy. The set cost him $8.50—a price for eight stamps for the little boy!

I know that man "from young." I've sold him stamps for the past ten years, and I know that his little boy is a girl who doesn't care a gilded whoop for postage stamps, and never will. He didn't see me, and probably would not have spoken if he had. For time and time again he has cautioned me never under any circumstances to mention to a soul that he is a stamp collector.

He is a man of prominence, and he has it all figured out that his friends would look upon him as a candidate for a padded cell, if they knew he spent his good money for little bits of useless paper. He might lose prestige. His friends would ridicule him.

Would they? Would they ridicule him any more than they do the man who spends his time and money making a collection of Chinese snuff boxes, miniatures, diamonds, or anything else? They would not.

That is, the folks who really count would not, for they know and appreciate the value of a hobby, and most of them know that stamp collecting ranks among the foremost of man's hobbies. A few people would consider him a trifle unbalanced, and yet most of those people have a hobby of their own, thus proving that they, too, are a trifle unbalanced as well.

That man is no exception. Ask any dealer who sells to street trade, and he will tell you of other men who spend large sums for their "little boys". True, many men do buy stamps for their children, but they usually look for quantity, rather than the high priced sets, and few of them display the knowledge of stamps that these other fellows do.

I have watched the people go into the stamp stores. Some walk in with heads up, and others look in the window, glance around, and then slide in the door quickly, lest they be seen.

There is one plausible reason why a man should not identify himself with his hobby. The big business man, who places a premium on his time, is justified in keeping it to himself lest the dealers and fellow collectors disturb him with calls during his business hours. And, usually, he is so big that he always has a minute's time for a caller. The really big man usually has.

I am a stamp collector, and I am proud of it. Through my love for stamps I have made a host of friends whose association would have been denied me, had I buried my hobby within my own breast and indulged in it only in the fastness of my own sanctum.

Not only have I made friends through stamp collecting, but I have never lost one because of my hobby. Some of my friends who do not understand my craving for stamps, question me, it is true. And I can answer them by citing the benefits I have derived from it.

Because I am proud of stamp collecting, I do not hesitate to say that I am a collector. I have succeeded in sharing my hobby with many who might not have enjoyed it had I not informed them and started them. What has the man who is ashamed of his hobby ever done for it?

Stamp collecting needs advertising. There are approximately a million people in this country who have at some time or other collected stamps. If every one of the active collectors in this country would undertake the work of recruiting, he would bring back into the fold many who have strayed away, as our minister would put it. If each one of us could secure one recruit, we would double the popularity of our hobby, make our market twice as big, and hence twice as sound. And best of all, we would help the other fellow to get his share of the fun that awaits him in philately.

Does the fellow who will not admit he is a collector help anyone? Does he help himself? I am fairly well known in my circle of friends as a stamp collector, and I can remember at least three occasions when friends have given me old collections which have been in their families for years. Every week my banker passes me a few of the new stamps he receives from his foreign exchange customers. Some of the stamps are good ones. I wouldn't get them if I hadn't told him I was interested.

When I see a stamp collector who is too filled with false pride to publicly acknowledge his hobby, I see a man who is ashamed to class himself with the legion of collectors of all walks of life, the financiers, merchants, doctors, scientists, manufacturers, tradesmen, and the others of us.

I feel for that man, for he has no place on this earth.

I'm proud of philately. I'll tell the world.

HERE WE ARE!

And here we will continue to be as long as the stamp business continues to interest us. We have been in the stamp game since 1908 and if the President and the Manager continue in their present good health and happiness we will be here for some time to come.

Why not have a try at our approvals? Those who have answered our ads are saying all sorts of nice things, and not one kick have we heard.

Sorry that we can't supply "Price Lists" we don't issue any. Why? Because MEKEEL'S is a good enuff place to put our "specials" if we have large enuff quantity, if not our approval customers get them. Come on, join our army of friends. You'll not regret it. Thanks.

NOTES FROM THE ORIENT.

By FELIX COHEN.

The Syrian region under former rule of Emir Faisul is not discontinuing the arabesque issues. Since the dethronement of King Faisul and occupation of this region by French troops the stamps used for postage were the three stone-printed stamps made in Damascus (values 1/10 of piastre brown, 5 milliemes rosa-red and 1 piastre blue). To these an addition will be done shortly by the following:

2 on 10 of 1 piastre, yellow-green.
3 on 10 of 1 piastre, orange,
2 piastres, green-blue,
5 piastres, lilac,
10 piastres, light brown.
1 piastre postage due, black.

All these will be sold in gold currency or its equivalent in banknotes.

Up to date high values over 1 piastre are still the Palestine E. E. F. issue used.

The French introduced also their Syrian stamps but as the difference of the Syrian piastre toward Damascus or Aleppo currency stands 3 Syrian piastres for 1 of Aleppo, so a special typographical sign has been added to the set of stamps now in use in Aleppo. This means that these stamps are available for the vilayet of Aleppo and that they must be paid in local gold currency.

The number of stamps which constitute this new set is as follows (French stamps overprinted).—

25 centiemes on 1c,	10,000
50 centiemes on 2c,	10,000
1 piastre on 5c,	10,000
2 piastres on 25c,	10,000
5 piastres on 15c,	4,000
10 piastres on 40c,	1,000
25 piastres on 50c,	500
50 piastres on 1fr,	300
100 piastres on 5fr,	15

This set is good only for the vilayet of Aleppo.

The vilayet or province of Aleppo has been proclaimed autonomous by the French General, Gouraud, and stands under French protection. As soon as this first issue of stamps is sold a second set will be issued bearing the overprint: a triangle and initials S. I. in red—"Souvenir Independence". How long this "souvenir" may last and cost to us is a thing that cannot be presaged.

Without mentioning it, a "souvenir" first set of Aleppo will cost a lot of money for those who are interested in Asia Minor issues.

It will be of some use to know that the special Faisul stamps created at Damascus on March 28th, 1920, (the day of proclamation of Syria's independence), and bearing the overprint "Remembrance of Syria's Independence, March 28th, 1920" in arabic, were on sale at the Damascus P. O. only that day, and during the time the Faisulian artillery were firing 101 guns to commemorate the proclamation of Emir Faisul as King of Syria, etc. The issue consisted of 300 copies, of which 270 were sold not to philatelists, but fanatical Mohammedans who desired this stamp as an official souvenir of the day.

After the last shot 30 stamps remained still unsold and the Minister of Post at Damascus gave orders to sell this lot at Egyptian pounds six each stamp (1 Egyptian pound=£1.0.6.) for postal benefit. 13 copies have been sold at this rate, and the 17 which remained still unsold have been burnt by the Minister himself. o this stamp ranges between the varieties, as very few will be available for philatelists.

Notwithstanding that no official number as to quantity issued can be obtained, Faisul's stamps of the 1st issue (oval arabesque on Turkish), and 2nd (arabesque in a triangle on Turkish), are nearly all scarce. The demands have been and are great, but quantity that could be obtained were very limited. These overprinted Turkish stamps from 2 piastres upwards, must be regarded as very scarce. The Turkish Sultan's head, 50 piastres green, is said to have been issued at 30 copies only. A collection of Emir Faisul's issues as formed here with stamps overprinted in red, black or violet or mixed in two colours, comprise about 100 varieties.

About the Arabic-British-Jewish overprint on Palestine stamps, there has been a great surprise, as after the restrictions of sale of these stamps in quantities of no more than 5 copies to each applicant, a month after issue a larger quantity of a second print was liberally sold in Jerusalem, so that prices which were of about £4 per set fell to a percentage over face. These overprinted stamps are still in use but will not last very long, as the new Palestine Biblical set ought to appear in a short time.

Another curious issue is the set of Palestine stamps overprinted for use in the East Jordan valley. This region is inhabited by Bedouin tribes or nomads and was also ruled by the Emir Faisul. As soon as the Emir retired before the French soldiers these Arabs sent a delegation to the British High Commissioner in Jerusalem expressing their wish to be administered by the Palestine government. This was granted, and they also have a special set of stamps, which are the Palestine E. E. F. set overprinted in Arabic only "SHARKI-EL-ERDON", or in English "EAST JORDAN". A peculiarity is the obliteration stamp of this region. It consists apparently of a large rubber

The Gibbons' Way

It is one thing to sell goods by cate penny advertisement, without regard t their quality and value, or to the satis faction of the purchaser.

It is quite another matter to do busi ness for over sixty years and to satisf the same purchasers, not once only, bu again and again.

This is not the result of flaring adver tisement, but of thorough attention t the quality and value of the goods sup plied.

Whether he requires fine stamps i perfect condition, cheap sets and packet at bargain prices, or albums, publica tions and accessories of good value an lasting quality, the collector knows tha he can always get the very best fro "Gibbons," and finds in our name

Revolutionary Mexico offers a wide field for both the Specialist, and general collector. The very low price at which many of these stamps have been sold in the past, is explained by the depreciated paper money in use at the time, as it is in most European countries at this time.

Many of the numbers are already in the "hard to get" list, others not to be had. Want lists, and approval order desired.

stamp with large Arabic inscription "MARKAZ EL BARID UAL BARK", or in English "Post and Telegraph Office". Two villages are known to exist in that region but it looks as though no European, or at least not many, want to expose their skins in that territory. The complete Palestine set, 1 milliemes to 20 piastres, seems to have been surcharged for this new region. I only saw a few values here.

An astonishing quietude prevails in the well known stamp issuing countries of Syria and Cilicia.

CASTELLORIZO, an island inhabited by 15,000 souls, mostly Greeks, and occupied by the French since 1916 (nearly at the same time the Isle of Rouad was occupied), thought also that it was highly time to issue separate stamps. In order to recover the time lost, three sets appeared in a very short time. One overprinted "B. N. F." on French Levant stamps (Base Navale Francaise=French Naval Base), the second on French stamps and surcharged O. N. F. (Occupation Navale Francaise = French Naval Occupation), and the third O. F. Castellorizo (Occupation Francaise= French Occupation). These issues are all very limited but we failed to see any of these in Egypt. Paris is once better informed than we are about this Oriental issue.

About the 1st Isle of Rouad issue (stamps hand-stamped vertically "ILE ROUAD") values: 5, 10, 25 centimes. I am in a position to affirm that this issue was made by order of the French Governor of the island and that these stamps duly franked letters to every destination. Each value was issued at 1,200 copies.

The Cilician "SANDJAK EST" issue, of which we saw a couple of copies only, had an adventurous existence. This issue was intended for the interior of Cilicia and the town of MARRASH was the county-town. These stamps have done, for a couple of days, postal service in MARRASH, AINTAB, KILIS, KATMA and EGBES. The advancing Turks prevented their further use, and MARRASH, with its stock of special stamps, has been plundered and burnt. Complete sets of the "SANDJAK EST" issue ought to be exceptionally scarce. The reason of this separate surcharge was that of a monetary difference between Cilicia's coastal town and the interior. The surcharge is on O. M. F. thin type stamps. On the later issue, O. M. F. thick type, the surcharge could not be done, as MARRASH and other internal towns are still occupied by Turks under MUSTAPHA KEMAL PACHA command. For interested guidance I am giving below the official number of SANDJAK EST overprint on O. M. F. thin type.

Just before sending these Oriental notes I am informed about the number of issue of special Damascus arabesque stone-print issue, which is as follows:

1 on 10 of piastre,	5,000,000
2 on 10 of piastre,	5,000,000
3 on 10 of piastre,	700,000

PILGRIM STAMPS.

The following is an extract from the department circular:—

1. Notice is hereby given of the issuance of a special series of postage stamps in commemoration of the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims, in December of 1620. These stamps are issued in pursuance of section 4 of public resolution No. 42, Sixty-sixth Congress, approved May 13, 1920, providing as follows:

"SEC. 4. That the Postmaster General is hereby authorized and directed to issue a special series of postage stamps, in such denominations and of such design as he may determine, commemorative of the three hundredth anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Provincetown and Plymouth, Massachusetts."

2. The stamps are issued in three denominations, as follows:

1-cent, green; subject, "The Mayflower."

2-cent, red; subject, "Landing of the Pilgrims."

5-cent, blue; subject, "Signing of the Compact."

The dimensions of the stamps are approximately 1 1/16 by 3/4 inches. In a straight horizontal line at the top are the words "Pilgrim Tercentenary"; directly below, at left and right, are the years "1620" and "1920". Beneath the subject appears its title upon a curving ribbon. Within circles in the two lower corners are numerals of denomination, with the word "cents" in a straight horizontal line between. The border at the left of the picture presents a vertical row of hawthorn blossoms (the British mayflower); the border at the right contains a row of trailing arbutus (the American mayflower, which tradition says was named by the Pilgrims after their ship).

3. The Pilgrim tercentenary stamps are valid for all postage purposes and for registry, airplane, and special-delivery service when used in accordance with regulations relating thereto.

4. The stamps will be issued in sheets of 70, and for the larger post offices in banded packages of 100 sheets (7,000 stamps).

Getting Money Under False Pretense

is a serious offence. I don't say any stamp dealer would do this, but some of the stamps that I have seen issued during 1920, to my notion, bear about as much resemblance to a legitimate postal issue, as a baboon does to the human race.

If collectors get any happiness out of gathering this stuff, the Constitution of the United States allows them the privilege, and it is not up to me to interfere, but if you really wish to buy stamps that were not made for the sole purpose of filling album pages, let me show you some of the good old classics that were made to do postal duty, in the days when collectors were few and far between. I have all the early U. S. and B. N. A. excepting the rarities, and I price each stamp according to condition, the best are often above catalogue, while the poorest (not trash, but defective in a way that lessens the value) are priced low.

Special—1869 90c used, lightly cancelled, perfect but off center as 90 out of a hundred are price $14.00; Surface print, die 1, imperf., only a very few saved, pair $8.00, block of four, $15.00.

Also have a good line of early Britsih Cols. in stock.

I thank the many customers of past year, and wish all a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1564 to 1566 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Out—If things go as there are indications that they will, a new school of collecting is about to come into being. The recent post office order permitting stampless first-class matter to be mailed under proper regulations has been followed by the appearance of letters that have been sent under the new order,—two and ten cent, if not other denominations. We have seen several sample envelopes distributed by the company projecting the Universal Postage Meter Company. It is claimed by the proponents of this device that it will postmark, stamp, seal, count and stack letters at the rate of 250 a minute. A double-line postmark is on one letter, with the wording, "Hudson Term. Sta., New York, N. Y." with the date in center. In the upper left corner is the cancellation in wavy lines, broken in the middle with a box, with the lettering "U. S. Postage—Paid 2 Cents—P.000." Just outside the cancellation at left is "M.0000", evidently the mailing number. We have been told that two large firms in Chicago have already sent out the new envelopes without stamps, containing first-class matter.

Congress—A somewhat full discussion of the work accomplished at the meeting of the executive committee of the permanent philatelic congress of Great Britain having been crowded from our columns by a series of emergencies that resulted in the omission of the account from several issues, we shall now content ourselves to comment briefly on the topics that were considered by the members of the committee. A "Roll of Distinguished Philatelists" was recommended. A proposal to undertake the compilation of a specialists' list of the stamps of certain countries, under the auspices of prominent philatelic societies, broadly was favored. "The Status of Perforations" did not call for any absolute ruling and the case was rested on the fair finding of Mr. Castle, who said before his death: "If the perforations of any country's issues help me building up its postal history, or if they denote any special phase or period of change in the record of issues, they are indubitably worthy of close study and accurate classification." At least a start was made on the subject that is attracting much attention in Great Britain, "Philatelic Propaganda." It is likely that the Eighth Philatelic Congress of Great Britain to be held at Harrogate in May, 1921, will be one of the most interesting ever held; the preliminary programme whets anticipation, philatelically and in a social way, as well.

Display—Mr. Edmund S. Ward, Plainfield, New Jersey, gives us some particulars of an unusual collection in the possession of Mr. J. M. Bartels, comprised of original drawings and photographs, as pertaining to various postage stamps of recent origin. Mr. Ward says that the collection consists of drawings of stamps from 1908 to 1916, with autograph letters approving the designs from different executive heads of departments. These are mounted in a book with the "O. K." of the postmaster general written on the designs, it should be added. "First in the book come various designs used for postal cards, showing the wood engravings of head of McKinley as submitted. Then, there are larger drawings for the ten cent special delivery stamp, green, by Whitney Warren the famous artist. One of the pieces is the original drawing of our current two cent stamp. The frame is drawn and the bust of Washington is a photograph from a statue. Designs of the 1909 Alaska-Yukon stamp with an Alaskan seal in place of Seward's head loan interest to the book. The seal is again depicted on a design for a stamped envelope but the issue of an envelope was dispensed with as unnecessary. The designs for the 1912 parcel post stamps, with numerous alterations, and those for the parcel post stamps which were destroyed and the designs of which were used for the present documentary stamps, are an attractive feature." This compilation formerly was the property of Mr. Julian H. Ralph, who is remembered by collectors as having been director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Washington, and as an officer to whom they were indebted for many courtesies. Mr. Ralph, who was an appointee to the position from Joliet, Illinois, was always willing to do his utmost to accommodate philatelic students with information. This souvenir collection no doubt was a creation made possible by the favorable position that Mr. Ralph occupied, and we can realize that it must have a strong appeal to the intensive collector of our issues.

Evening—We are further indebted to Mr. Edward Ward for particulars of an enjoyable occasion, a meeting of the Plainfield (New Jersey) Stamp Club recently, at which the Hon. E. R. Ackerman furnished an excellent programme. "Mr. Ackerman related some very interesting experiences that marked his philatelic career and showed covers out of the ordinary that he had picked up on his world travels. Among those shown is what is reputed to be the largest of covers in the shape of a piece of sacking with 95 of the ten rouble Russian stamps on it; they were used in the days when the rouble represented fifty cents in our money. A memento of the depreciated money days in Colombia is seen in a cover that was plastered with 125 of the five peso stamps. The sheet was folded several times to conform with the size of the envelope. Mr. Ackerman showed some of the stamps used in the time of the stamp tax, as well. The talk with which Mr. Ackerman accompanied the showing of the stamps was interesting indeed. It is to be added that Mr. Ackerman gave each one present at the meeting a sample of the 23,000 Honduran stamps, which, up to the time that Mr. Ackerman's house was struck by lightning. were used as wall paper for his room. There was a record crowd out to hear Mr. Ackerman's talk, which was enjoyed exceedingly."

Local societies should cultivate the experienced collector who is able to give talks preferably illustrated by stamps at their meetings. In almost every locality there are several collectors who by reason of their activity in philately for a long period of years have a fund of information, interesting and instructive. Speaking of Senator Ackerman. we suppose that many of our readers know that he was returned to Congress with flying colors.

Cited—The Chicago Tribune in a recent Sunday issue printed a picture of a charming young lady who as a consequence of her election to the presidency of a stamp and coin club, in connection with the Hyde Park High School was given pictorial approval. This is a method of breaking into the news of which we highly approve.

Inverted—A good many things are topsy-turvy in this old world but not quite everything, sighed the collector, dropping boracic acid in his dulled "windows of the soul" after having strained his eyes hunting for that alleged two cent of the current issue printed upside down in relation to the other stamps on the sheet. He wishes to remark that he has found something on plate 11892 of the two-cent,—a red line an inch above the plate-number at the left that extends an inch and a half across the margin. This certainly is extraneous philately."

102 EXCHANGE STREET, PORTLAND, MAINE.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The well known collector of U. S. stamps and writer on Philatelic subjects, William W. Randall, has now entered the ranks of the New York dealers. Mr. Randall writes that the results of his first ad. in issue of Nov 27, were far ahead of his expectations. He says there is no question but what MEKEEL'S WEEKLY is the medium for all stamp "collecting" and selling people. Mr. Randall specializes in North Americans solely.

—The firm of J. H. Smyth, Ltd., Sydney, New South Wales, suggests that we again call the attention of our subscribers to the postal rates to Australia and New Zealand. The rates to the continent of Australia are the same as to France, 5c per ounce and 3c for each additional ounce, and on postcards 2c To New Zealand the rates are the same as to England, 2c for either letters or postcards. Will subscribers please make a mental note of this?

—In reply to Mr. Forrest Shreve we wish to state that all serial articles will ultimately be reproduced in booklet form. No other matter will thus appear unless so indicated at the time of publication.

—We acknowedge with thanks the receipt of a very convenient vest-pocket stock book which has been placed upon the market by A. E. Hussey of Cincinnati, O. We have only words of commendation for this handy article. The stock book consists of six pages with stamp pockets, is bound in leather, and is enclosed in a neat leather case. It measures 2½ by 3½ inches. It is so convenient an article for the stamp collector that we feel sure it will meet with a ready sale. The price of 50c is reasonable.

—The "Rubber City Stamp Club," Akron, O., gave a very successful entertainment recently. The idea of a "Kid Session" was carried out and the boys did their part well, both in attendance and in the contests, which were limited to the youngsters, prizes of stamps being given, also a packet of hinges, etc., for all non-members who attended. A very interesting talk and exhibition by W. W. MacLaren of Cleveland was the feature of the program, and with ice cream and cakes, concluded one of the best social meetings we have ever had. A great deal of credit must be given O. S. Hart, Harry G. Ream, J. E. Crouch, for the way it was put over. There were about forty present. Officers for the ensuing year are: President, D. R. Heath; Vice President, J. T. Cherry, and Secretary-Treasurer, J. E. Crouch.

—Bushnell's Magazine has been made official journal for the J.A.P.S. and will branch out and make the paper of general interest but at the same time will take ample care of precancels.

—"I noticed the picture of the 'Colonel and Editor.' Your consideration in not labeling it with my name is appreciated. Few will recognize your homely mate." —COL. W. L. BABCOCK. (You are too modest, Col. Babcock. If a beauty contest was on the Managing Editor knows full well what the verdict would be.)

ATLAS STAMP CO., (P. C. Smith), W.Somerville,44,Mass.

WITH FEW EXCEPTIONS

I can now supply more than 90% of the stamps listed by Scott or Gibbons—both U. S. and Foreign. The exceptions are mostly recent war issues and countries whose stamps are in little demand.

Many very fine early Mauritius, New South Wales, Brazil, Hawaii, etc., and a magnificent lot of pairs, strips, blocks and covers from all over the world will be ready to submit soon. I believe my stock of U. S. is second to none in the world and I can supply many of the rare carrier stamps in addition to rare shades, cancellations and blocks in the general issues—postage only. Whatever you want, your best chance of getting it is right here.

But of course I have not fifty copies of everything and if you delay your order long enough probably I will not be able to fill it. The first orders get the first pick. No prices will be quoted on anything—remember that—but the stamps will be submitted on approval to responsible collectors who mean business and customers who have favored me with their patronage in the past will be given the preference.

UNITED STATES COLLECTION FOR SALE

A small, but nice collection of U. S. stamps, used and unused, mounted on loose leaf sheets. Consists of 943 stamps, catalogues $170.28 and the unused have a face value of $11.60.

Included 1857, 10c Type I, pairs of the 1c and 3c; 1861, 12c; 1867, 15c grill; 1870, 7c, 12c 24c; Columbians mint through the 15c; Buffalo mint complete, 1908, 13c mint, several used 24c aero, Parcel Post complete, P. P. dues, mint complete in pairs and singles. Most of the coils since 1908 in mint pairs except the scarcer varieties (a very fine lot). A number of the Departments, Postal Savings and Special Delivery complete. A nice lot of Civil War revenues, quite a few of the 1914 Wine, mint. Some fine Hawaiians and Canal Zone including the 1c to 24c mint. A fine collection for a beginner or as a filler for a more advanced collector. Well worth the price asked of $40.00 net. Only one—less than one-fourth catalogue and if broken up would possibly bring twice as much. First check takes it.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Postage stamps with printed advertisements on the back are well known as well as common in the issues of New South Wales but few of our readers are probably aware that stamps of the United States are to be found in a similar condition. Mr. John A. Klemann of the Nassau Stamp Company recently showed me a collection which contained two of these varieties, the advertisement appearing on the back of the 3c green, National print of 1870. He states that three different advertisements are known, all being printed on the 3c green.

One reads "Try Choate's Odonto For the Teeth," another "Read the New York Ledger", and still another "Devlin the Clothier" I know of no other varieties, and I am of the opinion that no others exist.

Mr. Louis G. Barrett, as well as Mr. B. K. Miller, call my attention to a number of the 2c surface print, perforated 11 with initials in the margins. I explained in a previous chronicle why these occur.

In plate No. 11495, northwest pane, we find two sets of initials reading "O G M" and "R S W". In the southeast pane of sheet No. 11639 "TCP", on sheet 11606 "WB", sheet 11600 "T", No. 11209 "A" within the right half of the top arrow, No. 11344 a monogram resembling "DH", etc.

Mr. Barrett, as well as Mr. C. A. Paige, have shown me blocks of the same stamp, type II, perforated 11, in a dark dull carmine. This somewhat resembles the lake of the 1890 issue but is not so deep. This value is running to almost as many shades as the previous offender, the 3c surface print.

Mr. Barrett is the first to show me the 2c imperforate, surface print, unwatermarked in the type IIa; that is the type where the figure "2's" have heavy center strokes. They were taken from sheet No. 11669.

A few more of the provisional 2c on 3c envelopes have come to my attention, Mr. R. H. Langdon sending several from Seattle, including the first ambers that have been found. Mr. W. J. Prinzing sends a new variety from San Antonio, while Dr. W. L. LeCon finds an unlisted one from Milwaukee.

ARGENTINE.—Mr. Will H. Fedder calls attention to type 94 which now comes watermarked double line letters, part of three lines of letters showing. Mr. Fedder advises that he has this in the 30c claret and has seen it on others.

BULGARIA.—Mr. Ashley C. LeDuc shows us a new 10s stamp of oblong shape with a view of a battlefield in the centre. On each side of the picture is the likeness of a woman with each arm around a child. At the top are four lines of native characters and the value is at the base. The color is red.

The Economist Stamp Co. have submitted the following additional value of the set noted last week that were issued in celebration of the National Poet: 1s grey, showing two portraits of the poet, one in 1870, and one in 1920; 2s lilac grey, portrait of the distinguished gentleman again; 3s dark grey, showing two buildings; 5s blue, showing a man in robes.

CASTELLORIZO.—The French philatelic press records the issue of no less than three distinct series of occupation stamps for this islet off the Asia Minor coast, originally occupied by France as a naval base in 1915, and lately transferred to Italy. The first series made its debut in June, 1920, and comprised thirteen values in the contemporary types of the French Levant Post Offices overprinted B. N. E. CASTELLORIZO in two lines of capitals, the initials signifying "Base Navale Francaise." The figures in brackets represent the total numbers issued of each denomination.

This overprint was applied locally to blocks of ten stamps on one of which the "Z" in Castellorizo was replaced by an "F".

The second issue consisted of the same stamps overprinted O. N. F. CASTELLORIZO, i. e., Occupation Navale Francaise, the first line in capitals, and the

THE EXCHANGE STAMP COMPANY,

(formerly of New York & S. Francisco)

AUBURN, CALIFORNIA.

Largest Auction Concern on Pacific Coast.

FIUME.—Mr. Henry Hooreman has shown us the new set of stamps of this country chronicled last week surcharged "Reggenza Italiana del Carnaro" in black in four lines.

NEW HEBRIDES.—Mr. W. Ackland, of Melbourne, has now shown us copies of all five provisionals chronicled in our issue of Sept. 23rd. Both the French provisionals are on the New Caledonian type of 1905-7, and not only the 10c, as previously stated.—Philatelic Magazine.

PALESTINE.—Messrs. Bright & Son advise:—"We have today been shown two postally used copies of the Palestine stamps of 2 and 5mil with an Arabic inscription in black, which in English represents the words 'East of Jordan'. These are the first we have seen and no doubt this information will be of interest to your readers."

SIAM.—Four new values in the latest King's Head type have been shewn us by Messrs. Alfred Smith and Son.

2 satangs, brown and yellow.
3 satangs, green on greenish.
10 satangs, black and red-brown.
50 satangs, yellow-brown and black.

Philatelic Magazine.

SWITZERLAND.—The Economist Stamp Co. submit to us for chronicle a copy of the 30c, yellow brown and pale green, surcharged with the same overprint as the 1919 aerial post stamp in carmine.

UKRAINE.—Mr. Frank K. Brown has shown us the 10K stamp, imperforate, surcharged "35" in black.

SCARCE STAMPS --- RARITIES

Here is your chance to get some modern rarities. You are getting the benefit of bottom exchange rates, plus only a nominal profit margin. Most of these items were issued in small quantities and will soon be absorbed. Every item fully O. K. in every respect and written guarantee furnished with any item of value when requested. We are careful of whom we get our goods and you are fully protected. This means not a little in buying the high priced items. If you are looking for moderate priced stamps, do not let this adv. scare you. Naturally we have most of the others if we have the rarities. Space will not permit us to offer so kindly send in your WANT LIST or make use of our approval dept. One of the very largest general stocks of stamps in the New World is at your disposal. If you want to buy stamps, wish to fill those spaces without hunting all over the Universe, perhaps we can assist you. Many of the largest general collectors in America are depending on us to fill out their blanks. Why not you? If you want approvals, send for our list of books, etc. Get in touch with us. Our lists offer you the largest variety of fresh and new goods of any. We search the World, and our buying ability gives us the preference on limited issue lines. It has cost a fortune to make this service possible, so why not avail yourself of it.

ADLETS.

Minimum two lines.

This column is for the use of our patrons who desire only a few lines of space. If you want to buy, sell, or exchange, it is without doubt the best advertising medium in the world. It is impossible to guarantee advertisers in this department and patrons must satisfy themselves as to the reliability of the parties with whom they desire to engage in business relations.

RATE.—30c per line, cash in advance. No display allowed. Six words (32 letters) to the line, including address. We offer 50 lines for $12.50, where cash is paid in advance. This space can be used at such times and in such quantities as may be desired.

POST CARD ITEMS.

We are all indebted to my friend, our active member, the Rev. M. Klosowski, for the following most interesting information. The current 1 cent green U. S. card has been issued with a retouched die. There can be no doubt about it. The re-engraved die is plainly discernible with the naked eye, but with a magnifying glass you will notice that the hair on the back of the head in the first issue has six faint lines, while the new die shows five very pronounced ones. Also, the coat of the bust has been retouched to a remarkable degree, so that in the new die the lines are very prominent, while barely visible in the old type. Therefore, we have another card to add to our collection.

The same reverend gentleman sent me, for inspection, two of the current 1 cent cards. They are so foreign to our general issues, that one might be justified in thinking that our Government issued cards printed to order. The cardboard used in them is of a grayish green color, and as this tint was never used before in our cards, I was greatly surprised in examining them. Do any of our members know of instances when privately printed cards have been issued here with the regulation Government stamp impressed?

Shortly before we went back to the old rate of postage, on July 1st, 1919, a domestic 2 x 2 cents reply card, red on cream, was issued. It was in circulation only a very short time when I ordered some, but I received word from Washington that the entire issue has been destroyed. However, the San Francisco Post Office seems to have had a large supply of these double cards on hand, for I have just learned they were surcharged 1 on 2 cents. The single cards were also overprinted at the same post office. Consequently we have to add both kinds of these San Francisco surcharges to our collection.

Up to the time of writing, the surcharged cards were issued in the following cities: Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Denver, Indianapolis, Minneapolis, New York, Oklahoma, Philadelphia, San Antonio, San Francisco and Seattle. That makes 13 varieties. No doubt we shall hear from other cities as well. All the surcharges vary, and a complete and detailed description will be published in these columns as soon as the list is completed.

It keeps one busy nowadays to keep track of the issues of Germany brought about by the effect of the World War. I have counted 48 surcharges on German cards, prepared for countries occupied by the German Army; besides, cards have been issued through the political, or rather, geographical, changes of the former Empire, viz., Danzig, Memel, Saargebiet, Slesvig, Upper Silesia, Weissenstein and Wesenberg. It is almost impossible to arrange these new issues without the assistance of a catalog, but the supplement is positively promised by January 1st, so that our suspense will soon be a thing of the past—P. C. S. A. Bulletin.

STAR MATCH CORPORATION.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

This concern first appears in the Portland directory for 1869. It was then called the Star Match Corporation and the address was Kennebec St., near the foot of Chestnut. For many years the only names mentioned in connection with the concern are James C. Jordan and Samuel E. Spring. In 1869 both are listed as merchants. In 1875 Mr. Spring is listed as a hide and wool merchant and Jordan as proprietor of the Portland Star Match Co., which was then on West Commercial St. From 1879 until 1884 Mr. Spring was president. Mr. Jordan was treasurer and general agent from 1879 continuously until 1901, when he became president. The concern appears sometimes as a company, but more frequently as a corporation and the collector will note that on the stamp the word "Corporation" is used.

For many years this was the largest match factory in America outside the Diamond Match Co. It appears last in the Portland directory for 1907 and the following year the Diamond Match Co. is listed at 69 W. Commercial St. Portland Star Matches were widely used all over New England and the Portland Star is one of the very commonest of the match stamps.

The Boston Book says of it:—

Die approved, Jan. 29, 1867.
First issued, May 4, 1867.
Last issued, March 15, 1883.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).
14,827,260 issued on old paper.
99,957,325 issued on silk paper.
168,886,956 issued on pink and watermarked paper.

The grand total of Portland Star Match stamps issued—283,671,541—is greater than the total issue of any other private die stamp excepting only the Swift & Courtney & Beecher Co. and the 1c Barber Match Co. adhesives. The Portland Star Match stamp represented a net tax of over two and one half million dollars during a period of only sixteen years, or over $400 per day for every day in that time. Speaking in round numbers the average output of the factory was about 50,000 boxes per day. It is no great wonder the stamps are not rare.

The stamp is an upright rectangular adhesive of the usual 1c size. A large circular disk in the center encloses a shaded five pointed star surrounded by a sunburst of radiating lines. Parallel to and just within the disk at either side is a curved label, the one at the left inscribed "One, and at the right, "Cent." Crossing the disk over the star in colored capitals is "Corporation" and similarly in a double curve below the star is "Portland, Me." At the top of the disk is a small disk bearing a tiny colorless star and a small disk at the bottom of the large one encloses a colorless numeral "1". In a curved ribbon at the top of the stamp "Star Match" appears, and another ribbon across the bottom of the stamp bears the familiar phrase "U. S. Inter. Rev." Slight floral ornamentation completes the design, which is lacking in beauty and interest, and has not even the charm of quaintness to redeem it. One experiences considerable difficulty in realizing that this most ordinary piece of work was produced by the same firm of engravers who made the Curtis, the Park City's, the Greenleafs, the Howards and other unusually beautiful stamps. The Portland Star suggests a cheap lithograph and 1 oks like something the cat brought in from a nocturnal visit to the Colombian Republic, or perhaps Neurope. And the worst thing about it is that it is so common it finds its way everywhere and carries the totally erroneous idea to collectors who perhaps have never seen any other match stamps that all the rest are chips from the same ugly block. It might be unfair or inaccurate to say that the Portland Star ever was the cause of a collector becoming so disgusted as to give up all collecting, but the writer greatly doubts if this imitation spool label ever did or ever could be the means of inducing anyone to begin a stamp collection.

The silk paper and the watermarked variety are as common as stones in New England; the old paper is not so easy to obtain in nice condition as it was a few years ago; and the pink paper is less frequently seen, but only exceptionally fine copies bring much over half catalog, and as the pink paper has cataloged only 20c for about 20 years, that isn't saying much.

H. F. COLMAN,

SECOND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

And yet;—for all that single copies are so plentiful, pairs are extremely rare and blocks are just about as easy to find as blocks of the Post Office Mauritius! No evidence that the stamp was ever used in multiple can be found and there seem to have been no remainders whatever. Judging by their relative scarcity, single Portland Stars are worth few dollars per thousand, while blocks should command a few thousand dollars per block.

Probably there were twenty-five or thirty plates. The first group, of course, were made by Butler & Carpenter, and later there is no doubt additional plates were made by the National Bank Note Co. and by the Bureau. The writer is also of the opinion that there were a few plates made by the American Bank Note Co. but has seen no stamps that could certainly be identified as coming from such plates.

Color, in all shades of black.

THE MEIJI JINGU ISSUE.

By R. YOKOHORI.

I take pleasure of informing you that a new set of commemorative stamps was put on sale on the 1st inst., to celebrate the consecration of the Meiji-Jingu (Shrine built in memory of the late Emperor Meiji in Yoyogi, Tokyo) and the three days' festivity from the 1st to the 3rd at all post offices of whole Japan, and at the same time a special cancellation stamp was prepared for the occasion. I am enclosing herewith a complete set of these new stamps which I hope you will accept with pleasure.

The denominations are of two kinds, namely 1½ sen and 3 sen, and the colors are well chosen, being blue-violet for 1½ sen and carmine lake for 3 sen. The design depicts the hall of worship of the Meiji Shrine in the centre. The stamps were printed at the Government Printing Bureau in taille douce on white unwatermarked paper, and are perforated 12½ as that of the Census stamps. Each sheet consists of 80 stamps, and the plate numbers are seen on the margins of some sheets as those of the Peace stamps, but it is now under investigation how many plate numbers exist on the sheets of both stamps. As regards the number issued of both stamps, nothing is announced by the authorities as usual, but Mr. U. Kimura, President of our society, kindly wrote me that the total number issued is more fewer than that of the Census stamps. The Official notice regarding the new stamps and cancellation stamp can read as follows:—

(1) New stamps cannot be used for the payment of the fees of Parcel Post, Telegrams, Money Orders and Foreign Mail, and will only be available for the domestic postage.

(2) Special cancellation stamp will be used for three days from the 1st inst. at the first, second and special third-class post offices.

(3) Those mails to be stamped with the above special cancellation are limited to the sealed letters and commemorative picture post cards, on which new stamps are affixed, but letters must be offered to the counter especially.

It seems to me to be true that the number issued of these stamps was very few, because they had already sold out at almost all post offices of Tokyo at about 3 p. m. of the day of issue, so that I had to make my best to get these stamps from early in the morning on that day on account of the fact that most of the post offices limited the number to sell a person under 100 sets. I think there was experienced no little trouble to get many of these stamps in other cities, and they were sold out only after a few hours, as I am told by my friend in Kyoto City that those Census stamps were only sold two or three sets to a person in his city when they appeared.

In my last letter I told you that the total number issued of the Census stamps is about 60,000,000, which is nearly the same number as Japan's population, but I beg to ask you to forgive my mis-report. Mr. U. Kimura kindly told me that the number issued is not so large as we expected and will not exceed 4,000,000 in all.

Now all streets and houses of our city are finely decorated for the three days' festivity of the Meiji Shrine, and many beautifully ornamented arches are brilliantly illuminated in the night as in broad daylight. According to report of some newspaper, it is said that the number of people visited and worshipped the Meiji-Jingu on the 1st inst. came to over 500,000, and caused over 120 dead and injured on account of so crowded on that day. However, this great festivity of three days is beyond my power to describe.

THE NEWARK STAMP CLUB.

The Newark Stamp Club was organized on Sept. 1, 1912, and has met consecutively on the 1st, 3rd and 5th Friday evenings ever since, holding 215 meetings. The club for a long while published the Newark Stamp News until increased costs caused it to be given up. There are at present 33 members in the club and it has a good Sales Dept., also running stamp auctions at each meeting. Some of the members have very good general and specialized collections and there is a great interest in United States and old European stamps.

The present officers of the club are: E. W. Fuss, Pres.; W. B. Morningstern, Vice-Pres.; E. H. Greening, Sec.; P. C. Davenport, Treas.; H. E. Planck, Sales Mgr., and A. G. Whelpley, Auction Mgr.

STATISTICS SALE 231

We received 286 different sets of bids from all parts of the U. S., Canada, Cuba, Porto Rico, etc., of which 129 succeeded in securing one or more lots, while 157 were unsuccessful. There were about sixty-five present at the sale, of which 32 secured one or more lots. Total number of successful buyers 161. Seventy of this number only secured 1 lot each. Largest number of lots to one buyer was 42. Next sale will be the well known West Chester Collection of Dr. Jesse Cope Green, the grand old man of Philately, who lived to be 103 years old.

UNFAIR DISCRIMINATION.

HARRY E. HUBER.

During the summer of 1920 several Presidencies of the Leeward Islands made public a ruling that in future all orders received through the post from collectors and dealers, for postage stamps, would not be filled by the Post Office;—the applicant being referred to local vendors, a list of these accompanying the ruling.

While it is within the power of Colonial Postmasters to refuse to render courtesies to applicants for stamps through the post, they exceed the authority that attaches to their position when they refuse to supply stamps ordered in specific quantities and denominations.

In the case of the Cayman Islands, the Commissioner there (George S. S. Hirst, 1907-1912), authorised the issue in 1909 of an order that postage stamps would only be sold for cash over the counter at Post Offices within the Dependency. Orders received through the post would be returned. This ruling when brought to the attention of the Jamaican authorities was disallowed, and now the Post Office supplies stamps as before.

When the Postmaster at St. John's, Antigua, advised that stamp orders would no longer be filled by the Post Office, the ruling was considered to be a local one, but in that sent out by St. Kitts-Nevis it is advised that—"It has been ruled by the Secretary of State for the Colonies that orders for stamps accompanied by remittances are no longer to be sent to the Postmaster of St. Kitts, or the Postmistress of Nevis. These should be sent to a local stamp vendor. Names of vendors are sent herewith. . . . .

Signed, GEORGE F. KING,
Postmaster for St. Kitts."

Colonial Postmasters, fortunately, are not all alike, for there are some who, recognising that the Post Office revenue is in the hands of stamp collectors and dealers (this is true in the smaller stamp issuing countries) give treatment leaving nothing to be desired.

In the case of Barbados, the following from the Report of the Postmaster for the year ending December 31st, 1918, proves of considerable interest:—

"Paragraph 22. The value of postage stamps sent abroad to collectors during the year was more than £1500. This represents a clear profit to the Government, as few, if any, of these stamps are ever used for postal purposes. The putting up of such stamps to go abroad takes up a great deal of the time of two responsible clerks, as the sheets have to be very carefully packed—any tear or crease would make a specimen unfit for a collection."

If the Postmaster of a Colony the size of Barbados takes this attitude, those in less important offices are most certainly out of order in assuming authority which does not, and was never intended, to attach to their position. Collectors and dealers are human, and are entitled to the same fair treatment which the Colonial Postmaster would expect to receive if positions were reversed.

Postage stamps are not issued, and the Post Office is not run to accommodate stamp collectors and dealers, but there can be no objection to the Department being run as a business institution. There are expenses of the Department to meet, and the sale of postage stamps alone determines whether there is a surplus or deficit on the year's working. Admitting that the Post Office is not being run to make money, nevertheless it is true, that it is, or should be, the aim of every Government Department to meet, at least, its expenses and contribute to the overhead expenses of the Colony.

Post Offices are established for the transaction of postal business, and the sale of postage stamps to the individual who passes his 6d over the counter, or the collector abroad who sends 5s, 10s or £1, is a part of that business. There can be no line drawn. If proper consideration were given, it would be found that the Post Office has a clear profit on stamps sold to collectors and dealers abroad, for these are never called upon to do postal service.

This dealing between Colonial Postmasters and local vendors is irregular, and the attention of the Secretary of State for the Colonies has been directed to such dealings in the past. One case in mind is that of the Windward Islands, St. Vincent's 1d on 1s. Investigation was made at that time, and instructions were issued that in future the Post Office should not refer orders for stamps to local vendors.

Giving sanction to such a ruling as made by the Leeward Islands, allows of stamps being gotten in quantity by stamp vendors, and the speculative element is established. While local speculation in stamps cannot be eliminated, and local folks have more right to speculate in the stamps of their own island than purchasers abroad, referring orders to them, as is sanctioned by this ruling, puts them in a position where they are able to take unfair advantage of the position given them. They are able to secure supplies from the Post Office, while the Post Office is closed to purchasers abroad.

There can be no reason for Post Offices refusing to fill orders received through the post, except where supplies are low, and here, no collector or dealer can object to orders running into £50 and £100 being held until stock is replenished. This has been cared for in some islands where orders from abroad for War Tax stamps were held until sufficient quantity was available. The order was simply acknowledged by the Post Office, with the advice that when the new indent was to hand, order would be filled. This guards low stock much better than placing the whole foreign trade in stamps in the hands of local vendors. Local folks can always obtain supplies of stamps, even when limited in quantity, and the opportunities for surcharges are multiplied by this ruling, rather than decreased.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies has had these facts laid before him, and it is hoped that he will re-consider the approval which he has already given to the Leeward Islands' ruling.

MARKET NOTES.

Fears of strikes and money tightness should not cause students of War and Armistice issues to put off buying the stamps they want. The fall in prices in new issues has gone about as far as it can, and already one notices a marked absence of sets at "wall-paper" prices, so prominent a few months back.

The foreign exchanges, being so favourable to this country, have made it possible to give the collector with only a shilling or two to spare many stamps which, under pre-war conditions, would have been beyond his reach. The ordinary general collector has been alive to the opportunities presented, and consequently there is a tendency for prices to advance or, what is worse, for the stamps to be unobtainable.

It must be remembered that many of the new emissions were provisionals, issued for a specific purpose, and limited in extent. At the same time, the British dealer, seeing no end to the flood of new stamps, was compelled by sheer necessity to bid lower and lower prices as each new lot came along, or his capital would have been locked up in a comparatively few lines. The effect has been for foreign sellers to suffer, but British buyers in most cases have reaped the benefit.

To mention a few issues which should be considered, we would point out the following:—

ALLENSTEIN.—Both the first and second issues are cheap enough to buy.

ARMENIA ON RUSSIA.—A regular prize packet. Of the undoubted stamps overprinted by the Armenian Republic there were extremely limited quantities. It is not yet possible to give the exact figures, but beyond question the total was only a few thousands, distributed among various values and types. If thinking of buying these stamps one should not delay; but a word of warning: In view of sundry doubtful emissions buy only from a dealer you know, and he will not be upset if you ask him point-blank to guarantee any Armenian on Russian stamps he may sell you. When in doubt, don't buy; but, as a few weeks ago Messrs. Bright & Son offered to expertize these stamps free for any reader of Stamp Collecting, there is no reason why you should have any apprehensions.

Armenia on Russia promises to be another Ukraine, only perhaps more so.

BATOUM.—This is the Cinderella of British War stamps, but in the near future will be one of the most sought after and, incidentally, most expensive of all occupation sets, as many of the values were limited to the extent of fewer than one thousand stamps. Some of the "Brass Hats" in the stamp business have been inclined to scoff at these Batoum stamps, but those issued at Batoum are in a sense unique, for the reason that the various emissions from first to last were made under the competent British authority, and when, on July 9th last, the British forces left Batoum, the printing stones and unsold stock of stamps were put out of action. The district is now part of the Republic of Georgia.

Here, also, buy only from known dealers, as other people besides readers of Stamp Collecting [Names, please!—Ed.] know that many Batoum stamps are rare, and have already done their little bit to increase production by making imitations at home—a home industry that we do not want to support!

CILICIA.—The issues on Turkish are still fairly plentiful in dealers' stock books, but it would not be wise to defer buying too long.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA.—A good sound country to collect, and with the advantage that one is not compelled to buy a large number of local provisionals of doubtful authenticity at high prices. Here the collector can delight his heart with many varieties of perforation and shade, with the knowledge that all the issues were for use only.

DANZIG.—Most collectors would heave a sigh of relief if they heard that Danzig had given up issuing stamps and had gone back to its business as a free port. Still, many of the values were very restricted in issue and, as the whole lot can still be obtained at a small cost, no great harm, and possibly some good, may come of buying.

ESTHONIA.—The definite issues of this country are a safe line at to-day's prices. One can fill a few pages of an album with little expense.

GEORGIA.—The stamps of this Russian republic should not be neglected. The definite issues are still too cheap to make it worth while forging them.

LATVIA.—These are fine ammunition for the propagandist, as the most uninterested member of the public is pleased to examine stamps which are printed on the back of German maps and bank notes. Besides, they are not dear.

POLAND.—Anything like a complete set of Poland runs into a lot of money, but the definite issues are full of philatelic interest, and are not beyond the pocket of the ordinary collector. The Warsaw Citizen's Post, as already pointed out by "E. C.," is unique insofar as it is the only instance extant of a municipal issue being raised to the dignity of a State issue. Well it deserved the honour, as the Municipal Post carried on when all other postal services failed. When they could not issue stamps they used handstamps. A full history of this post should make interesting reading. The earlier issues are scarce, and the forger has paid his tribute to their rarity by making imitations. This he has done in the case of most other Polish Municipal emissions.

RUSSIA.—This vast country will not always lie with the foot of the spoiler on her neck. Some of the imperforate Imperial issues are priced high in the books, but can be picked up occasionally at a fraction of catalogue. Such opportunities should be taken advantage of.

RUSSIAN LEVANT.—The P.O.U.N.T. issue was restricted. The greatest number of any value was 35,000 and of others only 500. Many of the latter have been catalogued in British lists at absurdly low prices. Stocks are still fair, but insufficient to withstand any sustained rush.

UKRAINE.—The Trident issues show no tendency to get cheaper, and are more likely to go up than down in price.—Stamp Collecting.

Nothing But Ads!

This must be the disappointed exclamation of most collectors when they receive a copy of many of the so-called philatelic journals which are offered at low subscriptions nowadays. A SATISFIED ADVERTISER.

In an early December number Herman Schmidt used two pages of advertising space. Bill for the same was submitted Dec. 28 and on Dec. 30 we received this letter:—

"Kindly credit this check to our account before Jan. 1. I have been waiting for this bill for a long time and thought you had forgotten about it. Was very well pleased with the results, amounting so far to over $800."

We are taking the liberty of quoting from Mr. Schmidt's letter, not only to show how desirous he is of meeting his bills promptly, but as well to show that the WEEKLY has great pulling power if the right stamps are offered at the right prices.

FOR MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

AS IT WAS IN THE BEGINNING.

By EDWIN B. HILL, El Paso, Tex.

Yes, I agree with the collector who has discovered that he has reached the point where his collection means more to him than he realized the weeks prior to its passing. He sent me a letter the other day from a point remote from this our country, telling me that he had read a certain paper I had contributed to a philatelic publication, and that it was his experience in toto. That is reason for me to speak further along the same lines, and to emphasize the facts set forth.

I began collecting in the autumn of 1874, at the mature age of eight years. The fever burned intermittently through youth as the various collections passed. It was not until exile came, into the Michigan woods, remote from any neighbor, that the old love was renewed, through the kindly interest of a dealer friend, who wished to aid the long battle for health by giving the semi-invalid something to do of a rainy day in summer or when the chill of winter kept the health-seeker indoors. The interest renewed, the collection grew into rare proportion. It accompanied me into the wilds of Arizona, until it passed that sad-mad day when I yielded to the importunities of a certain nameless one, who promised ample reward.

The reward seems to have been diverted into other pockets, and the sting and the stain are reminder that certain men are not friends in fact when the dollar sign looms big, and opportunity has not wholly ceased to knock.

Then followed a period of wanderings and illnesses and hope deferred and finally the desire to collect once more and finally, but with reservations. This time the stamps were to be well-centered and fine for the very common ones, and the less common if circumstances warranted. For the scarce and rare stamps, damaged copies would suffice, or pieces of stamps,—several pieces, perhaps, that they might be mounted separately to show the complete stamp. Otherwise, parts of stamps would satisfy, the once purist,—of necessity.

The result has been amusing,—entertaining,—instructive. The plans were made known to two or three friends, who entered into the joyous scheme with many chortles of appreciation. Also, they sent me stamps, or portions of stamps, to add to the collection. It was fun for them, and it has been deepest pleasure and soul-satisfaction to me.

My ten cents, 1847, United States, has a hole in George's forehead. Otherwise, the stamp is fine, with wide margins. The five cents, 1851, has been trimmed to shape by some boy who, in the old days, knew not the worth of the perfect stamp. My beautiful unused copy of the ninety cents, 1861, second issue, has been basely repaired by an amateur in the work, while the ten cents, first issue, has a small corner gone N. W. as well as a bit off the corner S. E.. This way the corners balance!

And then there is my thirty cents, State, with a corner off,—and the six cents Justice, to offset it, has two holes in the center. I must not forget my 1869 issue,—always a favorite,—with a trimmed one cent, a hopelessly off-center two cents, a six cents, once beautiful, but now, alas; overcome by the exigencies of Time and rats. And the ten! The cancellation is a smudge cross, the corner is missing, but the stamp was once a stamp, and I visualize it in all its former beauty.

I have fewer than a hundred stamps in this little collection, but it will grow, it is growing. Recently it occurred to me to state the case to other collectors who have fallen from grace, or come to the parting of the ways: why not renew Youth, and return to first principles? Why not the lame, the halt, and the blind, if one cannot be glorious in stampic health? Of a truth, we would all prefer the perfection copy, but why turn from the one fallen in evil days?

There must be dealers and collectors who have laid aside, here and there, in a tiny envelope, scarce stamps of no value in a business sense,—stamps they have been reluctant to destroy. These are the stamps that give joy to the collector who loves the bits of paper beyond words. For one, I shall rejoice to pay postage and registration charges on any the least of these tiny garnerings, the understanding to be in advance that the stamps are valueless to their present owner.

I see no reason why there should not be a little coterie of collectors of damaged stamps. My plan has been and is to form a replica of my old collection, but with the perfectionism missing. It can be done, in the allotted years yet at my disposal,—perhaps. At least,—and at most,—the reward shall be in the trying!

A NOVEL WAY TO COLLECT.

An army officer's desire to possess a unique collection of stamps came near getting him into trouble with the Washington criminal authorities. The officer called at the office of Recorder of Deeds Costello and asked to see some of the deeds which had been filed shortly after the Civil War. He was told where the papers were kept and allowed to see some which remained on file in the office.

Another visit was paid to the recorder's office today by the officer and after he had been examining a number of papers, information was brought to Deputy Recorder Dutton that the officer was removing from the valuable documents the canceled internal revenue stamps required to be placed on deeds at that time. The officer had brought along a tin cup, which was partially filled with water. By the use of two pieces of blotting paper he had no difficulty removing the stamps.

When Mr. Dutton inquired if the officer knew that he was probably making himself liable to prosecution for mutilating public records, the officer expressed surprise and declared that he was a stamp collector and that he had been allowed to secure some of his collection in this manner in a record office in Kentucky. Mr. Dutton notified Assistant United States Attorney Arth and the officer was escorted to the office of the latter. There he surrendered the stamps and repeated his reason for desiring them. He denied any intention of malicious destruction, which the statute makes an offense punishable by imprisonment for two years.

It is safe to say that the officer will hereafter make no additions to his collection from the stamps on public documents.—Washington Star.

"PLEASED"

That's what they say after receiving a trial selection of our approvals.
One new customer, a former dealer, writes: "Your stamps are in fine condition, nicely put up and the prices are right."
May we convince you that he is right? Then just shoot along references or a cash deposit and get some "worth while" stamps on approval.

BREAKING UP

A Valuable Collection

About the middle of this month, I hope to start breaking up a very fine and valuable collection of U. S. and Foreign stamps. This collection which is in 9 very large volumes contains nearly 25,000 stamps, both used and unused, and is rich in old issues. It has been in one of the vaults in the Com. Exchange Bank. The stamps are in fine condition. You are invited to call at my office if interested.

I have other nice Collections, some of which I would sell entire.

Wholesale

I have one of the largest, if not the largest wholesale stock in the country and I specially invite dealers to call and see me. My prices are low. To dealers living out of town and unable to call at my office I shall be glad to send Wholesale Selections of both used and unused stamps providing a deposit or proper references are sent.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

NEWFOUNDLAND CORNERING.

HARRY E. HUBER.

In the issue of the WEEKLY for November 6th, there is reprinted from Stamp Collecting an article treating of the recent provisionals issued by Britain's oldest Colony, which, while it makes very interesting reading, contains statements so inaccurate as to occasion surprise Such inaccuracies are not expected of a collector writing from St. Johns, and knowing anything at all of the recent postage issues.

The statement is made that "several of the stamp clerks (in the General Post Office) are also stamp dealers and are responsible for the 'cornering' of the 15c Trans-Atlantic stamp and the 6c Caribou."

It is quite true that some of the P. O. clerks in the G. P. O., St. Johns, dabble in stamps, the same as they do down here in the States, and in other countries. But there, as here, there is a regulation which prohibits them from doing so, and they are very careful that their transactions do not come to the attention of the powers that be, or anyone that would be likely to cause trouble. While they are in a position to take advantage of short issues, they are very seldom in possession of sufficient ready cash to go in heavily.

As for the ONE DOLLAR on 15c Cabot, Trans-Atlantic Air Post stamp, the cornering was not affected by P. O. clerks, but rather by a minister of St. George's, on the west coast of the Island, and this was not done until the stamp had been on sale for four months. Anyone having the necessary cash could have done the same thing. 10,000 15c Cabot's were overprinted in panes of 25; 30 stamps were spoilt and destroyed, leaving 9970 stamps available for the Vickers-Vimy and Handley-Page aerial mails, and the public. The stamp was placed on sale June 9, 1919, and remained so until late September. It was not in great demand at first, for on July 1st, 8700 odd copies were in stock at the G. P. O. By September 22nd the stock had been reduced to 4500 odd.

The following week the rector of St. George's wired for 1200 copies, and a few days later arrived in St. Johns in person, and going to the G. P. O. asked for 5000 additional copies. There were not so many available, but after reserving 500 copies to take care of orders on hand, the balance was handed over to him.

From this it will be seen that the stamp was available at the G. P. O. for almost four months, and had anyone in St. Johns, or abroad, wanted to do the same thing, there was nothing to prevent.

The 6c as well as the 8c Caribou was sold out naturally, and reprintings have not been made, as there is a stock of 6c and 8c Cabot's available, and these are being used at the present time.

The Caribou series was placed on sale January 2nd, 1919, and it was known at the time that 50,000 of the 6c and 8c, as well as some of the higher values, had been requisitioned. As a matter of fact, the quantities actually received were slightly less,—due to certain spoilage in printing.

For eleven months the 6c Caribou could be gotten from the retail windows at the G. P. O., or until November 24th, 1919. A small reserve stock of 600 was in the hands of the Wholesale Department, held for the purpose of completing sets on order from abroad. These were exhausted December 10th, 1919, and the 6c Cabot was brought into use.

The 8c Caribou lasted longer; stock was down to 6000 copies in January, 1920, and by March had disappeared entirely; the 8c Cabot took its place.

With eleven months to "corner" the 6c, and fourteen months for the 8c, everyone had a fair chance.

Probably, the St. Johns correspondent will shortly be writing that the 12c Caribou is cornered. This too was requisitioned to the extent of 50,000, and received in a slightly less amount. This stamp has been on sale for almost two years. In September, 1920, it was down to 4000 odd, and should exhaust early in the New Year. It will not be reprinted, for remainders of the 12c Cabot will be brought into use.

THE CULT OF THE PENNY BLACK.

By E. BENTLEY WOOD.

If a plebiscite could be taken among philatelists as to which is the most popular stamp in the world, the verdict would undoubtedly be given in favour of the Penny Black of Great Britain. Yet it is only within the last few years that it has risen to this enviable position. Reflected by catalogue prices we find on referring to Gibbons' 4th edition, 1884, that it is priced at 1d, or 6d the dozen, while the red which succeeded it is quoted at 2d and 1s 3d the dozen. How we should like to pick up a few dozens of blacks at that price now! More recent catalogues give, for the ordinary medium shade, 1904, 6d; 1912, 1s 6d; 1914, 2s; 1919, 4s; and it is no secret that the price (like that of everything else!) is still on the rise. Dealers who hold a few copies are reluctant to sell. One recently told me in answer to an enquiry for copies, "I don't want to sell; it is a better advertisement for me to show them in my window than to sell them."

Taken from the usual standpoint of value, according to the number of copies in existence, the price is much above what might be expected, but there are other factors which must be considered:

1st—It is the fashion of the moment.

2nd—The stocks have got into big lumps.

3rd—The number of collectors is increasing.

4th—Speculators are holding for a further rise.

The first demand was caused by a few enthusiasts who set out to re-construct the eleven plates from which the Penny Black was printed, in all their letterings and varieties. This was a praiseworthy task but naturally needed a vast accumulation of copies for the initial comparison. The work has been rewarded by much knowledge having been gained of this classic issue, its varying "states" and retouches revealing many details of which we formerly had no suspicion. When it is remembered that to obtain the complete set of plates at least 2640 stamps are needed, and that the origin little coterie of platers is now au mented, perhaps a hundredfold, there little wonder that the absorption the required number of copies has ha an influence on the market. It is in th way that huge holdings have becom "lumped," and it is said that some sp cialists in this issue have copies runnin into five figures in their possession. percentage of these is always circulatin for exchange purposes with a view completeness, for no one has as yet su ceeded in making up the entire eleve plates, pl. 11, much the rarest, beir the stumbling block. But there are st many thousands of copies lying idl Nothing can be said against a legitima accumulation for purely philatelic r search, but unfortunately it has led much inflation in price among those wh have not this meritorious object in vie and who hold their comparatively fe copies as an investment.

But apart from the aspect of platin there is always a fascination in th beautiful first Queen of Stamps. Eve collection, be it ever so humble, nee at least one copy, and, with the co stantly growing number of collecto spare copies are growing corresponding fewer. In simplicity of design, y beauty of execution, there has nev been anything else of any country compare with it. A "Junior" wrote n recently, saying, "I am very interested the Penny Black and Twopenny Blu though I have only one copy of each This is the expression of a true "stam lover"; and herein lies the secret of the affection—nay, reverence—which bestowed on our little sable idol.

And if a single specimen can call such feelings of devotion, how mu greater it is when we have dived in the intricacies of the numerous varieti which the issue provides. The study the re-entries, re-touches, and re-prin ings in red becomes more and mo fascinating as we fathom their hidd meanings, and it is only when one c boast of the whole series of complet plates that the philatelic Utopia reached.—Stamp Lover.

HINTS ON WRITING ADVERTISING COPY.

Our printers are very desirous that certain fundamental principles shall be observed in the preparation of advertising copy. It will greatly facilitate the work of producing the WEEKLY if the following rules can be observed:

(1). Use one side of the paper only and use sheets of uniform size. Do not take any piece of waste paper that may happen to be at hand.

(2). Send typewritten copy if possible. Don't use lead pencil!

(3). If not typewritten, use ruled paper or line out so that linotype operator can follow along the descriptive matter and price.

(4.) Write your advertisement entirely apart from other communications. Be sure and sign your name and address.

(5). Bear in mind that the linotype operator is not a stamp collector and is entirely unfamiliar with philatelic terms. If *, o. g., Cat., or perf. are to be used, have the abbreviations written so that they will be plainly understood. Take pains with your adv. copy and have it neatly prepared.

(6). Don't throw your copy together carelessly, relying on chance and the proofreader that things will come out O. K. When you spend money for advertising, get your money's worth by taking pains in the preparation of your copy.

(7). Adv. copy must be in Wednesdays to use ten days later.

APPROVAL DEPARTMENT

We believe we have one of the best series of books, etc., out for the average collector. Selections suitable for all classes of collectors whether able to spend $5 or $5000. An enormous variety, mounted in books by countries or groups of countries, and priced at reasonable net prices. The list below gives only a partial iden of what we can supply.

We will gladly send any books wanted to serious, responsible collectors, who mean business and are prepared to make reasonable purchases. Prompt returns and business treatment are all we require. Strangers must give us some proof of their responsibility. Those who have dealt with us before and we know are O. K. need give no references.

WANT LISTS are the best way to buy. Costs you no more, you get just what you need. Saves our sending you $50 worth of goods to make a $10 sale and tying up $40 worth to no advantage. If you have time or are well filled up on certain countries, by all means send us a want list. Where only a few items are needed it's a small chance you'll get them out of an approval lot. Tell us just what you want and save everyone bother. Prices usually about half cat. If more you can depend on it the goods are worth it and the price fair in every case. You also get best copies in stock. Big lists of 2c and 3c stamps not wanted, but we are willing to supply a fair proportion of them with higher priced items. Such lists do not pay for clerk hire on them. If not prepared to spend over a certain amount at one time, please tell us the limit to send from your list. Want list blanks supplied to those who want them.

TERMS Business treatment of us and our selections and returns within 10 days of receipt.

SPECIAL NET BOOKS BY COUNTRIES, ETC.

BILLS MUST BE PAID THE 20TH.

We are very much gratified at the responses made by nearly all our advertisers to our appeal for payment of bills for advertising on presentation. There are, however, a number of advertisers who are not complying with this rule, and we have only one recourse left, and that is to place a time limit of the 20th of the month for payment of bills. At that time we shall be making up the forms for the first issue in the following month and advertisers who have not paid their bills will find their advertising held over pending settlement of account. The object of this rule is plainly apparent, and if it had been in force a year ago it would have saved us some unsatisfactory experiences with Pamunkey, Gearhart, Ledbetter, Genwith, Adamson and some other names more or less familiar. Will advertisers please take note?

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Pilgrim—The Pilgrim Tercentenary stamps were placed on sale in Washington on December 21st, 1920, and from that date on they were to be had at other offices. Chicago began its sale on December 27th, but the supply was limited and buyers had to content themselves with comparatively few copies of each of the three stamps. The comment on the stamps by collectors was barely favorable to them in a critical sense. The historical significance of the designs was admitted, and while the issue may not be a popular one, it will certainly be of interest. Another "Landing" is added to the store of stamp designs, but for clearness of execution the figures on the two cent "Landing of the Pilgrims" do not compare to advantage with those on the fifteen cent, 1869, "Landing of Columbus," the original of its kind. To carry out the suggestion, the "Signing of the Compact," on the five cent does not qualify with the "Signing of the Declaration of Independence," on the 24 cent, 1869, so far as the faces in the central design are considered. We like the one cent green with the "Mayflower," which is to be seen in the offing on the two cent, and we suppose that to the nautical eye the same ship is pictured on the two stamps. The first Pilgrim stamps came to us from Mr. Howard C. Beck, who, we may add, sent his New Year wishes in the form of a beautifully printed copy of the "American's Creed," suitable for framing.

Sold—News of moment reaches us in the report of the sale by Mr. Henry C. Needham of his collection, with the exception of U. S. locals and Confederates, to the Hon. E. R. Ackermann of New Jersey for a price of $150,000 or $200,000, according to which informant we believe. Still, what is a matter of fifty thousand between friends. Coming at this time, the transaction develops a significance that is not to be ignored. In this connection, we append the brief interview we had with a man who while an ardent collector is still not above taking advantage of the business opportunities in stamps: "I am seriously considering converting my stocks and bonds into money even at the present prices and with the proceeds, investing in stamps of rock-ribbed value, which, I flatter myself, I am able to recognize when I see them. I think that the returns from stamps of the right kind will be greater and the investment safer than in the other lines; and this is not said derogatorily about stocks and bonds." This observation was made by a man in the bond business whose only advantage over the ordinary collector is his ability to sell his stamps better than the usual collector. Stamp values will more than hold their own through thick and thin if new collectors continue to be made as at present. The chap who paid a cold thousand for an Interborough 5% bond, for instance, a few years ago, has to sell at well under half that amount to-day; but it is hard to conceive of having to take a similar loss in an investment of a thousand in a single stamp of high respectability.

Risen—The name of S. Valentine Saxby will be remembered by a good many philatelists as that of one of the best steppers that ever cavorted in the philatelic ring. Collector, dealer, clubfellow and precisian, Mr. Saxby was an Admirable Crichton. His home town, a score of years ago, was Rockford, Illinois, and he nearly landed an American Philatelic Society convention for it through the force of his personality, alone. Many a time we have been asked what has become of Saxby, the light of other days; and really not knowing, we could not say. The fact is that Mr. Saxby was placed on the spindle so far as philately knew him and the old world wagged on,—and now, we come to the third act. (A dozen years is supposed to have elapsed between Acts II and III.) The orchestra plays at a furious rate; the audience is agog with expectancy and the curtain slowly ascends. Behold our hero in the spot-light, the same immaculate Saxby who is remembered as the life of the party! Saxby has come into his own, and before us in letters that leap across the whole front page, the Hibbing, Minn., Daily News says: "S. V. Saxby Given State Office." Then under no fewer than three heads comes a special despatch from St. Paul, Minn., and a glowing biographical sketch of the man. We quote: "S. V. Saxby of Hibbing was unanimously elected first assistant clerk of the house of representatives at a caucus of the members of that body held this afternoon. Mr. Saxby was first endorsed for the position by the house members from the eighth congressional district." Mr. Saxby has held the position of secretary of the Minnesota Fair Tax Association since its organization and has been the compiler of a book or two of statistical and other information in connection with the organization. For some years Mr. Saxby has been the secretary of the Hibbing Commercial Club, as well.

Games—Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Circular received many entries in its recent Christmas Games Competition and several ingenious and original ideas for stamp games were submitted. There were not a few adaptations for philatelic uses of established games that yielded interesting possibilities, and Stamp Auction and Stamp Dominoes in time may be the accepted pastimes in the select circles that philatelists most do frequent. Speaking of philatelic games, we cannot forget Cleve Scott who a quarter-century ago thought of publishing a game of Philatelic Authors. Cleve, though his years were tender, was serious about his venture and some of the philatelic authors to whom he wrote for photographs for use in the card set, likewise were to the extent that they sent in their pictures. Evidently, the youthful Scott thought better of his project,—perhaps, after he had seen the pictures of those he had intended to immortalize. In 1895, Cleve Scott promised the Philatelic Rail-Splitter, but it did not come into being.

Priced—From Mr. Lowell J. Ragatz, we learn that in the May-August, 1920, number of the Bulletin of Bibliography, published by the F. W. Faxon Company, Boston, there is an offering of philatelic magazines; and among the lots listed are the American Journal of Philately, volumes 1-16, volumes 1-12 in half morocco and 12-16, unbound, for $35. A few Vol. I, No. 1, including Philatelic Puck of San Antonio, Texas, are priced at fifty cents each. Philatelic Puck was issued in May, 1893, and we think that it was a creditable production, as its text and pictures averaged a degree of humor that was relatively high.

Meiji—Prof. Middleton of Tokyo furnishes particulars of the Meiji Shrine celebration in that city recently. The dedication of the shrine was commemorated by the issue of the 1½ and 3 sen stamps on October 28th, 1920. The stamps were sold out in three days in Tokyo and no more are to be placed on High—In an account of "A Short Visit to Holland and Belgium," contributed by Mr. Charles J. Phillips to the paper published by his firm, he says that in Brussels, he found prices extremely high for good old issues, both Europeans and British Colonials, while there were "no early U. S. to be had at any price. All stocks are totally exhausted." In Holland, Mr. Phillips bought a crackingly good collection of U. S. that was made by a gentleman who frequently visited the U. S. on business and liked our old stamps.

Horrors—Mr. Joseph Ward relaxes with the following result which he sends to us, with kindest feelings, we hope. Mr. Ward heard, or imagined that he heard, the following bit on the Strand: "An English philatelist was trying hard to impress a visiting collector with the majesty of the King. 'Now look here,' he said, impatiently, 'the man on this two pence made my Unk a Knight.' The man from Africa eyed him for a minute and then produced a wallet from which he extracted an o. g., five franc, 1910, from 'home.' 'See these gents?' he asked, 'well, they made my Unk an angel.'" Of course to appreciate this avuncularangleic mot, one must keep the Congo stamp in question in mind.

Advent—There was a time when the introduction of a new name in the circle of stamp-issuing countries was made the occasion of some distinction but now the entry of new-comers is no longer cause for celebration. Mr. Leon Minassian, our Smyrna correspondent, says that stamps have been made for Castelorizo by surcharging the name on French Levant stamps, 1c to 20 piastres, "two different issues, B. N. F.—Castelorizo, and O. N. F.—Castelorizo." B. N. F. stands for Base Naval Francais and O. N. F., Occupation Naval Francais. Castelorizo is an island near Rodos, "seven hours from Smyrna." Mr. Minassian gives the following particulars of the postal arrangements in Turkey. Constantinople uses what is called the second London emission, issue of 1920, only, ranging from 1 to 50 piastres, with the 5, 10 and 20 paras. Smyrna has no Turkish post office, but in the interior of Asia Minor, "at Ochak, Alachehir, Casaba, Eodemich," the Greeks have taken over the Turkish post offices and are using the Turkish stamps with Greek cancellations, which, of course, are not surcharges.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1564 to 1566 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The new Pilgrim set is coming in for a good deal of attention; indeed, we may go farther and say well-deserved criticism. Many correspondents have called our attention to the beauty of the 1c, but the 2c and 5c have been roundly denounced. The omission of the name of the country is the most mentioned criticism. Harry B. Mason in a communication treating of the new set writes:—"The rankest oversight is the omission of any wording to denote that the U. S. issued the set. Can it be that the government is ashamed of it, and will gladly permit it to slip in with the European nightmares, and escape recognition?"

—L. V. Lindsey has shown us a block of four of the Newfoundland 2c on 30c, where the O of TWO is over the T of CENTS. This is a good variety for Newfoundland specialists.

—The veteran dealer of Alice, Tex., F. Noyes, is again with us as an advertiser. All our previous experience with him warrants our giving him a hearty word of recommendation to our subscribers.

—An interesting cancellation is being used at Plymouth, Mass., in connection with the Pilgrim celebration. It reads in three lines: "Plymouth Pilgrim—Tercentenary—1921 July Aug. Sept. 1921". Between the second and third lines is a crude representation of Plymouth Rock and upon it the date 1620.

—F. F. Wills informs us that the 5c blue Newfoundland, caribou type, has been obsolete for about two months. Mr. Wills hears this on good authority, and there is every reason to believe that the stamp will stay obsolete.

—Karl Hennig of Weimar, Germany, taking note of the article in No. 1553 by Lowell J. Ragatz, declares that there is no truth in the statement that the associated German dealers are charging increased prices to American collectors to cover the difference in exchange. They know nothing of any such agreement, nor has Mr. Hennig any knowledge of any German dealer who has adopted such a policy. He declares that it would be a foolish policy for the trade to pursue.

—You may or may not know that there is a U. S. Post Office at Port au Prince, known as the U. S. Marine Corps branch of the New York City post office. It is available for the use of what is known locally as the "Occupation" comprising the American military forces and civilian bureaus and offices established under the Haitien-American treaty of 1915. Mail sent from the United States must be specially addressed as above, otherwise it goes through the ordinary foreign mails and foreign rates apply. This branch is not available for the public generally. It maintains a weekly airplane exchange of mails, with Cap Haitien, and occasionally the military mail from Port au Prince to the States is taken to Cap Haitien by airplane and there placed on board a boat for New York.—E. A. COLSON.

BOOK REVIEW.

On that day, history tells us that the Pilgrims landed and we find the event pictured on the 2c Pilgrim stamp recently issued. Three hundred years later on December 21, 1920, we celebrate the event and I have just exactly 40 covers cancelled on that day bearing copies of the complete set of Pilgrim Stamps. The issue was really placed on sale on Dec. 21st, although some few were sold in Washington the evening before. While these 40 covers last you may have one at 30c. Could you devote a page of your album to anything of more historical interest?

DOES IT NOT SHOW that you have hit him on a sore spot when a dealer has been caught napping and someone else has been the first to locate the unusual? If he can't be first why they figure let's be lower in price and get back at him that way.

I never claimed to be the lowest in price on all items, but I do claim that NO DEALER in U. S. issues has as many of the new and unusual things and gets them as early as I do. If they want to talk price, how about the 2c imperf. surface type I which I distributed to my new issue trade at $3, the knocking dealers asking several times as much. Of many varieties I HAD THE ENTIRE SUPPLY—such as the 1c part perf. (No. 409a), the 2c (No. 410b), the 3c (No. 411c), the 50c part perf. which will be in the new catalogue, the 2c coil (No. 370i), etc. Those belonging to my NEW ISSUE SERVICE are given first choice of all the good things. I give the service that personal attention in locating new varieties that cannot be given by those who hardly know one die from the other.

Those belonging to my new issue service had blocks of the stamps mailed to them on that day and of course I placed a set on each cover. What other NEW ISSUE SERVICE offers such individual attention? I am working and planning to furnish you with every item likely to prove of interest. If you do not belong to the service you better send for a bulletin.

Not having A Large Capital invested in the business and carrying stamps as a side line only means that I have No Overhead. My stock being turned over fast means that I am in a position to pay top notch prices for fine U. S. collections and am able to turn them over without putting a living profit on the transaction. What's the answer? Whether you sell or buy U. S. stamps write me. A few U. S. Collections at $200 to $1500 wanted.

You have the $2 carmine and black. How about a fine copy unused of the $2 orange and black? Selected copies at $2.75 or the two for $5.25.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—The Pilgrim Tercentenary stamps have been issued, the first seen coming from Washington, through the courtesy of Mr. H. W. Porter, where they were placed on sale on December 20th. As previously mentioned, the series consists of three denominations: the 1c in green depicting "The Mayflower"; the 2c in rose carmine, the "Landing of the Pilgrims"; and the 5c in a deep blue illustrating the "Signing of the Compact". The border design on all values is identical. Horizontally along the top are the words "Pilgrim Tercentenary", while directly below at the left and right are the years "1620" and "1920". On the left we have a vertical column of hawthorn flowers, the British mayflower, while on the right we have a similar row of the American mayflower, the well known trailing arbutus. Under each column there is a circle containing the figure of value, while we have the word "Cent" or "Cents" horizontally across the bottom. The subject is directly in the center, and beneath, a curved ribbon giving the title.

The stamps are printed on unwatermarked paper and are perforated 11. The sheet consists of 280 subjects, arranged 14 horizontally by 20 vertically, and these are cut into panes or sometimes called post office sheets of 70 stamps, 7x10. The sheets show the usual guide lines, arrows and plate numbers. The lowest plate of the 1c that has been seen is No. 12418 and the others have numbers in the same range.

The stamps are striking in appearance, and the first thing noticed by a philatelist is that "U. S. Postage" is omitted. We have no indication upon them that they are any more than labels, nor are we told where they come from or what they are to be used for. Every series ever turned out by this government for regular postal use since the 1847 issue has had at least "U. S." somewhere about it. We would say off hand that this was an oversight.

The 1c, which illustrates the Mayflower in full sail, is the most attractive of the three. The details are worked out most minutely and one can almost picture the waves breaking over the ship. The Bureau had ample room for the subject and as a result has produced a stamp of which they may well be proud.

The 2c, showing the Landing of the Pilgrims, which, by the way, is the same illustration shown on the back of the $5 Federal Reserve note, is somewhat crowded. They had too large a subject for too small a space. Even a glass does not bring out clearly the subject and it is necessary to refer to the larger engraving on the $5 note to see what the artist is trying to show us.

The 5c is the least attractive of the three. You can imagine what the engraver had before him when you realize that he shows no less than nineteen persons on a stamp slightly larger than the Jamestown issue. This stamp does not bear critical inspection under a glass. It looks like the hold of a pirate ship. Note Captain Kidd behind the table. The fellow standing in front looks as if he had been condemned to death. The boy who takes the prize, however, is the one sitting down on the left.

We must remember, however, that the stamps were not issued for the philatelist to inspect under a glass, but are for the general use of the public which casually glances at them. Under these specifications the issue is very satisfactory and we have cause to thank the powers that be for the great improvement over the Victory stamp.

The post office informs us that the stamps shall be sold by postmasters only upon request, as the department's supply is not sufficient to displace the regular issue of postage stamps.

1920, Pilgrim Tercentenary Commemorative Series.

1c green, The Mayflower.
2c rose carmine, Landing of the Pilgrims.
5c blue, Signing of the Compact.

I had the opportunity last week of visiting the Post Office and Bureau of Engraving and Printing while in Washington and have been able to obtain all of the facts at first hand regarding the recently found $2 carmine and black.

As is possibly known by a few, the Bureau retains in its files a book containing a proof from every postage stamp die in its possession. Most of the late proofs are in their correct colors. In the case of the $2 the frame is printed in green. The die proof, mounted on a sunken card and bearing the approval of the Postmaster General, has the frame in a very light carmine rose. It is this color that the Bureau should have followed when the stamp was first issued, and they erred in printing the frame in the orange. After, however, the stamp was printed in the said orange, that became the recognized color of the stamp. When the second lot was printed during the late spring of this year, they followed the original instructions and printed the stamp in carmine and black and made their second error by not bringing out the second printing in the same colors as the first, for no change had been authorized. You can therefore take your

IT PULLED

That ad in the Dec. 11 number of the WEEKLY—my ad—pulled so hard it cleaned me out of entire sheets and plate number blocks of U. S. 1920, 2c Engraved Die II! Only two plates were made with this die known to philately as the "ten-subject multiple, experimental, die." These are flat-plate printed stamps and I can still offer:

Block of four (4) ..... .40
Block of ten (10) (the entire die) 1.00
Or a single copy ..... .10

HERE'S ANOTHER

U. S. 1902. 2c carmine "Flags" No. 301
Fine block of four (Cat. $1.60) 1.00
Or a single copy ..... .12
Plate number block of six 3.75

SCARCE 1c PERF. 12 1-2

No. 438, U. S. 1919, Offset (Experimental Perf.) Block of four (fine centering not possible) ..... .40
Or a single copy (same remarks) ..... .10

choice as to whether one or both are errors. The question now arises if there happens to be a third printing before the design is changed, what will be the color of the frame? This is a question that will no doubt have to be decided upon by the department. It is indeed odd that this stamp should have been in existence all these months without being discovered.

The Post Office Department announces negotiation of postal treaties providing for reciprocal domestic rates on letters, postal cards and printed matter between the United States and the countries of South and Central America and Spain, following a meeting of the advisory committee on international post.

The treaties are to take effect as rapidly after January 1st as they are ratified by the signatory countries. The new rates will supplant the present international rates, making the rates between the United States and the countries named after ratification of the treaties, as follows: Letters, 2 cents an ounce or fraction thereof; postal cards, 1 cent per card; and printed matter, 1 cent per four ounces.

Mr. Wylie has received a number of inquiries and every week brings several letters to my box, asking as to how the several dies and types of the current 2c stamp, both engraved and surface printed, may be told apart. I am now preparing for publication some notes upon the subject which I hope will enable all of our readers to tell one from the other. So far we have had two dies of the flat plate stamp, three dies of the rotary press stamp, the first die being the same as the flat plate and two types of the surface print with a third type, which is really a sub-variety. So many have asked why you call the engraved stamp a die variety and then speak of the offset print as a type. This is because of the fact that the engraved stamps are produced from an engraved die, whereas the offset stamps are from photographs of the dies, and in the case of type II is from a touched-up photograph of Die I, so that as a matter of fact there is no engraved die even resembling type II in the cutting of the lines.

Dr. L. L. Myers sends us a very interesting block of the 30c vermilion perforated 11, unwatermarked, printed from a dry plate. The block was from plate No. 6928.

Mr. B. K. Miller informs me that he has a vertical strip of ten of the 2c surface type III (better called type IIa) from the left side of the northeast pane showing a very distinct white dot under "E" of "Cents" on each alternate stamp, viz.: 11, 31, 51, 71 and 91. This is said to occur on plates 11656, 11671 and 11673.

The Postal Guide supplement for December states, Mr. F. W. Davis also calling our attention to the fact, that the Post Office Department has such an excessive demand for stamped envelopes that the department intends to cutting down cost by eliminating "first" and "second" quality and substitute in their place what is known as a "standard" quality, which will be furnished in white and blue only. Buff and amber envelopes will be discontinued. Sizes 1, 2, 4, 10, 11 and 14 have already been discontinued. The new arrangement becomes effective January 1, 1921.

We list this week quite a few new 2c on 3c provisional envelopes. They are not coming in as fast as they did a few months back, and it is my personal opinion that when it is all over there will not be more than a 1000 straight varieties for those who collect entires and a much less number for the cut-square collector.

Mr. R. C. Hoyt sends us the first die H that we have seen from Omaha. Mr. R. H. Mason has located a new window variety used by a New Bedford firm but overprinted in Boston, the first window noted from this city. Mr. L. G. Barrett finds a fourth Washington on sale in Boston, on buff, the first colored paper noted from the capital city. Mr. F. H. Trafton finds a new variety from the same city on sale in Charleston. Dr. LeCon has located a new Milwaukee, while Mr. Julius Kurtz sends one from Minneapolis that has not been chronicled before. Mr. A. C. Weber finds a new New York, while Mr. Mason sends a new white from Des Moines. By the way, that city of Des Moines has turned out many more varieties than some of the larger cities.

Mr. J. V. Nielsen sends a new postal 1c on 2c from Charleston.

AITUTAKI.—The designs pictured below are found also on the new sets for Niue, Penrhyn and Rarotonga:—

BRAZIL.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us a copy of a 300r stamp of an olive brown shade that they note is for use in Air Post. The stamp shows the globe with a figure of a man across the top. At the top is "Brasil Correio" in two lines and the value at the base.

BRITISH COLONIALS.—We are in receipt of the following information from Mr. Hugo Griebert:—

"I have just been informed by the Crown Agents for the Colonies that, owing to the Dandy Roll used for the manufacture of the watermark for the issues of British Colonial Postage and Revenue stamps, being completely worn out, it has been decided to manufacture a new roll bearing the Imperial Crown and the letters C A (Crown Agents) in script capitals, as the old roll has been destroyed.

The first stamps to be printed on the new paper bearing the new watermark will be those of the Bermuda Commemorative Issue, and henceforth all new stamps issued for the Crown Colonies will bear this new watermark. This innovation will be 'Glad Tidings' to all collectors of Georgian Colonial stamps, as all those issued up to date will consequently become obsolete, and their value will be improved immediately from 50% to 150%.

The introduction of the new watermark will of course be slow, until the remaining stocks on hand in the Colonies are either sold out or destroyed."

BULGARIA.—Mr. Will H. Fedder advises that he has recently received from Germany the 1L stamp of Bulgaria type A29, which seems to be re-engraved. The new one measures full ¾ mm. wider, the monogram in lower left corner is smaller and the side ornaments are larger, wider. There are also other slight differences.

Our energetic Sofia correspondent, Mr. Ivan Matincheff, sends us examples of a very handsome series of commemorative postage stamps issued on October 24th to mark the 70th anniversary of the national poet, Ivan Vazoff. The stamps are printed by a mezzo-engraving process in large format upon white wove paper without watermark, and are perforated 11½, which appears to mark them as product of the National Printing Works. On some values the initials of the artist or engraver are discernible in the design, but we are promised fuller particulars of the issue by an early mail. The stamps were on sale for five days only, from October 24th to 28th, in five denominations as under:

30 stotinki rose-carmine (View and historic cherry wood cannon).
50 stotinki green (Bulgarian insurgent).
1 leva pale brown (Portraits of Vazoff in 1870-1920).
2 leva chocolate (modern portrait of Ivan Vazoff with autograph beneath).
3 leva purple (Vignettes of two buildings).

—Philatelic Magazine.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. has shown us an added value to the current set of the same type as the first three values. The color is bistre and the value 10h.

DANZIG.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 30pf stamp of Germany surcharged "Danzig" in black with the added surcharge "5" and two stars in each upper corner also in black.

ESTHONIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. has submitted to us a copy of the 25m blue and brown for chronicle.

FIUME.—We illustrate herewith the D'Annunzio set:—

GERMANY.—Mr. Benj. Cadbury has shown us the 1m and 4m stamps in the following colors. The first value is red-lilac and green, while the higher one is black and crimson.

MALTA.—Judging from the report of our Valletta correspondent, we fear that the Malta post office will soon be in a state of "philatelic prohibition," for, he says, they have completely exhausted their stocks of 2d, 2½d, 4½d and 2s stamps.—Stamp Collecting.

MOROCCO AGENCIES.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the current 10sh stamp of Great Britain surcharged in red "Morocco Agencies" at the top and "12 Pesetas" at the base of the stamp.

TONGA.—When we chronicled the new 2d adhesive we described the centre design (head of Queen) as being in black. The Australian Philatelist calls attention to the fact that, facing the light, the colour is more of a brown-black, akin to sepia. The back of the stamps, curiously, shows the centre a yellowish-brown. As the paper is thinner than that used for the late King's 2d, the pigments used can be plainly seen. The size of the new 2d stamp is ½ mm. wider (greatest width) and ¼ mm. longer than the King's 2d.

We have been informed that as soon as the stock of the various values with King's head becomes exhausted they will be replaced by those with the present Queen's head.—Stamp Collecting.

NEW ISSUE NOTES.

Bulgaria.—As foreshadowed in our last month's issue, the Commemorative stamps were put on sale on October 24th. They celebrate the 70th birthday of the Bulgarian national poet, Ivan Vazoff, and the 50th year of his literary activity. The following is a correct description of the designs on the various values:—

30 stotinki, red. The court of Vazoff's house in his native town, Sopot, and the wooden cannon used in the War of Independence in 1876.
50 stotinki, green. "Borimechkata," the name of one of the heroes of his novel, "Pod Igoto" (Under the Yoke).
1 leva, pale brown. Vazoff i 1870 and in 1920.
2 leva sepia. Ivan Vazoff's portrait and autograph.
3 leva, dull purple. Vazoff's residences in Philippopolis and in Sofia.
5 leva, blue. Otetz Paisi, a monk who wrote the first history of Bulgaria, and for whom Vazoff wrote a poem.

The stamps were sold out in a few days, but we have secured a sufficient number of the three lower values to include in our December distribution. The 2, 3 and 5 leva stamps are procurable only in very small quantities and at a high premium.

Danzig.—The Free State of Danzig was proclaimed on November 15th and the matter of a permanent issue of stamps is under consideration. Our correspondent informs us that notwithstanding the restricted sale to the public, the State has issued surcharged stamps with such success that a large reduction in taxation has been effected.

Fiume.—A set of four stamps has been issued to commemorate the first anniversary of the entry of Annunzio into Fiume on September 13th, 1919. The denominations are 5, 10, 20 and 25 centesimi, a total face value of 60 centesimi for which the Fiume Post Office has the audacity to charge 50 lire or 83 times the face value! Each set is struck on a folding card on which is printed a guarantee that the "stamps" are authentic and that only 2,000 sets were printed. Each stamp is obliterated "Posta Militare, Fiume d'Italia." So far as we can ascertain, they are only sold to the public in this condition, and therefore they cannot be regarded as postage stamps, and we do not propose either to catalogue or deal in them. They may be left for the enthusiastic Fiumaniacs to sell to each other.

Spain.—During the sitting of the International Postal Congress in Madrid, special stamps were issued, they are of large size, and bear a portrait of King Alfonso and a view of the building in which the Congress was held. The values are 1, 2, 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 40, 50 centimos, 1, 4 and 10 pesetas. The issue was a very small one, only 3,000 of the 4 pesetas and 1,000 of the 10 pesetas were issued. The stamps are available for use on both inland and foreign correspondence.

Trans-Jordania.—The "E. E. F." stamps have been overprinted with an inscription in Arabic only, signifying "East of the Jordan." The only values issued at present are 12,000 of 2 milliemes and 144,000 of 5 milliemes, but it is expected that other values will be issued. In each sheet of 240 there are two errors, two dots instead of one on the Arabic letter "nun" (the first in the inscription), the other has a dot over the second letter, "dal."—Whitfield King's List.

EXTRAORDINARY OFFERING 19TH CENTURY!

ight here in Longmont I have turned up a grand old Collection of 19th Century that, for FINE OLD Hard-to-Get Stuff, in SPLENDID condition, at medium catalog prices, :cels any collection of similar size and value it has been my good fortune to handle in my 25 years' experience as a dealer! While it doesn't contain the great rarities, it OES contain a most remarkable array of nice things worth from about 50c to $10 net, and over, that will make fine picking for even the most advanced collector.

In scanning this list you will no doubt be impressed with the number of specimens described as "fine", in fact the condition of the whole collection is most remarkably 1e and at the same time I am offering nothing but the CREAM of it, so I am not a bit afraid but what you will be pleased with any item, at the price, you may chance to 'der. An old time Collector and prominent business man of Longmont who disposes of this fine old collection to me, began to actively build it up away back there in the 'enties, when, he tells me, he "easily had the edge on all the other boys at school in geography, especially, because of his study of his stamps." He has added nothing to 1e collection now for over 25 years, and "having had his pleasure and profit out of the collection and not now having the time, energy or ambition to take proper care of it 1d bring it down to date," he consented to dispose of it. Order early and STRONG for I know of a certainty that many of the items offered on this page are practically nobtainable today in fine condition, if at all!

Cash orders given the preference—in fact, in view of the response I am likely to receive from this unusual offering the surest way to obtain what you want is to send check once and if I am sold out of any items you want, your money goes right back by return mail. WHAT ELSE CAN YOU USE? I may have it. If you want to dispose of ur collection or any good odd lots it will pay you to write me. The more valuable the collection, the more interest.

PALESTINE IN PHILATELY.

Both the government and the postage stamps of Palestine have changed in character, and the difference in the stamps is owing directly to the political change.

Palestine, for three years in the hands of the British military authorities, who occupied the land during the World War, has now achieved a civil form of government. It has become a territory, administered by Great Britain, with Sir Herbert Samuel as High Commissioner.

It was logical to expect that new stamp designs would be chosen. The stamps that have been current bear the initials E. E. F., which stand for Egyptian Expeditionary Force—Egyptian troops having occupied the Holy Land as the military representatives of Great Britain. With the inauguration of a civilian administration the Egyptian force retires.

For a number of weeks Zionist stamps have been heralded as about to appear in Palestine. Meanwhile The Companion has received from a correspondent in Jerusalem five varieties of the E. E. F. stamps, each one of which is overprinted three times with the word Palestine—Arabic across the top, English across the centre and Hebrew across the bottom. Three surcharged languages on a single stamp is unique in philately; moreover, as The Companion said on October 28, this is the first time that a postal product has been circulated with Hebrew characters as a part of the inscription. The characters stand for Erez Israel, or Land of Israel. The surcharging was done in Jerusalem on the printing press of the Greek convent. Although the overprints on the five varieties received are uniform, the correspondent writes that minor errors, such as missing dots, and so forth, are to be expected.

There is yet another novelty for collectors. It so happens that the surcharge color selected is black. But the 1 piaster denomination is dark blue, and on that color a black overprint does not show clearly. So for the first time in the making of surcharges a silver powder was utilized. It was dusted over the black overprint while the Arabic, English and Hebrew characters were still damp. Thus the surcharge on that value appears in silver. But how long will the surcharge last? Rubbed with the finger, the silver comes off in specks. And what effect will soaking the stamp in water have? If the silver imprint is worn off or soaked off, will the original black surcharge show? The circumstances make the 1 piaster stamp unusually interesting.

"Large numbers of these stamps are bought every day," writes The Companion's correspondent, "and collectors are trying very hard to complete their sets; but that is very difficult to do. There are great restriction on buying stamps of the lower values. In fact, it is impossible to buy any over the counter. All letters to be posted are paid for in full; then they are taken to the officer in charge, who places stamps only on those letters that are to go out of the city; all local letters are marked as having been paid for and thus are passed out without stamps. It is very difficult to get any of the stamps except from envelopes.

"The most difficult stamp to get is the 3 millièmes. Unfortunately, I have not been able to get one for myself. It sells at present at 35 piasters, which means that it will bring fabulous prices outside. It is rumored, however, that more of these stamps are to be surcharged, and the 3 millièmes can then be obtained easily. That certainly will be welcomed by stamp collectors, but I am afraid that a second overprinting is by no means certain."

Should a second overprinting be made, it will not be surprising if the surcharge differs in many ways from the first, so that collectors who have obtained copies of the first overprinting will do well to keep them. Avoid handling the silver-surcharged 1 piaster stamp and keep it away from moisture. The overprinted E. E. F. stamps comprise, undoubtedly, a provisional or temporary set, pending the appearance of distinctive Zionist stamps.

The 1 millieme, dark brown, 4 millièmes, scarlet, 1 piaster, dark blue, 5 piasters, orange, and the 10 piasters, ultramarine, are the five values sent by The Companion's correspondent. Orange is a new color for the 5 piasters, the color of the unsurcharged E. E. F. of that denomination being red-violet. It is understood from philatelic sources in the United States that the 2, 3 and 5 millièmes and the 2, 9 and 20 piasters have been surcharged also. Each overprint in English is in small serif capitals, with no period after the word Palestine.

Although silver powder has never before been used in making surcharges, both silver and gold powder have been utilized in printing the stamps themselves.. Honduras recently used them. —Youth's Companion.

A "LONDON SPECIAL" TRIBUTE.

By L. H. B.

From Managing Editor's note preceding the Editorial in the London Special for November 27, 1920:—"This issue is devoted particularly to exploiting British philately from the dealing standpoint and our readers will no doubt admit that we have done a very good job of it, etc."

It is frequently said of an individual or group of individuals that "they have outdone themselves." MEKEEL'S has outdone itself over and over again in regard to its special issues.

"See America first," the old tourist's cry. What human being with the living, pulsing desires of the true philatelist pent up within him could possibly read Mr. Fred. J. Melville's account of "A Philatelic Seeing London" without fairly itching to engage passage on the next trans-atlantic crossing the pond and go on an extended debauch of actually wallowing among these veritable treasure troves so alluringly described?

The writer has never considered himself with being possessed of a covetous disposition, but oh, for the combined rolls of John D., J. Pierpont and all of the rest!

Mr. Melville's descriptive powers portraying the philatelic treasures contained in these "shoppes" located in the land of "afternoon tea, spats and abbreviated h's", certainly borders on the satanic.

It takes very little imaginative power to feel one's self "over there," examining, gloating and yes—even sighing (for lack of the resources of the National Treasury) over these plentiful stocks (despite the cry of scarcity) of the older and much prized stamps of the so-called "classic period".

It is certainly a revelation to the writer that London harbors the multitude of dealers of the higher class that seem to abound there.

Methinks that many a "better half's" intended Christmas allowance will be shaved considerably owing to the attractive exchange value of the good old pound sterling and the splendid offerings made by these English dealers.

Now we are naturally wondering what as thorough a canvas of the New York dealers would disclose, by one who was equally familiar with them.

Must American dealers take second place?

A thorough perusal of this splendid "special" would certainly tend to increase the number of inmates in some of our various asylums and so-called "houses of observation".

After weathering the effects of this unlooked-for extra good issue, we'll now prepare to get ready for the next.

philatelic review of the calendar has for some time been an arduous but a pleasant one, undertaken by writer. Formerly it was for use by American Philatelic Service. This it will be for the Journal and will ar in the December issue.

est you think the task is a simple look back over the past ten months. e you obtained for your albums all he postal products which are of the age of 1920? If you have, you pos- a collection in itself and one that is orically interesting.

uring these ten months it is known more than 1,300 distinct varieties been issued. Many circumstances, ical, military, economic, have been onsible. This phase of the situation be touched upon in detail in the re- view to come. Watch for it. If you find it half as interesting to read as we shall to write, that will be our reward.

IN CHARITY'S NAME.

From Switzerland we receive a circular, with texts in French, Italian, Spanish, German and English, appealing to collectors the world over to send postage stamps, "duplicates, rare specimens and ordinary," to the office of the Save the Children Fund, Central Union, 4, Rue Massot, Geneva.

The Save the Children Fund, the circular sets forth, enjoys the patronage of the International Red Cross Committee of Geneva and has now the support of a special sub-committee organized by the Philatelic Union of Geneva. It is this sub-committee which is assembling stamps volunteered by collectors in all lands, the circular claims; to quote: "all arrangements—such as classification, division into albums, sales by auction, and the sale of ordinary stamps by weight, the formation of complete sets, the collation of wrappers and of old and modern envelopes, etc.—are in the hands of distinguished personages" in the philatelic world.

The purpose? To quote further:

"It is hoped by this effort to benefit the little sufferers who count hundreds of thousands, nay, millions, not only in Central and Eastern Europe, Italy, Armenia, etc., but also in the devastated areas of France, Italy and Belgium.

"All of you who collect stamps, give some of your doubles! Sacrifice them for this humanitarian cause of vital importance! Save thousands of children! This sacrifice will not detract from your collection, but will, on the contrary, add new glory to philately and philanthropy."

We have no way of determining the authenticity of this appeal. The circular alone was in the envelope; no letter with the signature of any one of the men behind the plans. The circular asks that all contributions be sent by registered mail.

NIPPON NEWS

A 15 sen airpost stamp for Japan may be in the offing. A clipping from the Japan Times says that official Japan looks with approval upon a suggestion advanced by the Yokohama Chamber of Commerce that an airpost be established between Tokio and Yokohama. A request for funds has been placed with the manipulators of the next Japanese fiscal budget. The plan is to have the Army and Navy air authorities alternate in conducting the airpost service, and that 15 sen be the special tax for prepaying postage on each piece of mail.

Japan's previous air mail labels, circulated in 1919, were used in only limited quantities and will never be common stamps. They are Japan's 1½ and 3 sen values of the 1914 series overprinted in red or blue with an airplane device.

GOOD PUBLICITY.

The Boston Transcript of October 13th and Philadelphia Public Ledger of October 10th each devotes a full page or more to an article written by George M. Emery, a Philadelphia newspaper man, about the recent find of letters bearing early U. S. Government and pre-Government issues—envelopes which once occupied the files of the law office of William M. Meredith, former Secretary of the Treasury. These letters were found in a house in Philadelphia and bore many philatelic rarities. Mr. Emery visualized the dramatic side of the discovery—and his article carried news value which appealed to editors.

In the New York Herald we come across special despatches relating to stamps—both from London. One alludes to Turkey's new adhesives and the other reviews the postal products of Latvia.

In the New York Sun we find an editorial, under the heading "Scraps of Paper", about "a bit of gossip from the European auction rooms"—the big price paid recently in Paris for the 1847 Mauritius. Now it is obvious that this editorial was written by one who knows little about philately; he may once have been a "boy collector," but we doubt even this can have been true. He says for example:

"The long-pursed philatelists are fewer in number, perhaps, than the collectors of other rarities."

Our memory cons the list of wealthy collectors we know, and know of, in America—and the conviction is that the writer of the editorial should do a little research work.

The editorial goes on to discuss the likelihood that the Mauritius stamp—"this small package of arbitrary value"—will "find its resting place" in an American collection. The surmise is offered that it will. The editorial dismisses the subject with this thought:

"As to the justification for such collections, that is matter for the philosophers."

And not, we might add, for newspaper editorialists who are ignorant of the philatelic law of supply and demand and of the increasing investment value of the stamps of nations.

PHILATELIC PROPAGANDA.

By ROLAND S. ST. PIERRE.

The war and its philatelic after-effects have brought thousands of people to join the already large throng of stamp collectors. The newspapers, especially during the last two years, have been more than kind in the publicity they have given our hobby. But there cannot be too much of this sort of thing, and while their interest is aroused is the time to keep both the public and the press on the go. Strike while the iron is hot, you know. Incidentally, tho the stamps of the Armistice period were far-reaching in their effects, there are still more people than you would suppose who never heard of philately in the real sense of the word. Of course a lot of people 'save stamps'. But we want more than that.

So it may not be out of place just at this time to suggest a few things that cost the collector little effort and are far-reaching in their publicity results. They may be used by the clubs in the larger cities as well as the collector individual in the small town, tho the former are already doing much along this line and this is really intended for the latter.

There are several ways to go about getting philatelic publicity and its consequent benefits to yourself and your hobby. Two principal things to bear in mind at the outset are that almost any drug, stationery or department store, etc., are glad to get something unusual to attract attention to their windows, and you are the man who should have that something ready for them.

Get a couple of sheets of the Latvia war-map stamps, they are cheaper than wallpaper just now—and mount them on black card-board about twice their size, one card showing the face and the other the back or map side of the sheet. On the third card print a small description of the issue, mention that it is from your collecton, and name a dealer, with address, where like stamps may be procured. This is important, as without the dealer there would not be much collecting started. A gem like this display has been known to get the poor collector a month's extension of credit on his bill at the drug store to whom he loaned the three cards. And the exhibit was the center of all eyes during the week it was on display in the showcase. Who knows how many have begun collecting from that tiny incentive?

There is another great field for propaganda, and certainly the most productive one as far as the younger generation and a lot of the older generation are concerned. A few frames of interesting stamps mounted about the "Y" office has been the nucleous of at least one stamp club. MEKEEL'S publishes a very fine little booklet, the "Charm of Stamp Collecting", which can be bought by the hundred for a nominal sum, and distributed to the boys at the "Y".

The local Sunday School is another place. Perhaps you teach a class of little boys or know of someone who does. If you work up a stamp club on the side and have the boys meet one evening or so a month at your home, you will soon see the money that has been going to the blood-curdling movie serial, and the cigarette money, and all the other wasted money, going for stamps that will educate the boys and be of permanent worth to them—and to you, for you are going to get an immense amount of fun out of it all.

There are many interesting stamps among the recent issues, and where possible these should be used, for they are more liable to arouse interest. In the window displays and the "Y" try the Latvia cigarette paper and bread ticket paper stamps along with the war-map issue already mentioned. Then there is that hideously fascinating Hungarian-Bolshevic issue, and the Polish Paderewski set. "A thing of beauty and a joy forever" is the New Zealand Victory issue. These and many more immediately suggest themselves. For the first meeting of the stamp club open your own albums to some of the South American countries, and beautiful pages, such as Bosnia and Roumania in the 20th Century. Remember that looks attract at first, afterwards will be plenty of time for an introduction to your Cape Triangles—if you are so fortunate as to possess a few.

Then there is the idea first employed, I believe, by one of the Rexall Stores in New York. They pasted a stamp from each of the New European countries to the show window, with a streamer going from each stamp to the country that issued it, on a large map which hung in the case. Be sure in carrying out any of these ideas, that your local paper carries a little write-up of the event. You will find the editor glad to get the material, and it sure looks good in print.

And so on, endlessly. You will find it really a lot of pleasure to start others on the road to a collection, and you will be doing your bit for both the present and future generations of Philatelists.

VERY SPECIAL!!

U. S. Departments, Etc.

I have just received from my buyer in England the following list of Fine old Departments, etc., which I offer at the following Special prices for early acceptance; could get better prices for these in the regular way but in making these special prices I expect to make new customers. There are quite a few fine and hard-to-get items in this list—likely something for almost any collector, as certain values of these old Departments are very, very scarce in fine condition.

Under this agreement, if the countries actually sign, domestic rates of exchange will prevail on letters, post cards and printed matter between th following countries:

United States, Spain, Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cub Chile, Dominican Republic, Ecuado San Salvador, the Philippines, Guat mala, Hayti, Honduras, Mexico, Nicar gua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Urugua and Venezuela.

LONDON SPECIAL ERRATA.

Ernest Harmer of Harmer, Rooke Co. calls our attention to the fact th there are two mistakes in the Londo Special in connection with the busine write-up of the firm. The article me tioned 600 sales and 300,000 lots, wh the correct figures are 1280 sales a 500,000 lots.

There was a mistake in the advertis ment of Leonard Gill, where a 6 pen and 1 shilling Cape were advertised "fair" instead of "pair". We publi the two offers herewith as corrected: Cape 1855-8, 1s deep green, pair,
Cape 1863-4, 6d mauve pair

Mr. Gill's address is 62 Strand, Lo don.

By JOSEPH WARD.

BAHAMAS.—The 1920 peace issue of s British West Indian possession dis- ys as a part of the design the seal the island and is therefore a "ship mp." On the left is the head of His jesty, surmounted with a crown and ibbon on which one notes the words eace Peace". On the right, at the , is the seal, while at the bottom is ablet which bears the value. A spray palm leaves droops over the tablet. ahamas Postage" is at the bottom in traight border.

BRAZIL.—The 1920 Brazilian stamps of five types. Aviation, industry, roads and ocean travel are displayed these 1920 labels. The latter type is ued in two values, 600 and 1,000 reis. e design pictures a female figure inging at the right; at the top is, rasil Correos." Through an open ice at the right a steamship is visible, senting port side bow. At the bot- n is the value expressed in numerals a tablet. The Portuguese word AVEGACAO is placed at the bottom.

CENTRAL AMERICAN STEAMSHIP CO.— is local issue was made up of three lues, 2c carmine, 10c blue and 50c colate brown. The design, like a d many other locals, fakes, etc., was rather pretty affair, intended to take eye of philatelists. In the centre, a shield-like frame, a steamship is ible, probably one of the Central Am- can Company's vessels, steaming vards the right. At the sides is a palm e, the top of which extends over the p.

COOK ISLANDS.—The bi-coloured picto- l stamps of Aitutaki, Niue, Penrhyn and, and Rarotonga issued in 1920 had en looked for for a long time, but en they did arrive philatelists noted ur separate sets for the group com- nly known as Cook Islands, one set r each island!

The centre designs in all four sets are e same, with the frames differing ghtly. The colors are different for ch set. Owing to U. P. U. regula- ns, the "ship stamps" (one half penny d one penny values) have retained eir standard colors, though the shades differ slightly.

The one-half penny stamp pictures the rival of Captain Cook in 1773. A land- g beneath a group of coco palms is own. A brig and mountains are seen the distance. This scene seems to ntradict historians, who declare that aptain Cook had two ships.

The one penny shows a wharf at which moored a two-mast schooner and a rkantine. On the beach in the fore- ound is shown an outrigger canoe.

THE PILGRIM POSTAGE STAMP.

I met the Mayflower sailing
Upon a penny sea;
The doughty vessel hailing,
I asked what news might be.

"Affairs are going badly,"
The woful Pilgrims cried,
"And we are thinking sadly
We never should have tried.

"No longer are we chipper,
And heavy are our fears;
With Burleson for skipper
We may not land for years."

DEATH OF EDWIN R SLATER.

On Sunday, Dec. 19, Edwin R. Slater, a widely known collector of New Haven, Conn., passed away at the age of 77 years. He suffered a paralytic shock on the previous Thursday and did not regain consciousness.

The sudden demise of Mr. Slater is a severe blow to philately in New Haven, he being one of the charter members of the New Haven Philatelic Society and probably its most enthusiastic member, rarely missing a meeting where he was found full of ardor and encouragement to the younger members.

Mr. Slater was a collector of the old school, nothing of a philatelic nature escaping his attention. His accumulations of cancellations, Civil War covers, tax paids, and oddities of all kinds were of large proportions, and he took the greatest pleasure in assisting others in starting their collections of these "side lines."

A collector since boyhood, Mr. Slater's enthusiasm and interest in collecting never declined, and his example will be long remembered by those who knew him. He was in the employ of Sargent & Co. of New Haven for over 50 years and a prominent member and worker of the Methodist Episcopal Church.—E. A. YOUNG.

WRINKLES FOR THE BEGINNER.

By SERGT.-MAJOR E. C. SAUNDERSON.

The more one learns of the "hobby of kings" the more one realizes that it is the "king of hobbies." The tyro cannot do wrong at the very beginning by being omnivorous, and regarding everything as fish which comes to his net. Never discard a stamp with a cursory glance, and say that you've got it, because the chances are that you haven't. The purpose of these few notes is to show the recruit in the ranks of philately a few of the more obvious cases where a stamp is not always what at first glance it appears to be.

By a study of the catalogue, you will see that some countries issue the same set of stamps in several succeeding years with different gauges of perforations. These include Austria (issues of 1858, 1864, 1877, 1883, 1890, 1891, &c.), Portugal (1870, 1880, 1882, 1887, &c.); while a closer scrutiny will reveal others.

Again, in other cases, the (apparently) same stamps appear in different issues with different watermarks. Examples: British King Edward Colonials with Crown CA and M. Crown CA; also Queen Victoria Crown CC and Crown CA.

Another type is where the same designs appear first in bi-coloured and then in uni-coloured garb. British King Edward Colonials may again be cited here.

Then comes the case where a similar design occurs, with some minor feature added or left out or altered. From a study of the stamps of Russia (issues from 1889), it will be noticed that "thunderbolts" were added to the design of the first issue over the "post-horns."

In the Swiss stamps of 1907 (2, 3 and 5(c) values), it will be observed that the "bowstring" appears under, and in the 1909 issue over, the shaft of the "cross-bow," which is held in the right hand of William Tell's small son.

Germany, issue of 1875.—The values appear as so many "pfennige," whilst in the following issue (1880) the final "e" is left out, and they appear as "pfennig." In the issue of 1900 the label under the design of Germania is "Reichspost," which in the succeeding issue (1902) becomes "Deutches Reich," the designs and colours being otherwise the same.

CANADIANS

My last offer of Canadians still holds good. Since it appeared, I have secured a very fine copy of No. 2, vertically laid, $32.50; a very fine copy of No. 8, unused, $15.00; and superb used, $10.00; a decent copy of No. 12, $3.00; and about twenty copies of No. 20 at $1.00 to $1.50 per copy, according to condition; also a large number of the commoner items. I can fill most Canadian wants. Will you not give me a trial?

ANDREW SLEDD DECATUR, GA.

ALTERED INSCRIPTIONS.

China.—The stamps of 1896, printed in Japan, were inscribed "Imperial Chinese Post," while the succeeding issue, printed by Waterlow, in London, were "Chinese Imperial Post." In these cases, however, there can be no mistake made by the observant, since the designs are different, although somewhat similar.

SPANDRELS.

U.S.A., Issue of 1890.—No "spandrels" in the upper corners. In 1894 the same designs were utilized, but with "spandrels" added. In this country the diligent will also discover that stamps of the same design appeared on different occasions with colours changed.

HIRSUTE AND "HOWLER."

Chili.—Until the year 1905, all the portraits of Columbus were shown bearded, but someone then discovered that the great navigator used a lather-brush and razor, for on all succeeding issues he appears clean shaven! Speaking of the discoverer brings to mind the celebrated "howler" on the stamps of St. Kitts, wherein he is depicted viewing the New World through a telescope. Columbus died in 1506. Galileo, who invented the telescope, was born in 1564!

DIFFERENT "CACS."

Norway.—On the stamps of 1872 to 1883, the name of the country was executed in "sans-serif" capitals. In later issues the "serifs" were added to an otherwise similar design.

Hungary.—Issue 1887-1898, in seven values, there were two printings. In the first, the coloured cross lines of the flap of the envelope were over the figures of value. In the second, the lines are under the figures.

Japan.—Look out for the microscopical overprint for "Japanese Post Offices Abroad" on the issues of 1900 to 1907.

SHAFTS AND POLE.

Transvaal.—In the 1894 issue, the wagon in the coat-of-arms is depicted with shafts, which is altered in the 1895 issue to wagon with pole.

In some of our colonies, certain issues bear the word "Postage" twice, which is altered in the next issue to "Postage Revenue". Seychelles, British Solomon Islands, and St. Helena are cases in point.

BACKGROUNDS, &C.

The stamps of Queensland well repay a very careful investigation. Similar designs appear first with shaded, and then with blank, backgrounds. Figures of value is no corners, then the top two, and finally in all four corners.

West Australia.—The 2d yellow first appears inscribed "Twopence," and afterwards "Postage Twopence," under the design.

Many a stamp can be added to your collection at little cost, and without specializing, by going in for ranges of shades.

There are many other wrinkles which can be gleaned by keeping your eyes open and studying the catalogue, and there is no need to be frightened by the above notes, which are not intended to check the ardent enthusiast in his pursuit of pleasure and recreation, but rather to add to his joys of discovery.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Missed—Not a few collectors who saw the Pilgrim stamps for the first time discovered the absence of the name of our country on them. Though this omission is an unusual one, certainly it was not thought that it had any vital significance. However, a correspondent writes that he has heard that the "necessary alterations" will be made on the stamps and he writes to ask if we have heard anything about the change proposed. We have not, but we are writing for information from headquarters.

Japan—In a letter from Prof. F. C. Middleton, Tokyo, he says: "The other day, in one of Tokyo's 500 book shops, I picked up a copy of 'Postage Stamps, and Their Collection,' by Oliver Firth, London, 1897. I have found no large stocks of stamps in any of the Tokyo dealers' shops. On the whole, the stamps are high-priced, but occasionally one can pick up at 50% a stamp that is worth catalogue. Tokyo shops are an endless delight. There are book shops, stamp shops, ivory shops, print shops, lacquer shops, china and cloissené shops, fish shops and camera shops by the hundred."

Hidden—In an account of the proceedings at a meeting of a stamp club in England, the words are used: "A stranger coming into the room would have been surprised at the laughter produced by some of the stories told under the guise of philately." We have the warmest feelings towards the chap who essays the role of a philatelic patter comedian and we rejoice when he brings down the house. Still, these remarks do not make any too happy an introduction to the paragraph that has come to us: "I would defy the stranger at the meeting of our stamp club to tell what sort of a crowd we were, unless he should try to hit the mark by saying a meeting of Potterites. The members do not talk of stamps, they do not show stamps, and as for your vaunted 'buy, sell and exchange,' if a stamp actually should be sold or exchanged, the consternation would be equal to that created by Oliver Twist, when he asked for 'more.'" While we may give a mild tee hee at this, the picture, we are sure, is too harsh a one; but if there is any place where the exclusive stuff is out of place it is at a stamp meeting.

Auction—In sending a copy of the subscription form and circular of the forthcoming sale "in one of the rooms of the head-office of the postal department," Weltevreden, Dutch East Indies, on March 1st, 1921, Mr. Lowell J. Ragatz, says: "With the North Borneo, Mozambique, etc., companies; and the Liberian, Australian, New European, etc., countries catering to the stamp trade, there should be no shortage of wholesale stocks. This catalogue makes good reading. The lots certainly are carefully divided,—some philatelist must have had a hand in the business. Well, when a colonial government (or any government for that matter, that has idle officials in need of something to do and has to count its pennies) has a chance to rake in a few honest shillings, why shouldn't it? Some years ago, I got a similar catalogue from a country that I do not recall just now. I remember it because it listed such lots as 75 of the one cent, U. S., 1902, etc., used, although there were other lots that were of good kind." We who want stamp collecting to be generally "recognized" certainly have no complaint, but rather have commendation, for the governments that dispose of their retired or obsolete stocks of their country; and as for disposing of the used stamps that come in the regular course of business, the post office department is emulating the big firm that disposes of its stamps similarly, to the highest bidder.

Closed—The change in watermark of the British colonial stamps marks an epoch and down the philatelic corridors of time, the bell is heard that sounds the knell of one era and the beginning of another. We probably said something much on this order when we learned that the old crown and CA watermark was to be superseded by the crown CAC design on the stamps of the British colonies. The retirement of the multiple CA marks a completed section of philately; and though it seems but a short time ago that we were discussing the effect of the replacing of the crown and CA with the multiple CA watermark, in reality the time was over fifteen years ago. In a circular to his American new issue subscribers, Mr. Hugo Griebert of London says: "I have just been informed by the Crown Agents for the Colonies that owing to the 'dandy roll' used for the manufacture of the watermark for the issues of British colonial stamps, postage and revenue, being completely worn out, it has just been decided to manufacture a new roll bearing the imperial crown and the letters CA (crown agents) in script capitals, as the old roll has been destroyed. The introduction of the new watermark will be slow, of course, until the remaining stocks on hand in the colonies either are sold out or destroyed; and so collectors need not fear a glut of new issues all at once." The Bermuda commemorative set is the first example of the new watermark as we all know. From a philatelic angle, the new watermark may be the means of making a multiple variety here and there particularly desirable through some unforeseen combination of circumstances. We believe that the impending increase in the number of British colonial stamps available for collecting will be welcomed by those who are interested in British colonials.

Tabooed—A questioner asks if the government may with impunity break its own laws; and while we do not think that the fate of nations hangs on the answer to the following inquiry yet we are curious if the "gov'munt" takes its own medicine. The government photostats all its deeds, etc., for its files and of course, in doing so, the revenue stamps on the instruments are photographed and kept in the office of the adjutant-general.

Confusing—Our remarks on the version of "Domestic Postage Rates," as rendered by the stamp booklets to the effect that the first class postage is one cent for drop letters has brought us a number of letters on the subject, with all sorts of comments. We are interested in what Mr. H. M. Southgate, Chevy Chase, Maryland, has to say: "A recent issue refers to the one cent rate for drop letters as shown in the current 25c booklet of one cent stamps. The last two series of booklets, issued since early 1918 have all shown the rate for a drop letter as one cent less than for other first-class mail. On writing the postmaster general about a year ago on the subject, I was referred to the Postal Guide, which shows two rates for 'drop letters', i. e., regular first-class rates where mail is delivered by carrier and now, one cent, where there

Watchers—We wish that all collectors would consider themselves guardians of the philatelic faith who stand ready to buckle on the armor of truth at any time and run full tilt against misrepresentations of philately in public print. To us it seems that no avocation has been garbled so much in the outside press as philately; but we suppose that the followers of other similar pursuits have complaints on the same score. Some professions, cults or clans, have a standing committee whose duty it is to refute misinformation affecting their interests that appears in the press, and they accomplish their ends so appealingly in cases that an attraction is felt towards the objects of their solicitude. At present when there is so much publicity bestowed on collecting, it is fitting that the inevitable mis-statements be nailed on the door of fact. We think that there well could be a sort of sub-committee of the publicity committee of the American Philatelic Society, appointed to attack error of the kind. Here is a job at hand: vide Dr. Miles' Almanac, 1912, (Elkhart, Indiana) p. 22: "The Postage Stamp made its first appearance in 1839. Its invention is due to Jas. Chalmers, an Englishman. The first stamps for public use were issued in England in 1840. A year later they were introduced into the United States."

Lacking—Christmas Island in the south Pacific may be entitled to its stamps and there is no disposition to belittle the postal necessities of the atoll, ninety miles in circumference, the abode of copra workers and pearl fishers. Poe mentioned the island in his gruesome Pym narrative, if recollection serves aright, a fact that shows that it was attracting notice one hundred years ago or soon after its discovery in 1777 on "the night before Christmas," by Captain Cook. What we rise to remark is that of all the deserving stampless islands, the Marquesas have first rank; and we predict that the fame cast on them by O'Brien through his "White Shadows in the South Seas" will bring to the fore the stamp deprivation in question.

Lapse—A correspondent writes that he is surprised that the silver surcharge, in addition to the two others on the E. E. F. stamps of Palestine on the one piastre, did not occasion some comment from us. We dislike to disappoint expectations, but no quip or quiddity comes to the surface. The use of silver powder for a surcharge is a novelty, and some of our printers can tell us that a neat job of silvering the ink is not the easiest of accomplishments. We have read of "golden stamps" and at any rate, we now have the double standard.

Travel — When Brigadier-General Bandholtz, U. S. A., went around the world some years ago, he sent us a pictorial card from each of the different countries at which he had occasion to stop. In their aggregate, the cards made an interesting philatelic and pictorial representation. Now, Mr. C. F. Adams, who is sojourning in the West Indies off the beaten tracks, is recording his itinerary with us by sending striking covers with their stamp combinations. In this connection we want to thank scores of friends of the paper all over the world for holiday favors in the shape of cards, and even more substantial messages.

E. T. RUSSELL.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

This adhesive is an upright rectangle of the standard 1c size and in many respects resembles the match stamp used by W. E. Doolittle in Ohio at the same period. The die of the Russell stamp was approved six weeks earlier than that of the Doolittle but the latter adhesive was issued nearly a year sooner than the Russell because, for some reason now unknown, fourteen months elapsed between the date of approval of the Russell die and the issue of the stamp.

Collectors will note the similarity between the arrangement of the inscriptions, the ornamentation and other features on the Doolittle and the Russell adhesives and readily may believe the Doolittle stamp was designed by laying the Russell on its side and then merely changing the portrait and the wording of the inscriptions.

The Boston Book states:—

Die approved, Dec. 11, 1865.
First issued, Feb. 9, 1867.
Last issued, January, 1872.
3,182,500 issued on old paper.
66,000 issued on silk paper.
210 stamps per sheet, (14x15).

"Mr. Russell evidently sold out to one M. B. Lane, as all orders and correspondence were in the latter name during the latter part of the life of the stamp."

The stamp was engraved and printed in Philadelphia by the Carpenter firm and exists on the varieties of paper used between 1865 and 1872. The medium thick soft paper of 1870, which may or may not contain a few tiny silk fibres, seems to be the commonest, and most of these specimens do not show any of the silk fibres. Copies on the thin old paper are scarcer but the hardest variety to find is the full silk paper of the second issue. This paper was in use only about six months while the stamp was current and the small number issued on it—only 66,000 stamps—reveals why this variety is frequently missing in collections. Seemingly, it should be even scarcer than it really is.

In 1886 the old paper cataloged 25c; during the '90's it was 20c; from 1900 it was 10c until the present quotation of 15c became effective in 1910. A fine copy is certainly cheap enough at full catalog. The silk paper was quoted at 30c and 25c from 1895 to 1905, but in 1906 somebody woke up and the price was raised to $1. Fine copies are seldom obtainable at that figure.

The Russell factory is listed in the village of Burrageville, township of Ashburnham, Massachusetts, in 1865. Ashburnham is on the Fitchburg Railroad about 60 miles northwest of Boston. For several years the Russell factory was a competitor of the match factory operated by George Farr in Athol, Mass., some 15 miles farther west. A stamp collector who lived in Ashburnham when a boy informed the writer several years ago that the Russell factory was destroyed by fire and that he bought all the Russell matches he could find in the surrounding towns in order to get the stamps. Probably a considerable part of the present supply came from those taken off the original boxes by this collector, and quite possibly his boyhood thirst for stamps prevented the Russell stamps from becoming much scarcer than they are

BILLS MUST BE PAID THE 20TH

We are very much gratified at the responses made by nearly all our advertisers to our appeal for payment of bills for advertising on presentation. There are, however, a number of advertisers who are not complying with this rule, and we have only one recourse left, and that is to place a time limit of the 20th of the month for payment of bills. At that time we shall be making up the forms for the first issue in the following month and advertisers who have not paid their bills will find their advertising held over pending settlement of account. The object of this rule is plainly apparent, and if it had been in force a year ago it would have saved us some unsatisfactory experiences with Pamunkey, Gearhart, Ledbetter, Genwith, Adamson and some other names more or less familiar. Will advertisers please take note?

DECEMBER 21, 1620

On that day, history tells us that the Pilgrims landed and we find the event pictured on the 2c Pilgrim stamp recently issued. Three hundred years later on December 21, 1920, we celebrate the event and I have just exactly 40 covers cancelled on that day bearing copies of the complete set of Pilgrim Stamps. The issue was really placed on sale on Dec. 21st, although some few were sold in Washington the evening before. While these 40 covers last you may have one at 30c. Could you devote a page of your album to anything of more historical interest?

Those belonging to my new issue service had blocks of the stamps mailed to them on that day and of course I placed a set on each cover. What other NEW ISSUE SERVICE offers such individual attention? I am working and planning to furnish you with every item likely to prove of interest. If you do not belong to the service you better send for a bulletin.

Not having A Large Capital invested in the business and carrying stamps as a side line only means that I have No Overhead. My stock being turned over fast means that I am in a position to pay top notch prices for fine U. S. collections and am able to turn them over without putting a living profit on the transaction. What's the answer? Whether you sell or buy U. S. stamps write me. A few U. S. Collections at $200 to $1500 wanted.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—The Pilgrim stamps have now been pretty well distributed throughout the country. The Post Office tried its best to see that all sections were supplied in such a way that each could place them on sale about the same time. As far as I can learn, however, a number of offices placed them on sale on December 21st. although some few were sold at the Washington office the evening before. Most of the newspapers carried an item regarding them and Mr. W. W. Randall sends a clipping from a New York paper calling attention to the fact that they do not bear the wording "U. S. Postage." So far I have seen two very distinct shades of the 5c, one being in a very deep indigo and later a bright blue. As these are all from the same printing, it is quite likely due to the inking of the plate.

Several weeks back mention was made in the Chronicle of the fact that it had been learned on very good authority that the current 2c engraved stamp existed in a tete bache pair, that is, inverted in its relation to the next stamp. Later, while at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, I was informed that although a search had been made no such plate was located. As no one was known to have definitely seen such a pair, the natural conclusion was that no such animal existed. Mr. Eugene Klein now informs me that he is just as positive that such a variety exists as he can be, although he has not seen it. He states that he was told by a collector in whom he has every confidence that a Brooklyn collector. equally responsible. advises that he has a block. In addition, a business man of Philadelphia of the highest integrity, informs Mr. Klein that he himself returned to the main Philadelphia office for redemption a pane of one hundred of the 2c stamps, showing three copies inverted. He especially remembers returning the stamps because of the defect. This information is given as a matter of record and it is hoped that if any of our readers should be so fortunate as to actually find the stamp that they will let us know. From letters received it is known that hundreds of post office clerks as well as collectors have gone over many sheets, but none as yet seem to have been rewarded for their search.

While on a recent visit to the Bureau I made inquiries regarding the 2c stamp, placed in an inverted position on the plate, and learned that while they have gone over a great number of plates they have not as yet discovered such a variety. The information first came from a source that has always been considered reliable and rumors reached me from several directions. I have never seen the variety, know no one who has, but heard a gentleman with the Edgewood Stamp Company remark while I was recently in their New York store that he had seen a block but did not remember who had it. I am of the impression that his memory serves him falsely, for I now begin to doubt the existence of the variety. Numerous readers have written regarding the stamp and I might mention that if it is finally found, full information with the plate number will be given at the earliest possible moment in MEKEEL'S.

Mr. Warren G. Ogden sends for inspection a most interesting cover showing two copies of the 3c 1857, one copy bearing a cancellation of "Saint Louis, Mo., Oct. 19, 1859", and the second copy "Templeton. Mass.. Oct. 27". The odd part is the fact that the letter was addressed to a party in Albany by one in St. Louis and it is hard to account for the extra copy cancelled in Templeton, for the letter shows no evidence of being reforwarded.

Your editor had the pleasure of recently inspecting what is perhaps one of the most select collections of United States stamps ever gotten together. Just think of one collection showing two Alexandria's on cover. one being the unique copy on blue paper, a 10c Baltimore "Buchanan", the finest of the three copies known, a unique pair of the 5c on cover, several singles on cover, besides most all of the Baltimore envelopes. A Millbury, two Brattleboro's one mint and the other on cover, reconstructed sheets of the three states of the plate of the Saint Louis Bear stamps, including three wonderful copies of the 20c, three copies of the Providence on the cover, two covers each with strips of four of the 5c New York, an irregular block of three of the same stamp, the nearest approach to a block known, two copies of the "R. H. M." on one cover and a reconstructed sheet of the New York composed entirely of horizontal and vertical pairs. While speaking of this stamp, it may be well to mention that this collector has demonstrated conclusively that the previous students of this stamp are absolutely in error as to the number of stamps on the sheet. There are ONLY 40 stamps on the sheet and as he has overlapping pairs for every row both vertically and horizontally, there can be no doubt. I do not believe that this information has ever been published before, but it has been known for some time by the later students that this was the case.

In the 1847 issue we find several strips of the 5c and a wonderful mint block of six of the 10c, two covers each with strips of five of the 10c and another with both a strip of five and one of three, all of the 1851 issue, including a perfection block of ten of the 12c, a block of four of the 10c on cover, a mint block of the 10c 1857, type I. showing the recut, most of the others in blocks, all of the August issue, blocks of the 3c pink and scarlet, all of the embossed of 1867, including the 5c and 30c grilled all over, the 1869 in different sized blocks, two 15c inverts, 24c invert. two 30c inverts, including a wonderful mint copy. All of the 1870-79, including the special printing in bot the hard and soft papers, all of the r issues, a block of the 8c Omaha pa perforated, a block of four of the Pan-American invert, singles or bett of the other inverts, a block of four the 24c aeroplane invert, etc. I ha just hit the high points, but it can imagined from this description wh some of the lesser lights might be. T unusual thing about this collection is t fact that its existence is not general known and very few collectors ha been privileged to inspect it.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.—Another com memorative stamp has been issued—th time to celebrate the triumph of Gener Urquiza over General Mitre at Cepa in 1859. Urquiza has already twice be honoured with his portrait on posta stamps—it appears on the ½ centa blue, of 1888-90, and on the ½c ultr marine, of 1889-90. This is the gentl man who, born in Entre-Rios in t year 1800, was President of the Arge tine Confederation from 1853 until 18 He was the richest landowner in t State, and one of the most modera leaders of the Federal Party oppos to the preponderance of Buenos Ayr He was assassinated by one of his aide de-camps, Juan Pablo Lopez, in castle of San José, in 1870.

The stamp before us is of the fa value of 5c, and is in greyish-blue, wi profile of the General looking to le flanked by upright branches of laur The inscriptions are: "Republica Arge tina", in a curved band at top, belo which is the date "11 de Noviembr with "1859" and "1920" respectively the left and right ends of the scr containing the uppermost inscriptio Under the portrait are the words "Ca itan General Justo José de Urquiz with value, "5c", in small tablets in t two lower corners.

This newcomer is on Honeycomb p per, perf. 13 and we are much indebt to our Buenos Ayres correspondent, M J. A. R. Smithson, for a copy. It w

MESOPOTAMIA (Iraq).—Dr. G. Jameson Johnston, President of the Irish Philatelic Club and Exchange, writes: "I have just received from Iraq some of the 'On State Service' stamps, among which are the ½, 1½ and 12 annas, which I have not previously seen noted." —Stamp Collecting.

SWITZERLAND.—Our correspondent, A. Koechlin, sends us a set of the new Pro Juventute stamps for 1920. The series consists of three stamps, each showing cantonal arms and each value selling for 5 centimes more than the nominal face value, 7½, 10 and 15c, respectively. The 7½c has the arms of Schwyz Canton, the 10c Zurich and the 15c Tessin. About two million of each kind were issued and the stamps were sold at the post offices during December only, and have a franking value to April 30, 1921. We are indebted to the Economist Stamp Co. for submission of a set for our examination.

TURKEY.—The new Turkish stamps, printed as before by Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., may be distinguished from the former stamps of the same designs by the colors (and values), but the 10 paras of the new issue is in green like the old one. The I. B. J. gives an easy mark for distinguishing the two: on the new one the toughra lacks the small inscription at its right, and there is no ornamented bar under Postes Ottomanes. —Albemarle Stamp Collector.

A PILGRIM SET RUMOR.

Just as we go to press we have received a telegram from Wm. W. Randall of N. Y. City. He reports that there are good reasons for believing that the P. O. Department will recall the entire Pilgrim Tercentenary issue, for the reasons that the words "United States", as well as "Postage", were omitted from the design of the stamps. We have received no word from any of our Washington patrons that such a move is contemplated.

—Are the 6, 16 and 24c aeroplane stamps for sale at any post offices in the U. S.? Information will be gladly received at this office and published for the benefit of our readers.

MARIENWERDER.

These stamps, one of the many Plebiscite issues, naturally have an interesting history, and a few notes about them may be of use to those who collect these much debated scraps of paper.

The Commission was appointed to decide whether the area should remain German or not, and consisted of one representative each from Great Britain, Italy, France, and Japan. The United States, not having ratified the Peace Treaty, was not represented.

The Marienwerder stamps were issued on the authority of a Protocol drawn up in Paris, and approved by the Peace Conference, for the guidance of the various Plebiscite Commissions arranged by the Peace Treaty.

The stamps were for all postal purposes, and replaced ordinary German stamps, which were in use up to March 12th, 1920, and which became valid again on August 17th, 1920.

The Plebiscite held on July 11th decided that the area should remain German.

The stamps were for all national and international services.

The first issue was lettered "Commission Interalliée Marienwerder," and consisted of fourteen values printed in single colours, with the exception of two in bi-colour. They were on sale from March 13th, 1920, and the number printed was 6,000,000. The values issued were 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 40, 50, 60, 75pf and 1, 2, 3, and 5m, the 1 and 5m being printed in two colours.

Owing partly to delayed arrival of these stamps, which were printed in Italy and were only received in batches, partly to increase in postage in Germany which was adopted by the Plebiscite Commission in Marienwerder, and partly to considerable demands of continental collectors, the supply of these stamps ran short, especially the higher values, and it became necessary, as an emergency measure, to overprint, locally, German stamps for immediate use. Several colours were tried for the overprint, but ultimately black was chosen.

Ten German stamps were thus overprinted with—

"Commission
Interalliée
Marienwerder."

The ten stamps so overprinted and the numbers of each are as follows:—

5pf green,	20,000
20pf blue,	45,000
50pf carmine & blk. on buff,	2,000
75pf green,	60,000
80pf red & blk. on rose,	10,000
1m carmine,	6,000

As the supply of these was soon exhausted, the difficulty increased, and it became necessary in June to overprint and surcharge the following German stamps:—2pf, 2½pf, 3pf, 7½pf, as follows:—

1m on 2pf, grey,	20,000
2m on 2½pf grey,	30,000
3m on 3pf brown,	20,000
5m on 7½pf orange,	25,000

In the meantime strong protest had been made by the Poles that, while the German name of the seat of Government, Marienwerder, was printed on the Commission stamps, the Polish name for the town, Kwidzyn, was not given, and it was consequently decided that the last issue of the Commission stamps should be printed

"PLEBISCITE
KWIDZYN."

This issue consisted of 5,000,000 stamps, printed in similar colours to the first issue. The higher values were on sale from July 12th, and the lower values a week or ten days later.

Before this last issue of Plebiscite stamps had arrived the stock of higher values had become so low that it was arranged with the Government Stamp Factory in Berlin to supply 100,000 of each of the four following values—the only stamps the Berlin Government was able to spare, as the adoption of an entirely new issue was under consideration:—1m, 1m 25pf, 1m 50pf, 2m 50pf.

These stamps were overprinted "Commission Interalliée Marienwerder," in larger type than was used in the local overprint. This enables the two overprintings of the 1m to be distinguished. These stamps were received in July, and were placed on sale at the end of the month. When the Commission left Marienwerder on August 10th almost the whole of these 400,000 Berlin overprinted stamps had been sold.

Instructions were given, both by the Commissioner and by the Minister of Ports at Berlin, that none of the Marienwerder stamps referred to were to be used after the departure of the Commission, and the Director of the International Bureau at Berne was informed that none of the Commission stamps would be used after August 16th, 1920.

There was a great demand in Germany for all the Marienwerder stamps, and people even went so far as to send bricks by post to obtain the stamps.

The first and last issues, "The Lady with the Flags," were printed at Milan, Italy, as the President of the Plebiscite Commission was an Italian connected with Milan. No post cards were issued; blank post cards had to be used and adhesive stamps put on.—Stamp Collecting.

HINTS ON WRITING ADVERTISING COPY.

Our printers are very desirous that certain fundamental principles shall be observed in the preparation of advertising copy. It will greatly facilitate the work of producing the WEEKLY if the following rules can be observed:

(1). Use one side of the paper only and use sheets of uniform size. Do not take any piece of waste paper that may happen to be at hand.

(2). Send typewritten copy if possible. Don't use lead pencil!

(3). If not typewritten, use ruled paper or line out so that linotype operator can follow along the descriptive matter and price.

(4.) Write your advertisement entirely apart from other communications. Be sure and sign your name and address.

(5). Bear in mind that the linotype operator is not a stamp collector and is entirely unfamiliar with philatelic terms. If *, o. g., Cat., or perf. are to be used, have the abbreviations written so that they will be plainly understood. Take pains with your adv. copy and have it neatly prepared.

(6). Don't throw your copy together carelessly, relying on chance and the proofreader that things will come out O. K. When you spend money for advertising, get your money's worth by taking pains in the preparation of your copy.

(7). Adv. copy must be in Wednesdays to use ten days later.

Bargain Sets on Approval

For the general collector who likes the short and low-priced sets of 20th Century, the new issues, war and plebiscite stamps, several attractive books of sets have been added to

Bill's Blue Books

My customers tell me I am selling these at rock-bottom prices. I try to include only the more desirable items. Frequently they buy 75% of the book, so I must have the right stamps at the right prices. Why not see for yourself?

Of course, I have plenty of 19th and 20th singles, too. Few rarities, but an excellent line of medium priced stamps.

PRECANCELLED NOTES.

The Precancel Gazette says that the Bushnell catalog does not agree with the market prices of precancelled stamps. Well, that statement will fit in well regarding the many speculative precancels that have been foisted on the collectors before the advent of the catalog, but from now on it will be mighty hard to fool the collectors, if my friends will tip me off regarding any stamps that have a speculative tinge.

Very few airplane or victory stamps can pass clean when the real facts of their issue are known, and I have the inside on about all that have been issued. The latest offender is Detroit, Mich., with the 6c, 16c and 24c airplanes, all of which are speculative and cornered. Six hundred of the 6c were precancelled with Type II and a sheet of each of the 16c and 24c were precancelled with Type I, both reading down, These last two are held at 75c and $1.25 each, a disgusting holdup in the full sense of the word.

The airplanes are being offered precancelled East Pittsburgh, Pa., but at the present writing know nothing of their status.

The St. Paul, Minn., victory and airplanes are all entirely speculative, none ever being used for postal purposes to my knowledge but all cornered and held for speculation.

A little publicity on this speculative phase of the game will soon eliminate this practice, especially after somebody gets left with a mess of them on their hands.

I have always advocated eliminating this speculative stuff and will continue to advise my readers to collect the legitimate precancels only.

If Brother Dickey hasn't my photograph I will be glad to send him the picture of one collector who is only interested in the airplanes that are really legitimate; and, by the way, this doesn't include the Newton 16c airplane or any other precancel that was precancelled by favor.

Don't worry about the Danbury, Conn., precancels being scarce, but just turn to my advertisement, that I start this month, and buy them if you want them, and a fair price at that.

It is a question as to whether the New York City post office is still using three-line type or has gone back to the old Universal Type I. I am getting more of the latter now. I have a large stock, however, of the three-line type both normal and inverted and will offer them for sale in the list now being prepared.

Speaking of the list of single precancels offered, I want to call the attention of everybody that there is no one in the country who has a stock to compare with mine, and when the list is completed many thousand items will be offered to you.

In reply to the many inquiries as what I will pay for speculative precancels, will say that I will make a standing offer of twenty-five per cent. over face and will be willing to resell same at double face. That's all they are worth at that.

Newton, Iowa, is the latest new town to my knowledge using precancels. I have the 1c, 2c, 3c, 4c, 5c and 10c. I also have a few double and inverted, which always occur in these rubber roller overprints.

The reason why so many dealers don't have the commoner varieties of the precancels is because they won't buy anything but the odd values that have a ready sale. I buy everything because I am building up a stock of these precancels.

I don't get the drift of the "Obsolete Precancel Discovery," in the Precancel Gazette. What does Brother Mertz mean? He can't really intend to have us think that the precancels noted are really rare. If he does, I want him to know that I have more of them than I will be able to sell for a good many years to come. In many cases my stock numbers up in the hundreds. While the other dealers have been dealing in quick sellers, I have been quietly buying a few here and others there until I have a good stock of practically all the early old values of the common varieties.

In making up the list of single precancels I am listing everything of which I have five or more. Please order at once, and if you don't, then wait until the next list comes out. This will insure you getting what you order as most of these items will move fast, as they have never been offered before.

In order to increase my varieties I will be glad to exchange any precancel that I have in surplus for those you have to trade in lots of 10 or more. This for mutual benefit.—Bushnell Magazine.

CHRISTMAS STAMP GAMES.

We received many interesting entries in our "Xmas Games" Competition, and though the majority of them were only philatelic adaptations of existing games, they should prove attractive in their new guise. Space only allows us to give abbreviated particulars of a few of the games suggested, but our readers will be able to amplify them and possibly improve upon them as the result of actual play. We shall be glad to hear the result.

In Stamp Solitaire, stamps gummed on card take the place of marbles. If correctly played, the surviving stamp is the one by which the game was started. For Stamp Ludo an ordinary Ludo board is required with squares at intervals labelled "Accident," "Shipwreck," "Skirmish," "Strike," or "Great War." Each player has four stamps, the designs being chosen to represent "King," "Navy," "Army," and "Commerce." Proceed as in Ludo, "Kings" starting first. If a throw of the dice brings "King" on to an "Accident" square, he must wait till a six is thrown before proceeding, while other counters are held up similarly on squares marked with appropriate misadventures. "Great War" squares hold up any counter till six is thrown. Counters falling on squares already occupied are not in any way affected by this. First counter in if "King", takes "King" stamps as prize, "Naval" counter "ship" stamps, and so on.

Philatelic Ambition is an adaptation of "Snakes and Ladders." A board is prepared with 100 numbered squares on which illustrations of stamps are stuck in ascending catalogue value. At intervals stamps are marked with an "F," signifying "forgery." Counters proceed in turn the number of squares indicated by a throw of the dice, and a counter landing on a "forgery" square is sent back 10 squares. First counter to reach square 100 wins. (This game would be improved if common stamps were stuck on the squares, with illustrations of rarities ("R"), or forgeries ("F") at intervals, or the letter "R" or "F" would be sufficient. Arrival on an "R" would send the counter forward ten squares, while "F" squares would carry a penalty, as before).

Other games require a pack of Philatelic Playing Cards, consisting of stamps mounted on stout paper or card of the size of ordinary playing cards. The normal pack consists of stamps of 13 countries, four different stamps from each country. On each card the description of the stamp it bears and (smaller) of the other three stamps of the same country, may advantageously be written. With such a pack games like "Snap," "Happy Families," "Old Maid," and others, may be given a philatelic turn. Stamps for the pack should be carefully chosen to give the maximum of variety and interest. A painstaking propagandist might add descriptive notes on each card. For "Beggar-My-Neighbour" (alias Strip-Jack-Naked) stamp cards of four countries must be given the respective values of the aces, kings, queens, and knaves of the ordinary pack.

"Full Sets" is a game for three or more players, and is played with a pack of stamp cards similar to that already described but consisting of sets of eight different stamps of each of six or more different countries. Cards are dealt to the players in rotation till the pack is exhausted and the game starts as in "Happy Families" by the player on the left of the dealer asking any other player for a card of a set of which he already holds at least one card. So long as his demands are successful he continues asking any player for cards, but if a player cannot supply a stamp for which he is asked, he, in his turn, has the privilege of asking. As sets are completed they are "declared" by being laid on the table. As soon as a player has exhausted his cards by delivery to others or by "declaring," he is out of play for the current round. The novel feature of this game is introduced by giving sets of Allied stamps various values in points and penalizing the holder of the complete German set 20 points, or each holder of individual German stamps at the end of the round 3 points per stamp. Points are reckoned up when all profitable sets are declared.

With the normal pack of stamp cards Stamp Auction may be played. Each player is given the same number of counters and the cards are dealt, any complete sets being laid down by the holders. The player on the left of the dealer offers for sale a stamp he does not require, giving some indications of its design, continent, or other details, but not a full description. Players who think they may require it to complete a set bid against one another in counters, the highest bidder securing the stamp. The player on the left of the original seller now auctions one of his stamps and the game continues on these lines. The player declaring most complete sets wins the game. Additional interest may be imparted by adding duplicates to the pack, which will annoy the bidder who secures them.

Another Stamp Exchange game is played much in the same way, but without any indication of the character of the stamp offered. All players start exchanging at once and (if the roof holds up) the winner is he who has most different stamps at the end of a given time.

A rather more elaborate game is "Complete Your Sets." Here (for four players) four different countries are each represented by six different stamps mounted on small cards. Four cards are also required, each having six spaces, numbered in rotation from 1 to 6, 7 to 12, etc., and each set of stamps bears numbers corresponding to those on one card. A cardboard disc divided into 24 spaces, similarly numbered, and provided with a pointer spun by hand, is also required. Each player is given a card and the set of stamps bearing the corresponding numbers. The pointer is spun and the owner of the stamp bearing the number it indicates lays it in the corresponding space on his card. If the same number is spun again, the stamp must be removed, to await another lucky spin. The player who first fills his card is the winner. This game should specially appeal to ex-Service collectors who still have tender memories of "House"!

We must abbreviate a competitor's scheme for Stamp Dominoes. Here sets of stamps (say 24 in each) of as many different countries as there are players, and each set containing stamps of as many different face values as possible, are shuffled to form a pool (mounting or gumming on cards is helpful here). Each player takes an equal number of stamps, and the first to play lays down any stamp, adding to it above or below other stamps of the same country in ascending and descending order of face value. When he has thus laid down all he can contribute to the first "ladder" the turn passes to the next player, who must add (or interpolate, though our reader does not say this) any stamps he can to the original ladder, always in correct position as regards face value. If he cannot do this he may start a fresh ladder, with stamps of a fresh country, or duplicates of those in the first ladder. The third player thus has two ladders to add to, or the privilege of starting a third if the first two are useless to him. It seems to us that the weakness of this game in actual play would be the advantage it gives to the later players, but perhaps this would not be so very great. The winner is, of course, the player who first gets rid of all his stamps.

Several Guessing Games were suggested, one being the familiar "Odd or Even," another to guess the number of stamps contained in a given pattern or figure laid out on the table, after an instant's glance, while the third consists in guessing which country is best represented in a pinch of mixed stamps.

Suggestions for Philatelic Jig-S were frequent, the usual scheme b the formation of complete stamps f a heap of stamps cut into halves quarters. A variation consists in gu ing what stamps were employed in formation of a freak stamp made bits of several different ones. task outlined was the forma of a picture by gumming bits of c mon stamps on a piece of paper, on lines of the masterpieces somet shown at philatelic exhibitions.

The Pelman Game was another vourite. Here players are given p and paper and asked to write dow many of the stamps as they can member of an assortment show them for a short time. Other g with pencil and paper consist in swering various questions re known stamps; making a list of as r bird, ship, or other stamps of a ticular group of designs as possib numbered slips or "blanks" from a hat, the numbers receiving the prizes. Again the newest of New Europes may be drawn from a hat, the drawer being allowed to keep his stamp if he can name its country, otherwise it is returned to the hat.

Among miscellaneous efforts we may mention Identifying Stamps by a glance at their backs, or, for juniors, at their face after the name of the country has been blacked out. Sorting Competitions in which each competitor has to get as many different colours, catalogue varieties, or countries, out of a given number or weight of mixed common stamps, are numerous. Stamping the Letter consists in fitting cards on which are written fictitious and humorous addresses, together with the town of origin, with the correct stamps for the postage, chosen from a mixed heap on the table. (Our reader does not say how the correct postal rates are to be decided. We ourselves should not like the task, and in the present chaotic condition of the foreign exchanges we have had to rule out many games which take account of comparative face values.) Pinning the Page shows originality and should appeal to collectors who know their "Gibbons." Competitors are asked to insert the point of a pin between the edges of the leaves of a given country in "Gibbons" Part I or Part II. The competitor getting nearest to his "point of aim" secures the prize. When readers have tried to find "Suez Canal Coy," or "Scarpanto" by this method, they will appreciate the thrilling nature of the game. Even if their knowledge of "Gibbons" is good their lack of skill with the pin may negative this advantage.

Our own contributions to the Christmas festivities are two. In Philatelic Pigtails each player is provided with a pigtail composed of common stamps threaded on cotton and pinned on to the coat-collar or top of the dress. The winner of the game is the player who succeeds in breaking the greatest number of pigtails by the use of his teeth alone, the use of the hands being forbidden either for holding or impeding the other players or for touching the pigtails. A player whose own pigtail is broken retires from the game. (We take no responsibility for casualties or breakages due to this game!)

For Stamp Crackers pairs of players purchase jointly pairs of stamps with zigzag perforations. Jugo-Slavia, Greece, or Greek Thrace, will furnish examples. The rarer the stamps the greater the sporting interest. Each player takes hold of one stamp of a pair between the thumb and forefinger and, at a given signal, all give a sharp tug. Whatever remains in the hand of each belongs to him. A sharp tug may give the winner one and a quarter stamps, but boldness on the part of both will probably result in an equal distribution of the pair of stamps.

As we go to press a reader sends us a suggestion for a game on the lines of the well-known "Book teas." The labels worn by the guests at a philatelic tea represent some well-known stamp, and each guesses the stamps represented by his fellows. In the examples forwarded by our correspondent the 1d, lilac, G. B., with 14 dots, is represented by a right angle composed of lines containing 14 dots; "12d" represents (if our guess is correct) the twelve pence stamp of Canada; while "108" in the lower curve of a circle stands for the 108 paras, Moldavia, and so on. For purely philatelic gatherings this game should have considerable success, if the designs and other indications were carefully chosen and well drawn. Even the meetings of our societies might be enlivened by an occasional bout of guessing.

In conclusion we would thank our readers for their interesting efforts in this competition. Those who have failed to gain a prize will at least have helped their fellow-collectors to enjoy what we all wish one another "A Merry Christmas."—Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Circular.

CHAPTER XI.

1914 Issue; Rotary Press, Watermarked Single Line U S P S.

I described in great detail in a previous chapter the Rotary Press which had been designed by the Mechanical Expert of the Bureau of Engraving, Mr. Benjamin R. Stickney. These presses which are generally referred to as the Stickney Rotary Presses, were first used for the printing of tax paid stamps and it was not until the spring of 1914 that they were used for turning out postage stamps. The plates for these presses are laid down in the same way as the plates for the flat printing, the only difference being that after the plate is completed, it is curved so that it forms a semi-cylinder. Two such plates fitted together form a cylinder, whose continuous rotation prints the roll of stamps. It must be remembered that in curving these plates, the stamps for the endwise coils are lengthened, while those for the sidewise coils are widened. As a result, stamps produced by the rotary presses vary in size from those of the flat plates. This fact has given some the impression that the rotary press stamps are all from different dies, which is not the case.

All plates for the sidewise coils have 170 subjects, while those for the endwise coils have 150. This means that one complete revolution of the cylinder in the first case produces 340 stamps, while a revolution of the endwise coil plates produces 300 stamps. On all of the sidewise coil plates we find a plate number in the upper margin only over the ninth stamp. There are other markings on some of the plates, peculiar to the way in which they are produced and these will be described later. In the endwise plates the plate number is on the right side. The plate numbers in both types, however, are supposed to be trimmed off before the finished coil reaches the public, but on rare occasions it partly shows on badly centered coils. There are no guide lines on any of the coil plates, but where the two plates are joined a recess occurs which takes up ink and impresses on the sheet what appears to be an intentional guide line, and these of course are found on the completed coil. In the case of the sidewise coil, this line is seen after every seventeenth stamp, and in the endwise coil after every fifteenth stamp. Paste-ups or joints only occur where the coil has been torn apart accidentally, and consists of a piece of manila paper gummed, which joins the tear.

In this process the stamps are printed dry and the sheets are not moistened as is the case in printing from the flat plates. As a result, there is no shrinkage and this also has its influence on the size of the stamp. Stamps from the rotary presses have a soft appearance which will distinguish them at a glance. All stamps turned out from these presses so far have been perforated 10, with the exception of a few delivered in an unperforated condition. In this chapter we will cover those watermarked U S P S in small single lined letters.

It may be of interest at this point to mention that in printing these coil stamps that there is quite a little waste and the Bureau now utilizes this by perforating the sheets the other way and producing the well known compound sheets of 170 stamps, perforated 11x10. This salvage, however, was not started until after the watermarked stamps had been discontinued the first rotary compounds being issued to the New York Post Office under date of June 14, 1919. So far there has been no salvage of waste from endwise coils.

The watermarked series consists of the endwise 1c and 2c and the 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 cents coiled sidewise. Only one die each was used for making the 1, 3, 4 and 5 cents denominations. These were the same dies used for the flat plates. As a matter of record, these last four dies bear the Bureau's numbers 521, 441, 442 and 443, respectively. In the case of the 2c, however, five separate and distinct dies were used. The first 2c rotary plates were laid down from a transfer roll taken from die No. 427, which is the 2c die of the 1908 flat plate issue with the value reading "TWO CENTS", there being no figures. Three experimental sets of plates consisting of two per set were made from this die the plates bearing numbers 5675-76, 5680-81, and 5691-92. Stamps from these plates never reached the public, and if they should ever find their way out, they could be considered as nothing more than proofs. The first die to be used from which stamps in their finished state were issued, is die No. 534. This is the 2c die with the figures and was used for making the 2c issue, designated in Scott as issue of 1912, but by the Bureau as 1911. I might mention in passing that the dies were started in 1911 hence the Bureau knows them as the series of 1911. The finished stamps, however, were first issued in 1912 hence Scott is correct in designating them as issue of 1912. This die we designate as Die I and the same die was used for both the flat plates and the early rotary plates. It was found that this die did not produce the desired results in the rotary press, consequently a new die was engraved especially for the coil stamps and this, which we designate as Die II, bears Bureau No. 605. After this second die had been used for some time, it was found that an improvement could be made, so another die was especially engraved for the coil stamps and this Bureau die No. 611 we know philatelically as Die III. It was thought that the Bureau could save considerable time in laying down the plates from a multiple transfer roll from a multiple die, hence a new die consisting of six subjects in a vertical row was made. This die was made from No. 611 just described and although I studied the proof most carefully, I cannot see that it varies in the slightest from the master die, hence the finished product from this Bureau die No. 619 is also known philatelically as Die III. Five plates were made from this die bearing numbers 7616, 7617, 7621, 7636, and 7637. Plate number 7616 was an experimental plate of sixty subjects and was never used. The other four plates were all of 170 subjects and were certified and put into use. It will therefore be seen that we have three die varieties to be distinguished one from the other.

In describing the plates in an early paragraph of this chapter I mentioned that they showed one plate number each. In addition, some of the later plates of the 1c and 2c denominations not only had the plate numbers, but other markings besides. I refer to the small open star, somewhat larger than the star on the flat plates, which is to be found in the margin directly above the first stamp in the first row, in addition to certain plate classification marks reading "S 20" "S 30" and "S 40". These marks are found in the margins of the sidewise coil plates directly above the tenth stamp, that is the stamp to the right of the plate number. They appear on the sidewise coil plates only, the open star however, appearing on both the sidewise and endwise.

The 1c stamp is known in the "S 30" classification only, while the 2c plates were made in the three classifications, namely "S 20", "S 30" and "S 40". It seems that when the first plates were made for the rotary presses they produced impressions wherein the border or frame line was entirely too heavy to give the finished product the appearance desired. This of course was due to the frame line in the die being cut entirely too deep, resulting in these lines in relief on the transfer roll extending out too far. The Bureau of Engraving and Printing attempted to remedy this by cutting down this portion of the transfer roll 20 per cent, and plates from these rolls were marked "S 20" and known as "S 20" plates. The stamps from these plates still showed a frame somewhat heavier than desired and the transfer roll was then cut down 40 per cent and plates laid down from these rolls were marked "S 40". They now found that they had cut away too much, and in order to strike a happy medium they decided that about 30 per cent would be correct. This time instead of cutting down a transfer roll from the former die they made an entirely new die wherein the lines were not so deeply cut and this gave the desired result. These plates were marked "S 30".

The "S 20" and "S 40" plates were made from transfer rolls from die No. 605, which is philatelic Die II, consequently all stamps from these plates are Die II. I have studied quite a few of these stamps and so far have been unable to definitely distinguish between the two. Some appear with lighter frame lines; but this does not necessarily distinguish the "S 20" from the "S 40", for I have seen blocks known to have come from sheets of the former in which the depth of color varied, due no doubt to the inking. The "S 30" stamps can of course be distinguished, for these were from the new die No. 611, which we philatelically designate as Die III. Plates for the 3c, 4c and 5c coils had been made previous to this experimenting and as there was so little demand for these values, they did not deem it advisable to make new ones. Later on, however, an increased demand for the 3c denomination made it advisable to make a new 3c die, but this was after the watermark had been discontinued, so the variety will be described in the next chapter.

It now becomes necessary to distinguish these three 2c dies one from the other. While there are many differences between them, there are three things that will distinguish them without difficulty.

Die I: In the first section of the curled ribbon directly above the left figure "2" there are two diagonal lines. In the second section of the corresponding curled ribbon over the right "2" there are also two lines. The large white lock of hair in front of the ear is formed by the termination of the many lines of the face. In the large lock of hair back of the ear we find first a short colored line, then a long one.

Die II: In the two ribbon sections described above we find two diagonal lines. The lock in front of the ear is formed by one heavy colored line which stands out distinctly. The lock in back is similar to Die I.

Die III: In the two ribbons described above there are three diagonal lines. The large lock of hair in front of the ear is formed by one heavy colored line which stands out distinctly. In the lock of hair in back of the ear there are two lines of equal length.

MAKE STAMPS SHOW WHAT'S INSIDE.

By RING W. LARDNER.

Mr. Warren G. Harding, Marion, Ohio. Dear W. G.: About 2 wks. ago I wrote you a letter applying for the position as secy. of state in your cabinet and haven't recd. no reply to same but from what I been reading in the papers it looks like you had made it up in your mind to give this position to either Chas. Hughes or Eli H. Root. Well, W. G., I haven't nothing to say vs. neither one of these men and believe they would both make you a good man as Eli has held the position before wile Chas. mind should ought to travel right along with yours as he was president himself a whole night.

I would prefer secy. of state, why if you have got a man in mind for that position, why I would just as leaf take one of the other places like for inst. post master gen.

Now I know that some of my enemys will probably tell you that I am not eligible for this portfolio as I once served on a turn as substitute mail carrier in Niles, Mich. and know something about how the mail service should be ran, but between you and I, Gam, I don't recall nothing about the ins and outs of the business and as far as technical knowledge is conserned I would enter the new birth with that blank mind so necessary to a cabinet member.

But I have got some idears in regards to the improvement of the P. O. dept. and while I think the present incumbrants has made a start, in the right direction, still I don't feel like he has grasped all the possibilitys. Like for inst., if another war come up in France and our boys was sent over there and their wives and mothers mailed xmas presents to them, why instead of dumping all these packages on a ship bound for Honolulu I would open them up at Hokoben and have a rummage sale and send a certain per cent of the receipts back to the wifes and mothers to keep them going till the war dept. got around to sending them part of their last April's allotment.

But the thing I would get after is our stamp system which it looks to me like it was one of the silliest things connected with the govt. As soon as you promised me the portfolio I would go right to work and get up some stamps with some sense to them. Like for inst. instead of a picture of a boy riding a bicycle on the special delivery stamps, I would have a picture of the Shamrock 3 or a flivver with a wheel off.

It is my idear that the stamps that is used the most oftenest like the 1 and 2 cent stamps should ought to have a picture on them that will give the person to who the letter is addressed some sort of a hint as to what the letter is about, so as if they are not interested they don't half to open the letter. Of course if you write to somebody to inform them of the demice of some relative or friend its O. K. to use one of the present stamps with Washington's picture or some other party that's dead.

But the most of the stamps would half to be brand new, with photos on them to fit all the different kinds of letters. For inst. I would fix it so that when you wrote a letter that you thought was comical you could buy a stamp with Charley Chaplin's picture.

When you sent a person the monthly statement of what they owed you, the stamp for it would have a picture of some famous man named Bill, like Bryan or Hart or Sunday or the kaiser.

If you wrote a letter enclosing some money the stamp would be a picture of some notorious Jack, say Dempsey or Pershing or Barrymore or Jill's husband.

A invitation to a party would be stamped with a picture of the Haig boys or Mr. Volstead, according to the party.

A invitation to a wedding would have on it a design of a minister holding a $20 tip in his mitt.

Also I would make it compulsory for people that wrote and asked you to dinner to buy one or two styles of stamps, either with a picture of a man in a dress suit or a picture of a man in his own clothes, then they wouldn't be no argument about what you was suppose to wear.

Love letters would be stamped with a photo of a movie actress, according to how much you dast say in them.

After I had ran the dept. a wile and they was a big surplus on hand I would go a step further than the above and introduce a stamp system which I have always thought it would be ideal, namely to have every letter stamped with the picture of the party who the letter was for and also a picture of the party that wrote it. In this way you wouldn't half to open practically none of your mail. And suppose you met the mail man on the st. and he recognized you from your picture, why he could say:

Wait a minute, I have got a letter for you and save the trouble of going to your house. As for the picture of the sender, I would have it made a criminal offence for say a concern like the gas Co. to get you to read their mail by stamping it with a picture of another movie actress.

In the case I found it impossible to carry out my idears in regards to stamps for a wile, I would put in effect a temporary scheme that would be a trouble saver, namely, I would have the clerks in the P. O. open up all your mail and if they thought they was anything in it you might like to know they could call you up or wait till you dropped in the P. O. some time and tell you about it.

I would also abolish the dead letter office though they tell me it never done such a big business as lately, but I can't see no reason for having it. My idear is that if the person who a letter is addressed to can't be located, why, send it to some poor family that don't get many letters.

I wished you would give me a whirl at this portfolio, W. G., as the more I think of it I like it even better than secy. of state because stepping into some men's shoes is like following Nora Bayes on a vaudeville bill, but this will be like going on after Geo. Devine the juggler, but any way if I don't hear from you one way or the other in a few days I will think they must be something wrong with the postal service.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, BALLSTON LAKE, N. Y.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Herman W. Boers informs us that Howard Beck of Baltimore was a recent visitor in Detroit, looking up his old stamp friends. Mr. Beck was one of the organizers of the original Detroit Philatelic Society. Mr. Boers also states that Z. Dworkovsky, former president of the Michigan Stamp Club, has returned to Detroit after spending some months in Europe. Our Detroit correspondent writes us that we have made ourselves solid with the local fans by combining two numbers and thus catching up with Father Time.

—An advertiser returns to our columns this week who was with us in 1915, Victor G. Loly of Ocean Park, Cal. In the year named he was at Anaheim, Cal., and discontinued the use of our columns through enlistment in the Canadian army. His service took him to England, France, Belgium and Germany. He is secretary of the Collectors' Club of Southern California and is well recommended to our readers.

—After some years' absence from our columns as an auction dealer, Bertrand L. Drew announces this week that he will soon resume his popular sales. Mr. Drew established himself in 1885 and for many years his sales ranked with the best. If you are a buyer at auctions you will do well to be placed on his list. In a letter just at hand Mr. Drew writes:—"I am well satisfied with the results from my recent large advertisement."

—The Firelands Stamp Co., advertising with us this week will be a new firm to most of our readers. It has been formed by consolidating the stock of the Ohio Stamp Co. of Norwalk, O., with that of Malcolm Brothers, and commodious offices have been opened in the Link Block at Norwalk. The firm will carry a complete stock of collectors' supplies and provide an approval service of the higher grade stamps.

—Carle H. Schafer, who runs a book plate advertisement in Adlets this week, can give satisfaction. We know, because with his advertising copy he submitted a specimen of his work. If at all interested, give him a chance to furnish a piece of his work for that album of yours.

—"The article by R. S. St. Pierre states that his stamps are mounted on the right hand page, but I have found the left hand the better, as every stamp is flat when the next page is turned. This is a suggestion to beginners which should be helpful. I commend the article in question except for the one instance to which I refer."—E. R. UNTHANK.

—A. E. Tuttle, 1510 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa., will be very grateful to any one of our subscribers who can assist him in reaching W. Hinzenberg, Tiflis, Caucasus, Georgia, Russia. The P. O. Department returns correspondence marked "There are no means available for transmission of this article to destination." The Hinzenberg letter came through the British Consulate at Batoun, via London. Mr. Tuttle tried to return it through the British Consul at Philadelphia, but the commission was declined. Possibly some subscriber on our foreign list can help Mr. Tuttle.

—"MEKEEL'S No. 1565 just at hand and note in my Ad that Portugal is numbered 162-160. This should be No. 162-169. The error is undoubtedly mine but it may prove misleading. The catalog value and net price are correct. I might add along this line that I have had no cause to complain the way my ads are handled, in fact it is gratifying to feel that numbers and prices are so correctly listed in a work where errors can occur so easily."—C. A. GREEN.

—We have received a clipping from the Newark (N. J.) Evening News sent in by C. M. Breder, stating that C. G. Dietrich, our former Nutley advertiser, has suffered the loss by fire of two barns filled with hay, farming implements, etc. His horse and cow were rescued.

—"I am very well satisfied with results to date, of my half page in New Year's issue. Orders have reached a little over $100 up to time of writing, which is better than I had expected in such a short time after appearance of the paper. Reprints of the ad were received yesterday and are very good."—GEO. T. MOON, JR.

THAT REBUS.

About every other reader of the paper took a whack at the rebus, conceived by Mr. Hunt, that appeared in the London Special issue. Entries were as numerous as the vice-presidents of a trust company, as F. P. A. would say. We nearly turned in a riot call several times, and after making our announcement we shall catch the first fast freight out of town. Mr. Hunt's imagination got us in hot water, and the imagination of some of the solvers made the chills creep up our backs. We cannot hope to placate the frenzied philatelists who gave us the letter shower. Carl Bergh invoked the divine afflatus for eighteen stanzas. He began:

"The first explains how dry I am,
And yet I think it's French Sudan."

The picture of the fishes, number 7, construed as Finland, was entitled Selangor by one contestant, "judging from the expression of the faces of the poor fish." As for 17, the Oliver Twist picture, a number had it Hungary and Sirmoor, instead of Samoa; and either of these is a good solution.

Here is Mr. Hunt's list, which we must accept arbitrarily:

No. 1. French Sudan. (Camels typical of Sudan and R. F. show that they indicate the French Republic.)
No. 2. Leeward Islands.
No. 3. Hamburg.
No. 4. Canton. (Building or tower has a cant on.)
No. 5. Benadir. (B and a deer.)
No 6. India (In "D" R.)
No. 7. Finland.
No. 8. Boyaca. (16 chains=1 acre.)
No. 9. Ceylon. (Seal on envelope.)
No. 10. Niue. (Letter E is "nigh" the letter U.)
No. 11. Basle. (Pronounced Bale.)
No. 12. Cucuta. (Letter Q cut A.)
No. 13. Tobago. (Arrow points to Bag O.)
No. 14. Grove Hill.
No. 15. Cordova. (Cord over letter A.)
No. 16. New Republic. (Empire has gone; it's a new republic now.)
No. 17. Samoa. (Oliver asks for (some) More.)
No. 18. Chile.

One entrant diving deep under the surface said that No. 3, Hamburg, was representative of the creation of Chile (con carne). Another called attention to the "A09" postmark (Nevis) on the Ceylon cover as misleading, and indeed we cannot enumerate the bills of exceptions. It is comforting to shift the responsibility on the shoulders of Mr. Hunt.

The stickers were Canton, Niue and New Republic. Only a few had them right.

The winners are:

W. A. Jorgenson, 436 Highland Ave., Kearny, New Jersey, 14 points.

George D. Chase, Orono, Maine, 13 points.

J. J. Prendergast, 23 Saxton Ave., Dorchester, Mass., 13 points.

The following had 12 points each:

Philip Hazelton, Dexter, Maine.; R. McReynolds, 1641 Cook St., Denve Colo.; Frank C. Clark. (Signature be deciphered.)

The following with 11 points each a given honorable mention: E. F. Grove 45 Alder St., Portland, Me. J. E. Ha denburgh, 6 Park Place, Newark, N. T. H. Ames, 71 Christopher St., Mon clair, N. J. H. Spayth, Box 93, Wi liamsville, N. Y.

EVER-CHANGING PHILATELIC MAP.

By BILL BLOSS.

In digging through my archives recently, I came across a copy of Scott's catalog for 1910, dog-eared, frayed and with back torn. I hailed it as a friend of olden days, for when it was in its prime, had I not consulted it day and night? I noted the marks indicating the stamps in my first general collection (there has been many since, some more valuable, but none so dear to me). Then, I spent some time in comparing prices with the present day list, and perhaps a few minutes in wishing that I had retained some of the treasures I had parted with, and which have increased so much in the past decade.

Comparing the two volumes, one notes that while the 1910 book listed the stamps on 798 pages, the present book requires 1198, or about 50% increase for the ten years, against the period of seventy years from 1840 to 1910. Truly, this past decade has been a busy one for the stamp hunter! It is little wonder that a prominent dealer is offering reservations in the Philatelic Ward of the new German institution with every general album.

But it is not the purpose of this article to hark back to the olden days. Let us, instead, look to the present, and seek the cause of the extra four hundred pages.

We will find it as the outcome of the recent scrimmage which has so thoroughly disrupted the map of Europe, or of the world in fact, and has brought to light so many words and phrases, hitherto little used.

When we made our first collection, the good old school geography was all the text book we needed to locate the birthplace of our pets. Nowadays, the collector who cares to know where they come from must subscribe to a monthly map service, and spend long and tedious hours hunting.

One of the commonest questions heard in stamp circles to-day is "where is ————?" And few can answer.

A few months ago, after the armistice started the printing presses whirring, we began to receive stamps from Latvia, Esthonia, Transylvania, Ukraine, Barat, Ararat and Muskrat!

Then, to make it harder, some joker discovered in the Peace Treaty, that certain territories were to hold "plebiscites", and another source of philatelic goat-getters was created.

Referring to the Encyclopedia Britannica, we find the word "plebiscite" referred to as follows:

"(Lat. plebiscitum, a decree of the plebs) a term borrowed from the French for a vote of all the electors in a country taken on some specific question (see also Referendum). The most familiar example of the use of the plebiscite in French history was in 1852 when the coup d'etat of 1851 was confirmed and the title of emperor was given to Napoleon III. In Roman constitutional law, the plebiscitum was a decree enacted in the assembly of the plebs the comitia tributa, presided over by a plebian magistrate."

Of the doings of the Romans, we care not at this time. Since philately was in its very infancy in 1852, the French overlooked a bet.

But the wise Pleb of to-day was on the job. Knowing the sensitive feelings of the people, and also having in mind that the philatelic population of the world would respond nobly with enough "jack" to pay off the National debt and run the plebiscitish post office for a hundred years, the gentlemen in power decreed that a special stamp issue or issues (more probably the latter) be made for use during the period of the election.

The first of the plebiscites to be held was that of Schleswig. As that state is an old friend of ours, and has long been in our albums, we may pass its identification with the remark that it is or was a province in the northwest of Prussia, bounded on the North by Denmark. The question of the affiliation of the province has been an age-old problem in European history. The adjoining province of Holstein being decidedly pro-German, it was very natural that Prussia should claim ownership of Schleswig as well. On the other hand, Schleswig comprising mostly Danish population, Denmark also felt her claim was just. For several centuries the question was an open sore and was only settled by the Treaty of Vienna, in 1864, which decreed that both duchies of Schleswig and Holstein should be separated from Denmark. With the establishment of the German Empire, the duchies were incorporated therein.

With the recent downfall of the German Empire, the question was reopened. Under the Treaty of Versailles, it was decreed that the matter be put to a vote of the people of Schleswig, who were to decide whether the province should continue as a part of Germany, or should become again a part of Denmark.

Naturally, the German sympathizers would find it exceedingly distasteful to lick Danish stamps, which had no place in the territory at that time. Neither would those who favored amalgamation with Denmark care to boost the German cause by licking the stamps of Deutsches Reich. Hence, to settle the trouble and to ward off disputes, a series of fourteen stamps, ranging in value from 2½ pfennig to 10 marks was issued, inscribed "Plebiscit" and "Slesvig". These were in use in the territory for a period of thirty days (possibly longer). The same series overprinted C. I. S. were issued for official use, the initials signifying "Commission Interallie Schleswig".

A second series, similar in design, but with currency in ore and kronen, and surcharged "1. ZONE" was issued for use in the territory immediately adjoining Denmark.

The outcome of the plebiscite we are unable to give at this time, though a part, if not all, of the territory voted to join Denmark. In recognition of this fact, Denmark has recently issued a set of three commemoratives celebrating the return of the province.

The story of the other plebiscites will appear in future articles.

"PLEASED"

That's what they say after receiving a trial selection of our approvals.

One new customer, a former dealer, writes: "Your stamps are in fine condition, nicely put up and the prices are right."

May we convince you that he is right? Then just shoot along references or a cash deposit and get some "worth while" stamps on approval.

CHAPTER IV.

The Bi-sected Pence Stamps.

Although provided with a more extensive assortment of values than any of the other British North American Colonies, we find bi-sected varieties among the early pence stamps of similar character to those referred to in connection with New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, etc. While there could have been no real necessity for any of these splits, as there was never a shortage of stamps, and all postal rates could be made up by a combination of the nine issued stamps, these varieties were allowed to do postal duty—and probably by the time they appeared were sanctioned by custom obtaining elsewhere—and thus have a place in any specialized collection of Newfoundland's stamps. Most of them are exceedingly rare and in the following list we have given only those vouched for on good authority.

REFERENCE LIST.

All cut diagonally unless otherwise stated.

CHAPTER V.

The First Cents Issue.

In 1865 the currency of Newfoundland was changed from the English system of pounds, shillings and pence to one of dollars and cents similar to that which had been adopted by the other British North American Colonies. Naturally this necessitated a change in the postal act and the issue of a new series of stamps. The new set consisted of six values—2c, 5c, 10c, 12c, 13c, and 24c.—and these were manufactured by the American Bank Note Company of New York. The date of issue of this series is given as "1866" by Scott and "Jan., 1866" by Gibbons, yet in his Report for 1865 the Postmaster-General says:—

"After due notice had been given to the public, the compulsory prepayment of letters was put into operation on the 15th November (and at the same time the issue of the new decimal series of postage stamps), the prepayment of postage was accordingly exacted on all letters posted at the several Post-offices in this Colony."

This would seem to fix the date of issue of the set as November 15th, 1865, very definitely and that the stamps were ready before that date is shown from an extract from the accounts of the Post-office Department, viz.:—"Remitted to the American Bank Note Company, New York, being amount of account for new Postage Stamps, Plates and Labels, $793.00." Yet, curiously enough, the earliest reference we can find to any of these stamps appears in the Stamp Collector's Magazine for February, 1866, where the 2c, 5c and 13c values are described. The other denominations were announced as in issue a month later, and it would therefore appear that the official announcement was a little previous and that the stamps could hardly have been placed in circulation earlier than January 1st, 1866.

The main feature of the design of the 2c stamp is a codfish—a novel subject but a very appropriate one for a stamp of a Colony from whence come such large supplies of lenten fare. The fish is swimming to the left, in a transverse oval, on a ground of horizontal lines, and this oval is encompassed by a frame of similar shape, interrupted at each angle of the label by a circle containing a large numeral "2". The upper part of the label is inscribed "Newfoundland", at the bottom is "Two Cents" and the word "Two" is repeated at each side reading upwards at the left and downwards at the right.

The 5c value is oblong in shape and the larger portion of the design shows a seal on an ice floe. The artist responsible for the design could not have had a very extensive knowledge of natural history, for he has given the animal regular forelegs with pronounced claws! Below the central design is a straight label containing "5 Five Cents 5" and above it "Newfoundland" is curved, while in each of the upper corners is the numeral "5" on a disc of solid color and between these discs is a fancy label inscribed "Five 5 Five". This constant repetition left one in no doubt as to the facial value of this particular stamp.

The 24c is upright rectangular in sha and is larger than any of the others. the centre is a full face portrait of Que Victoria on a horizontally lined grou within an octagonal frame. This po trait bears such a close resemblance that on the 8½, 10c and 12½c stamps Nova Scotia that it seems highly pro able that the same original die was us At the top is "Newfoundland" on ornate scroll and at the base is "Cent while in each of the lower corners a large ovals showing the numerals "2

The stamps of this series were e graved and printed by the Americ Bank Note Company of New York sheets of 100. The firm's imprint shown twice on each of the four ma gins. The perforation was the work a single-line machine and it gauges t usual 12 associated with the work of th well-known firm. The first printing this issue was on a thin hard paper wi a distinct yellowish tinge in it. La printings of the 2c, 10c, 12c and 2 values were on a white paper of mediu texture.

CHAPTER VI.

The 1868 Stamp.

On account of some changes in the ...tes of postage on circulars and tran...nt newspapers, the particulars of ...hich Mr. King was unable to find in ...e official records, a new value of 1c ...came necessary and this was issued ...me time during the latter part of 1868. ...he stamp was received in England in ...ecember and described in the January, ...69, issue of the Stamp Collector's ...agazine as follows:—

"Just in time for description we have ...ceived one of the most elegantly-de...gned stamps we have ever had the ...easure of examining. Its value is one ...nt, and its color a delicate mauve, ...mewhat richer than that of the 2c ...ova Scotia. In the centre appears the ...rtrait of the Prince of Wales, which ...d duty on the obsolete 17c of New ...unswick, but enclosed in a far more ...steful frame—a large oval, occupying ...e entire rectangle, and bearing on its ...wer half the name, "Newfoundland"; ...hile crossing and covering its upper ...tremity is a neat scroll, inscribed with ...e value "One Cent", in words; and ...mediately below it, in the oval, the let...rs N.F., one on each side. The design ...completed by numerals in the lower ...rners, and leaf-work extending along ...e lower margin and up the sides. This ...arming acquisition is impressed on ...hite paper, and perforated."

For some unexplained reason this stamp was ordered from the National Bank Note Company, of New York, and according to the Post-office accounts the charge for making the plate and printing 1,000 sheets of stamps from it was $175. As this was very high compared with the cost of the six plates of the other values this was the only contract awarded to the National Company. The stamps were printed in sheets of 100 arranged in ten horizontal rows of ten, and as there was but one supply the total number of this particular issue was 100,000. These 1c stamps were printed on white paper and perforated 12.

CHAPTER VII.

Shortly after the new 1c stamps were received a new supply of the 5c value was ordered from the American Bank Note Company. At the same time it was decided to make a change in the color of this denomination and they were ordered to be printed in black instead of brown. The supply consisted of 1,000 sheets (100,000 stamps) and the cost of printing them was $27.00. This new stamp was probably on sale early in 1869, for copies were received in England in February of that year.

The local postage rate of five cents for letters weighing not more than half an ounce continued in force until 1870, when a reduction was decided on. An amendment to the Postal Act passed on May 9th of that year fixed the new rate at 3c currency per half-ounce. A new stamp of the facial value of 3c became necessary and when this was ordered a 6c denomination was requisitioned as well to be used on double letters. These two values were ordered from the American Bank Note Company and were alike in design. In the centre is a profile portrait of Her Majesty the Queen, looking to right, in widow's weeds; the name "Newfoundland" appears on a curved label immediately above the portrait, while below is a smaller curved label bearing the denomination in words "Three (Six) Cents"—and in the lower angles are stars. In the upper corners are large numerals denoting the value with "Three" or "Six" between them.

The 3c was printed in vermilion and the 6c in dull rose, both values being in sheets of 100 in ten rows of ten.

Mr. King states that these new values appeared in July, 1870, but they could hardly have been in circulation so early, considering they were not reported in any of the English periodicals until November of that year.

When a further supply of 1c stamps was required in 1871 the order was entrusted to the American Bank Note Company, who then held the contract for printing the other stamps of Newfoundland. This meant the construction of a new plate and though the design of the stamp printed by the National Company was carefully copied there are considerable minor differences. The description of re-engraved given to this design in Scott's catalogue is, of course, entirely incorrect. The easiest test between this stamp and that of the preceding issue, apart from color, lies in the disposition of the letters "N.F." In the original stamp the tops of these letters are fully 1 mm. distant from the ribbon bearing the denomination "One Cent", while in the copy made by the American Bank Note Company they are much closer to the ribbon, being only about ½ mm. distant from it. For some mysterious reason this stamp was printed in sheets of 110 instead of the usual 100. This stamp was first placed on sale in May, 1871.

The 3c value in vermilion had a comparatively short life, for in 1873 its color was changed to blue. Judging from the date the change of color was first recorded it was probably issued in May.

All these stamps were printed on white paper and perforated 12, but in the 'eighties the 5c was recorded in several philatelic journals as having been issued with a perforation gauging 14. We think there can be no doubt that these varieties are forgeries and the same may be said of the 5c perforated 10½, which was reported at one time.

CROWN MATCH COMPANY.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

In regard to this neat adhesive the Boston Book gives the following information, which is nearly all that is known about the stamp:—

Die approved, June 24, 1873.
First issued, October, 1873.
Last issued, August, 1875.
346,500 issued on silk paper.
210 stamps per sheet, (14x15).

"All correspondence in relation to this stamp is signed Jas. T. Dillingham or Dillingham & Co., which explains the presence of the 'D' below the crown. Their place of business was Glenbeulah, Wis."

The stamp is in the form of an upright rectangle of the usual 1c size. An ornamental panel in the center contains a jeweled crown with "One" in colored letters above it and a colorless "D" below it. A vertical label at either end of this panel is inscribed "Cent", and "Crown" appears in colorless capitals curled above the panel with "Match Co." similarly below. A straight marginal label across the top of the stamp reads "U. S. Inter" and a similar label at the bottom reads "Revenue". Resting on either end of the bottom label is a numeral "1". The writer recalls no other match stamp on which a crown is depicted.

This is one of the last of the Philadelphia-made stamps, and the entire issue is supposed to have been printed by the Carpenter firm there. Although a comparatively small quantity were issued the stamp is not and has never been at all scarce, and we can account for this paradox only by supposing stamp dealers purchased a supply directly from the concern when it was in use, or that there was quite a supply of remainders which found a way into the market later. Unused specimens with full original gum are quite frequently seen and several blocks are known to be in existence.

Perhaps, also, the issue was somewhat larger than the total given in the Boston Book, for at the expiration of his contract, August 31st, 1875, Mr. Carpenter turned over to the Government 278,040 "Dillingham" stamps and there may have been a larger issue after August, 1875, than up to that date. There appears no record of a printing of Crown stamps by the National Bank Note Co., but a Wisconsin business Gazetteer for 1876-7 lists the Glenbeulah Match Co., at Glenbeulah, and of course this indicates there was a factory in operation there after 1875. The Crown stamp is not known to have been used in multiple. Color, black.

FIELD'S CATALOG.

—David Field, the well-known London dealer, has issued a notable catalog, "Postage Stamps of the Great War and After, 1914-1920." The catalog makes a specialty of the description of stamps and the giving of information more or less general in character. The catalog is of value from the fact that the prices quoted represent the publisher's market quotations. A large map as a preface to the book gives in concrete form a mass of war issues information, and we heartily recommend this book of 180 pages with its many illustrations. The price of the book is 2sh 6d, but we can furnish it at 50c for a limited time. Apply to the WEEKLY office.

Change—A return is to be made to first principles by the post office department so far as the division of stamped envelopes is concerned. It happens that we are looking at the original circular of the post office department, dated June 15th, 1853, authorizing the use of stamped envelopes of three, six and twenty-four cent denomination, but the value, last-named, did not appear at the time, the ten cent envelope having taken its place. The post office department has just issued an order that revolutionizes the envelope field. The following analysis of the recent ruling by Mr. R. J. Tarpy, Envelope Enthusiast, tells the tale: "Your readers, whether collectors of stamped envelopes or not, may be interested in knowing that the post office department has just made the most radical change in the stamped envelope contract that has occurred in the past twenty-five years, at least. The change most noticeable to the general public is that no more amber or buff envelopes will be made, only white and blue for envelopes and manilla for wrappers and one size of envelope. Kraft paper is cut out entirely but it was in use but a short time and probably has been seen only by a few collectors. Envelope sizes 2, 4, 10, 11 and 14 are discontinued entirely: size 6 is not on the schedule but was always the same dimension as size 5 and stood only for a different shape of blank and a cheaper quality of paper. From a line that, say ten years ago, comprised thirteen sizes of envelopes and two sizes of wrappers (most of the envelopes coming on four colors of paper) the list has been cut down to six sizes of envelopes (and two of wrappers) and only two colors of paper. The previous contract, beginning July 1, 1919, was one of the most extensive ever put out by the department and included almost one hundred 'government varieties', which only include size, color, quality, 'high back', or 'low back' shape and the 'window face'. This has been cut down to seventy-two varieties, twenty-seven of which were not on the previous contract. From an envelope collector's standpoint, the previous contract had a possibility of probably four hundred varieties of envelopes, a good many of which have not yet been found. As this contract was terminated at the end of eighteen months, during eleven months of which the millions of overprinted three cent envelopes were put into use, the chances are that many will be used up before they are located by collectors. Probably the most noticeable feature of the new contract will be the appearance of four and five cent on blue paper, which has not been used since the issue of 1890."

First—What is the earliest date of "permit" mail of the first class? A reader has an envelope sent out by the Supreme Council of the United Commercial Travelers, with the Columbus postmark of October 15th, 1920. Los Angeles, Cal., and Philadelphia used first-class permits before December 15th, 1920.

Another—Our remarks about S. Valentine Saxby recently did not pass unnoticed, as one of the old boys yells, encore, and asks that we give Henry Ades Fowler a whirl. We shall now turn the spot-light on the redoubtable Henry Ades, once a brilliant star of the philatelic firmament. It will be remembered that before he was of age, Mr. Fowler was publishing a stamp monthly in 1893, whose subscription price was three dollars a year, and though the Canadian Journal of Philately was a most meritorious production, it went to the philatelic heaven after a short stay in this vale of tears. Nearly twenty years later, Mr. Fowler started another monthly, which plowed through the raging main for a time, only to sink and leave a few bubbles on the surface. The temperamental Fowler did yeoman work for the local and national stamp societies and blossomed out as a dealer. His industry was remarkable and in a personal sense his irresistible manner made him a considerable figure in our little world. Then a controversy arose between H. A. F. and the board of difficulties, the vice-presidents, of the American Philatelic Society, and then so far as public philately was concerned his light flickered and sputtered out finally. The years passed on and Henry avoided the old philatelic haunts, as he was devoting himself to his profession of the law. It was not long before he was a moving force in the office of the Public Administrator of Cook County, in Chicago; and what did the Chicago Journal do the other night, hitting off Fowler's popularity in political circles, but publish a cartoon saying that it was necessary to get "Hank Fowler's" permission before certain moves could be made on the political checkerboard. The joke of it all is that Mr. Fowler has never given up collecting and amassing stamps except for intervals when his work at the office literally swamped him. He never really deserted stamps and he likes them still; and hogs, too, else why would he have reported, as he did, the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago last month for the American Swineherd. You never can tell, as old Epictetus said.

Korea—In submitting the following excerpt from the New Map of Asia, 1900-1919, by Herbert Adams Gibbons and published by the Century Company, New York, 1919, Mr. Lowell J. Ragatz says: "Here a well-known historian takes cognizance of the fact that mere bits of paper record the rise and fall of empire!" Here is the text in question: "After the war (Russo-Japanese of 1904-1905), the Japanese moved with great haste to convert Korea into a province of Japan. The remnant of the army was disbanded. Only fifteen hundred men were allowed to remain under arms as the emperor's palace guard. Japan took over the railways and telegraphs and post office and discontinued the issue of Korean stamps!!"

Editorial—Some good stuff is relayed to us by Frederick S. Wist in the form of an editorial reference to stamp collecting in the San Francisco Call of January 7th, as follows: "These are distressing days for the stamp collector. He is overwhelmed with a flood of new stamps from all the new countries of the world. As so great is that flood from the printing presses that he is beginning to suspect that stamps are being issued not so much for postal use as for the albums of the collectors. There was a time in the history of human knowledge when a man could know everything that man knew of science and art and literature. There was also a time, only a few years ago, when the collector could take down his album and discuss all the stamps in the world; if he didn't have them, he knew where they were and how much they were worth. It is so no longer. Ten thousand varieties of postage stamps have been issued in less than five years, and the philatelists have broken under the strain. They have been fooled so often by new issues that their interest is languid—as languid as a small boy who has eaten two Christmas dinners. The smaller the country the more stamps it prints. Little Liechtenstein, a two by four state between Austria and Switzerland, has printed twenty-seven varieties since 1918 and is still printing. Hungary, Turkey, Latvia, Poland, Palestine, Jugo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia, Arabia, Ukrainia, Russia and dozens of others are flinging their stamps on the market. Even Armenia has 150 varieties. A few of the stamps are sold in the home countries; the great majority, however, are sent to the stamp centers of the world to be sold to the collectors. When interest dies the issue is demonetized, and a new one comes to the market—to perplex and enrage the lover of stamps. Collecto used to be harmless creatures. Madne came to their eyes only when they looke at a collection more complete than the own. Times have changed; they are no the maddest species in the world, tor between avarice and too great richness There is a philosophical swing to th foregoing quotation that shows that th writer knows stamps rather well an that "ways that are dark and tricks tha are vain" do not cloud his eyes to th main issue.

Offer Extraordinary!!

1100 ALL DIFF. Selected POSTAGE STAMPS Cat. over $35. ONLY $5.00

It's the famous "BONANZA" PKT., No. 14, that all can use. 125,000 sold! Full count. No trash or Seebecks included. As good as the best at $10.00. Many desirable stamps, choice sets and high values. Stamps cat. as high as $1.00 each. ALL IN GOOD SHAPE—NONE TORN OR DAMAGED.

AGAIN GREATLY IMPROVED

Wm. Roper, Phila., writes: "From Pkt. o. 14 I added about 500 diff. to my collecon of 3500." Wm. Matthews, Atty., Dayn, writes: "It's a winner—a 100 to 1 shot at went across." Edw. Peterson of Mayille, N. Y., found 457 for his collection of er 5000—surely you can find 300 or more r yours! It's a regular gold mine at .00! No matter how large your collection —order this packet under our guarantee entire satisfaction or money back. Act day—you can't lose!! Personal checks ccepted. Postpaid and registered!

WARNING! Beware of C-H-E-A-P "1000 variety packets" offered at eemingly low prices by dealers both large nd small, as, again German made lots are eing consigned to any that will consider iem. A dollar is so large to such that ney forget that such lots will prove a oomerang, and eventually spell "business uicide," as the lots have little Quality and o philatelic value. Written for MEKEEL'S.

A PHILATELIC PORTRAIT GALLERY.

By ROLAND S. ST. PIERRE.

(Note:—This is the second of a series of articles on the formation of unusual and interesting collections of stamps, showing the possibilities of the "bits of paper.")

What could be more interesting than a collection of picked stamps, mounted in a compact little album, and showing the portraits of the famous men and women of the world's history? Such a collection offers much opportunity for originality in the selecting and mounting. It is a thing of beauty and interest not only to the philatelist, but to the layman who knows nothing of stamps, but who, seeing it, is perhaps stirred to try collecting "on his own". It is artistic, educational, and unique.

It will perhaps be of interest to the readers of MEKEEL'S to know how one such collection has been selected and arranged. In the first place this collection contains only unused stamps, for its principal claim to distinction lies in its beauty and artistic lay-out, which is not possible where cancelled copies are used. You can easily demonstrate this to yourself by picking out a page of unused copies in your own album, and mounting a used copy on it.

Secondly, this collection contains mostly inexpensive stamps with a scattering of more valuable specimens where is was not possible to secure the desired portrait on a cheap stamp. That is one of the advantages of this type of collection: It may be completed at the outlay of a very modest sum.

In the third place, there is of course no regard given to watermarks, "fly-speck" varieties, completeness of sets, or any one of the hundred and one things usually considered in making a collection.

There are certain things observed in this collection, however, which will be well to make note of. All of the stamps are well centered and there is a symmetry of arrangement and a harmony of color combination that shows great care in the formation of the "Gallery".

The stamps are mounted on the right-hand page of a blank album. On the left-hand page, in the same corresponding position as the stamp on the opposite page, is a neat write-up of the stamp. Since the write-up usually occupies more room than the stamp, and is a great addition to the interest of a collection of this sort, the stamps must necessarily be mounted only a few to a page. This incidentally lends itself to a better grouping and appearance.

In this collection the stamps are mounted by countries, the United States in the leading position, and the other countries following in alphabetical order. Of course the chief attractiveness of the collection is the opportunity for personal taste in selection and arrangement, and no two collections should be exactly alike.

In the portrait gallery of which I am speaking, only the best known characters of the leading countries are represented, the whole collection numbering but a few hundred. Where there are several portraits of the same man from a country, the most suitable pose has been selected (a matter of taste) and the colors of the stamp are such as to show it off to advantage. At the same time the colors should not clash with those of the other stamps on the page. In this particular collection, shades of one color have been avoided. Another thing which is not very difficult to reconcile is the size of the stamp and the size of the greatness of the man on the stamp. Of course the more famous characters occupy the leading positions on the page and the lesser lights take their relative positions. A large stamp in the center and six or eight others make a very good page.

In certain instances, as with Washington and Lincoln in our own country, at least two portraits are necessary for completeness. Washingtin's profile on our current stamps, and the three-quarters portrait on the 1902-3 issue 2c, make a good pair. Lincoln's profile is at its best on the 1909 Commemorative issue, and the face view will be found on the 5c of 1902-3.

From our own United States there are, among others in this gallery, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Harrison, Grant, Garfield, and McKinley, to add to Washington and Lincoln in the roster of our presidents. Martha Washington is there—the first of a famous line of first ladies. Then, leaving the presidents for our statesmen and explorers, our chiefs of battle and our admirals, we find Franklin, Webster, Clay, and Seward; Sherman, Perry, Farragut, Livingston, and away back in the beginning of it all, Columbus, Balboa, Captain John Smith and his gentle if brave Indian wife, Pocahontas.

If we go abroad it is the same. Great Britain and Colonies furnish an almost complete list of the world's leading royal family for the last eighty years.

South and Central America is a veritable treasure house for the philatelic portrait collector. But here beware, and be sure your portraits are not ten-cent revolutionists rather than great men of history. The Scandinavian countries can be well represented, and if you wish a page of tropical native types—mostly furnished by the French Colonies would not be amiss. Why not, as in this collection, a couple of pages of allegorical figures representing the various countries, as France, Germany and Switzerland can offer?

Top off with a dozen figures of Victory—New Zealand and the United States would help you there. It is a wonderfully fascinating book, this Portrait Gallery, and you will have fun in the making and in the after-display. It will add surprisingly to your education if in your "write-up" opposite the stamp you include such encyclopedic information as the birth and death dates, the source of the picture on the stamp, and the cause of its being there, all under the great one's name.

UNITED STATES. — I have received several letters from valued correspondents informing me that they learn on excellent authority that the recently issued Pilgrim stamps are to be withdrawn, due, I imagine, to the fact that they are without the regular marking "U.S.Postage". Mr. W. W. Randall tells me that this information in his case comes direct from one high in the employ of the Post Office. I can state for the benefit of our readers that I am informed by the Third Assistant Postmaster General that the rumor is without foundation. He states that there is no reason for recalling them, that the stamps are a departure in several respects from conventional design and that precedent exists for the omission of country in previous American and foreign issues. We might incidentally mention that in the case of our own stamps they will have to go back to our first issue of 1847 to find precedent for such omission.

I am further informed that there is no necessity for the name, as the stamps are fully identified and authenticated to the postal service in the formal notice sent to postmasters under date of December 14, 1920. This notice describes them as being valid for all postal purposes and for registry, airplane, and special delivery service when used in accordance with regulations relating thereto. He also states that any additional lettering would have overcrowded designs which required all of the space assigned to them.

It seems that the supply of these Pilgrim stamps distributed throughout the country is somewhat small, although larger stocks will no doubt be received in due course. Mr. George Stutzenstein says that in one of the sub-stations in New York they allotted but ten to a person. Mr. C. S. Davis states a limited supply was placed on sale in Kansas City on December 29th. I know right here in Philadelphia, not so many miles from Washington, that some of the stations could not supply the fives. Collectors need not worry, however, for there are a plenty to go round and if they have not reached your city, your postmaster may obtain them from his central accounting station, or in the case of central accounting postmasters, direct from Washington. In answer to numerous inquiries, would state that we have seen no varieties of the stamps other than shades and slight double. The department has not issued them imperforate and it is doubtful if they ever will. They are all perforated 11 and no varieties of perforations have been found.

Speaking of double transfers, I had occasion to study some of the current 2c engraved stamps, unwatermarked, perforated 11 stamps recently and found one of the most prominent transfers of the kind that has ever come to my notice. The lower part of the stamp is partly double and there is a very distinct line running through the word "CENTS". It compares most favorably with the 3c double transfer, which is perhaps the clearest and most distinct to be found in any of the Bureau's work.

Mr. E. H. Draper has sent for inspection a copy of the 5c Parcel Post Due stamp showing a very strong silk thread. This thread is not a part of the paper, however, but is strongly attached to the surface, the impression being over the thread. Curious, of course, but an oddity rather than a variety.

Mr. A. F. Gamber has sent me from a small Florida post office one of the 3c envelopes, locally surcharged with a large figure "2" in black. I am not positive as to whether this was surcharged in the office where obtained, or surcharged at some larger office and distributed throughout the state. I am endeavoring to learn more about the variety and will publish additional information as soon as obtained. In the meantime I am listing the variety as a Florida overprint. Mr. H. C. Hitt sends me a new window variety from Seattle; Mr. Julius Kurtz has found two new varieties in Minneapolis, while Mr. George P. Smith has located the first size 2 overprinted in Philadelphia. Mr. H. W. Lindaman sends two unlisted Chicago, while Mr. R. C. McReynolds finds two new varieties in Denver that have not been noted heretofore.

We desire to thank Dr. William Evans, Messrs. W. S. Bull, C. S. Sutton, E. W. Murray, C. S. Davis, R. V. Baker, Adolph Schaefer, C. J. Hohenstein and R. J. Wagner for notes of interest.

ARGENTINE. — Mr. Frank C. Davis advises that in 1918 because of the shortage of paper of the "hexagon" watermark type, a supply of ordinary typewriter bond paper was used, which gave us No. 248-57 in the catalog, unwatermarked. Naturally that portion of the sheet in which the watermark appeared gave us stamps with a portion of the letters composing same, which was in double line capitals. Mr. Davis adds that he has a block of ten 5c upon which the entire word "Bond" appears, which seems to support this information. Mr. Davis has in his collection the 1c, 2c, 3c, 5c, 10c, 12c, 20c and 30c showing part of the letters of this watermark and considers them the rarities of 20th century emissions.

CHINA.—Mr. S. R. Sheldon sends us copies of the following new provisionals: "1 Ct." on 2c green; "3 Cts." on 4c red, and "5 Cts." on 6c grey. Each value ha three horizontal rows of Chinese chara ters and two others at the top. The and 5c is in red and the 3c is in blue.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA. — The Economi Stamp Co. has submitted to us fo chronicle the current 40h bistre and th 60h green with the surcharge "20 Haler and a cross in red. Also the 125h stam with the portrait of President Masary with the overprint "25" and a cross each side, in red.

ESTHONIA.—The Economist Stamp C have shown us the 1m in red in the la type, printed on very thin paper.

HONDURAS.—Mr. Elmer Zinsmeister ad vises that he has received a copy of th 5c statue type printed in lake.

MESOPOTAMIA.—In our issue for Jul 17th last we forecasted a series of "Off cial" stamps, comprising denomination of 1, 3, 4, and 8a, and 1 and 5 rupee Now Mr. Oswald Marsh says:—

"I learn on good authority that the fol lowing values of the current set—viz., 1, 1½, 3, 4, 6, 8, 12a, 1, 5, 10 rupees—hav been overprinted "STATE SERVICE" for us as official stamps. A few examples hav reached London in unused condition, bu I have not yet ascertained whether the have been actually placed on sale for col lectors and dealers or whether they wer obtained by favour of an obliging offi cial."—Stamp Collecting.

MOROCCO. — Mr. A. Brun advises tha the current 5fr stamp is issued now i violet.

PALESTINE. — Dr. G. C. Lindsey, member of the London Stamp Club, wh has just arrived from Palestine, ha shown us an example of the "Trans Jordania" provisional. Evidently ther has been a shortage of stamps in Pales tine, for Mr. W. Ward received a lette from Jerusalem, dated 26.11.20, bearin the surcharge "O.P.D.A. 5 mil." on th 5m E.E.F., and "2½ mil. O.P.D.A." o 3 mil E.E.F. (both on 1 piastre), defray ing postage. Unfortunately the stamp were stuck on the back of the envelop on the folds, and our correspondent ha to remove them to "save" them. He ha shown us a copy of the 2½ mil. on 3 mil for our inspection. A few days ago h had another copy of both the above dated Jerusalem, July, 1920, and Octobe 18th, 1920.—Stamp Collecting.

ROUMANIA. — It will be remembere that "an entirely new series of postag stamps" was foreshadowed many month ago. For the selection of suitable de signs a public competition was to hav been held in Bucharest on April 1st last but it seems to have been a "wash out." We now learn that a fresh competitio is being arranged, only Roumanian art ists being eligible, and that the design must be allegorical of Victory, with suit able inscriptions.—Stamp Collecting.

UPPER VOLTA.—The Economist Stam Co. has submitted to us the entire set o Upper Senegal and Niger surcharge "Haute-Volta" across the former name The 1c, 4c, 5c, 10c, 15c, 25c, 40c, 50c, 75c 1fr and 2frs are overprinted in black while the other values are in red.

The Economist Stamp Co. have als shown us the 1914 postage due set sur charged in like manner to the curren set noted above.

STAMP ECHOES FROM NASSAU ST.

By WILLIAM W. RANDALL.

A big stamp deal was consummated in quiet manner the other day, between wo of the best known, as well as ldest collectors in New York. Henry . Needham, the well known lawyer-ollector, (of Nassau Street), transerred his famous collection of foreign overs, said to be one of the best in he world, to Congressman Ernest R. Ackerman, of New Jersey, for a sum aid to be $175,000 cash. Mr. Needham s my informant and when I asked him Why?" he laughed and said that he eeded the money. He further informed ie that he did not sell his grand colection of U. S. locals, the second best ere—the best in this specialty being hat of A. H. Caspary, the New York anker. Mr. Needham will spend part f this money in adding to his U. S. and Confederate collection of locals. He as been collecting steadily for 40 years, nd "Senator" Ackerman, for a longer eriod. The Senator, so called from the ime he was a State Senator of New ersey, is a New York business man, ne of the heads of the cement industry, and lives in Plainfield, N. J. He as a collection that is conservatively aid to be worth in excess of five hunred thousand dollars, and there is not youth hereabouts that is a more enhusiastic philatelist. After picking over vhat he wanted, the balance of the ormer Needham collection was turned ver to Elliott Perry, at Westfield, N. . to dispose of to the best advantage, or the Congressman's account.

The new Postal Department envelope chedule that came out on Jan. 1, J. M. Bartels tells me, carries no amber r buff envelopes at all. The blue paper arieties, which have heretofore been ermed second class, are now costing sers the same price as white. Mr. Bartels, next to V. M. Berthold, is the nost authoritative specialist in U. S. ntire envelopes, has just issued his iew catalogue and reference list of the urrent varieties of the 2 cent surharges on the 3 cent stock utilized by he P. O. department for economy sake n account of the shortage of paper, vhen the rate was changed from 3 to cents. It was carefully compiled by Mr. Berthold, and is practically comlete to Nov. 1 last.

A. C. Roessler, of East Orange, N. J., vho has handled more of the stamps of hat popular British colony Newfoundand, than all the American dealers ombined, has just got another variety or the collectors of this colony. It is the cent blue, issued in 1910, that is now urcharged in red, "Money order stamp ax only." This revenue postage stamp vas issued surcharged in 1918, and is atalogued in the latest Yvert-Tellier-Champion at 20 francs. It will probably ppear in the next Scott's. Of course here are the usual errors—in this case period, and no period after "only".

CANADA 6d THICK, HARD

A fine copy of this rare stamp for $50.00. Worth a Hundred if rarity means anything.

By CHARLES S. THOMPSON.

AITUTAKI.—Coincidentally with the appearance of the pictorial set, the 1d red "Dominion" of N. Z. appeared with AITUTAKI overprint in dark blue. This stamp can hardly have had a postal existence of more than a few days or perhaps hours, as it is reported that the entire lot was purchased by speculators in Wellington.

AUSTRIA.—Current Austrian issues surcharged "Deutscher Gau-Osttirol" are officially declared to be fakes, pure and simple.

BOSNIA.—It is evident that the 1 krone and 2 kronen dues of the 1916 set must have been printed at least twice and with very different materials. The earlier printing was done with an intense blue ink with a decided metallic lustre. The later production shows a duller, lighter-bodied ink, having no metallic appearance whatever. The original ink was a methyl aniline, but I have not been able to establish the identity of the second material.

BULGARIA.—A series of stamps commemorating the 70th birthday of Ivan Vasoff, the great Bulgarian poet, was issued October 21. The stamps are of large size and handsome appearance; they appear to have been produced by photogravure or some similar process. The 50st, 2l, and 5l are upright rectangles, the others are oblongs. The dimensions differ slightly, but average about 24x34 mm.

The 30st, deep red, pictures the birthplace of the poet, and in a smaller frame, below it, is shown a representation of a cherry-wood cannon. This engine has already been shown on the stamps of Bulgaria, though not as effectively as in this case. The wooden gun is mentioned by the author in his story "Under the Yoke."

The 50st, dark slate green, depicts "The Rebel", a character in "Hychove." The stamp bears the name of the writer but "Bulgaria" does not appear in the design at all!

The 1l, pale brown, pictures the poet at 20 years of age, and at 70. It bears the dates 1850, the year of his birth, also 1870 and 1920.

The 2l, brown, shows an interesting portrait of the author at the present day. At top it carries the date, 21 October 1920. Below the portrait is a facsimile of the writer's signature.

The 3l, dark violet, shows pictures of two buildings, which, according to the inscriptions are the residence of the poet in Sophia, and his former abode in 1870, at Plovdi, or in English, Philippopolis.

The 5l, dark blue, pictures another of the author's characters, "The Apostle"

There were 200,000 complete sets, but the number of the lower values was much larger. Nevertheless speculators appear to have been able to corner most of the output, judging from the high prices asked. Considering the deflated condition of Bulgarian finance, such an operation should not have presented any insuperable difficulties, as the face value of the whole output amounts to only about $45 000. After November 21 these stamps were no longer good for postage.

EPIRUS.—A series of four crudely lithographed labels has appeared, but nothing is known of their official character. They bear Greek inscriptions, "Kratos Anexarthos" and "Tachydromeion Chemarra", which would indicate postal use at Chimarra. The Epirote eagle forms the central design and is printed in the second color. 5l, green and brown; 10l, red and blue; 25l, blue and brown; 50l, brown violet and green.

FIUME.—Someone evidently had some very "unright" information regarding the "Legion" issue, those woozy stamps showing an outpouring of ketchup, episodes in the life of Alexander the Great, cutlery displays, and so on. It was alleged that there were only 2,000 sets of these absurdities, but now comes the entire assemblage surcharged REGGENZA ITALIANA DEL CARNARO (Italian Regency of Quarnero) and in the case of two values, with additional new values as well, so that there are seven varieties (all I have received so far—there may be 57 in all) in the new set. 5c green, 10c red, 20c light brown, 25c blue, 15c on 20c, 50c on 20c, 55c on 5c.

Only time will tell what these labels are: perhaps they did no postal duty, Annunzio having fled, perhaps to Gabriel: or they may be Italian occupation stamps, or perchance they are the stillborn product of a dream kingdom.

Certain it is that there must have been many more than 2,000 sets originally, or the present set wouldn't sell for a few cents, its nominal value being about 7c American.

FRANCE.—The 5c stamp is now being printed in a very different shade, light dull Verona green instead of the full dark mineral green of past years.

INGERMANLAND.—The writer is informed that the pictorial set recently issued is good only for interior postage, but that Finnish stamps are sold concurrently and used with the pictorials, which would indicate a rather dubious character. What were the purposes for which they were issued, outside of the usual one, which we know is not postal duty!

The 30-penni ought to be popular with those who collect portraits of screen stars, as it bears an excellent likeness of one C. Chaplin, and it is a certainty that no one but Charlie would wear a "Derby" while cutting hay, as the gentleman on the stamp is doing. Perhaps they are intended to be "comics".

MARTINIQUE.—Through the kindness of A. C. Roessler I have received complete panes of the provisional surcharges, which were made in blocks of 25. The second and fourth stamps in the fourth horizontal row, and the second stamp in the fifth horizontal row, have smaller ciphers than those used on the other 22 stamps. This is characteristic of both the 05 on 1 centime and the 10 on 2 centimes. In the 25 on 15 centimes, all the 2's in the third vertical row have been damaged, and in addition the first stamp in the fourth horizontal row lacks a serif on the flag of the 2.

POLAND.—Due to increased postal tariffs, which in turn have resulted from debased currency, several new mark-values have been issued, types A13 (3 Mk. claret) and A14, 6 Mk. carmine, 10 Mk. red, 20 Mk. olive green. The 6.00 and 10 00 are very much alike, and the color of one or the other will undoubtedly soon be changed. These stamps are all on thin laid paper.

SALVADOR.—Specialists in this line will be delighted with a new series of surcharges which have been arriving on recent mail. The old values, both figures and words, are obliterated by heavy slugs, and the new value, in figures falls on the centre of the design. 15/29, red schg.; 26/29, blue schg.; also green schg.; 35/50, blk. schg.; and 60/$1, red schg.

NOTES ON SO. RUSSIA AND UKRAINE.

The stamps of South Russia have, until recently, attracted very little attention, probably because so little is known about them, as existing catalogue lists bear witness. The general reader has vague ideas of South Russia as the scene of a German Occupation after the treaty of Brest-Litovsk, as the starting-point of various anti-Bolshevik campaigns under Generals Deninin and Wrangel, and as a sufferer from the resulting Bolshevik incursions. Apart from the Ukraine, which was able to establish itself as an independent state, the remaining districts seem to have had hopes of the eventual re-establishment of a United Russia, and meanwhile they "carried on" in postal matters by overprinting such stocks of Russian stamps as were on hand with the new values necessitated by increased postal charges. Thus we have provisionals from the temporary Governments of Kuban, the Don, and the Crimea, with one "United Russia" issue made under General Denikin's auspices for use by his forces and in the districts liberated during a temporarily successful advance.

While the issues of the Ukraine are slowly emerging from the fog which has enveloped them, there is still much work to be done in this direction, and the difficulty of obtaining early and accurate information is evidenced by the frequent arrival of "new issues", seen for the first time in this country, but which made their appearance in South Russia many months ago.

The meagre information which is available concerning the stamps which have been listed under the heading of South Russia, has, for the most part, been obtained from British officers who have been serving in the country. The poor communications, which must be a feature of the country after it has been the scene of so many of the "forlorn hopes" of the Russian Empire, make the information obtainable from this source a succession of local and fragmentary stories, so that any attempt at a complete account of these issues must of necessity be a patchwork composition.

To summarize briefly the information at present available, the provisionals of the Don, Kuban, and Crimean Governments, and the issue of General Denikin's Volunteer Army, were made for legitimate postal purposes. The high values represented by the final surcharges were the result of the continual fall in the value of the rouble and the consequent increase in the postal rates of the country. There was not that efficient organization in the towns where the surcharging was carried out which could prevent the printing and issuing of stamps showing errors of surcharge. The work was done hurriedly in an emergency, and consequently many misplaced, double, and inverted surcharges are known, their status as legitimate errors being confirmed by the existence of many undoubtedly postally used copies. The dealer-speculator seems to have been non-existent in South Russia, for the small parcels of these stamps which have reached this country have nearly always been brought by returned officers. Consequently the majority of the provisionals of South Russia must have been used for their legitimate purpose and have doubtless perished owing to the neglect of a non-philatelic population to preserve them. The stock which remains cannot be large, and when it is exhausted a rapid rise in values may be expected, for the stamps are as interesting as those of the Ukraine, and hold an important place among the philatelic souvenirs of the war and the Russian Revolution.

Of the issues of the Kuban Government, made at Ekaterinodar, we have several 10 and 25 rouble values to add to the catalogue list. We are told that small printings of the latter were made just before the Bolshevik advance and the numbers issued were very small. The 25r on 14k and the Savings Bank stamps surcharged as 10 rouble postage stamps are likely to prove the rarities of the series, though several others will not remain long at the present low prices. The numerous errors in the Kuban stamps, due to careless printing, are of considerable interest. Inverted and double surcharges exist in many values, while we have seen several sheets with surcharge misplaced or with part of the sheet turned over during printing, each of these giving rise to varieties with surcharge omitted. The 4kop stamps surcharged are found in two shades, one the normal rose, while the other is a red not very different from that of the 3kop stamp. The 3r on 4k is found in both shades, while we have only seen the 10r on 4k in the red shade. Nos. 26 and 27 are by some authorities attributed to the Crimea, while the 35k on 1k (No. 120) under the latter heading is said to be of Bolshevik origin. As 35k and 70k were at one time the Bolshevik standard postal rates (cf, the "Sword-and-Chain" type of Soviet Russia), there may be something in this, but 70k was also a standard rate under the Kuban Government (see Nos. 4 and 11/12) so we give these stamps the benefit of the doubt.

The stamps of the Don Government, with large 25 or 50 in surcharge, were rarely seen in London until quite recently. The present prices quoted for these in our check list must be regarded as bargain quotations, for the numbers printed (if correct as published in various contemporaries) were not excessive, and most of the stamps must have been used for payment of postage. The Don errors consist of a few inverted and double surcharges, but misplacements do not seem to have occurred in these as they did in the Kuban provisionals. We are also able to illustrate for the first time a currency stamp issued at Rostov-on-Don, which, like its Russian and Ukrainian counterparts, was also available for postage. The portrait is that of Ermak, a famous hetman of the Don Cossacks in the sixteenth century, and afterwards "prince" of Siberia. Ermak is one of the legendary heroes of Russia, celebrated in the fiction, poetry and drama of the country. The stamps of the Don Government emanated from Novotscherkask, Rostov, and Taganrog.

Our present Nos. 100 to 104 we can say little about. We listed them on continental authority, but our latest informant, who was for some time a resident in Novotscherkask whence they came, had never seen or heard of them, another example of the difficulty of getting full information about these issues. The surcharges resemble so closely those of the Kuban Government that it seems highly probable that they are a second setting of the original values.

The stamps of General Denikin's Volunteer Army, with their "United Russia" legend, form an interesting memento of the efforts of one of Russia's would-be liberators, whose name was at one time familiar to newspaper readers in this country. The specialist of the future (or the wide-awake collector of to-day) may find these stamps worthy of study. There are several different papers, a wide range of shades, and the gum varies from a yellow, evil-smelling, and utterly useless compound to a normal, white, transparent mucilage. The two printings necessary for the bi-coloured rouble values of this issue proved too much for the unskilled operators. The centre is rarely in accurate register with the rest of the design, while it may be found double, misplaced at top or bottom, or even on the back of the stamp. In some cases it is omitted altogether. Some of the rouble values are known perforated, this operation being carried out unofficially at Petrovsk.

The combined currency and postage stamp of the Crimea, which we are now able to illustrate, is the "Wrangel" stamp of recent chronicles in the philatelic press, but it seems to have been issued in 1919, additional evidence of the slowness with which information travels from these regions. Our last addition to the catalogue list consists of a 5r on 5k, imperf., which was bought by a naval officer at a Crimean post office. We believe that further Crimean surcharges exist but are without any definite information.

A few notes on various Ukraine varieties from our latest military visitor may also be of interest. Our publishers' War Catalogue is wrong in placing the thin paper stamps after the money stamps on cardboard, as they appeared first. The designs are by Georges Narbut, while the lithographic work was carried out by Kuzenko of Kiev. Values of the thin paper issue exist perf or pin perf. locally, but these are unofficial. We have been shown at least three distinct shades of the 30sch and 40sch of the thin paper issue, while the 40sch, money stamp, exists in grey-green and olive-green, as well as green. We note two novelties, a fiscal stamp of 50sch, which was authorized for postal use, and a 20 gruvni postage stamp, only recently chronicled, but apparently issued some time ago, as it bears the inscription "Ukrainian Empire." This stamp is not easy to obtain, the number printed being given as about 6000. The 10 and 50 sch of the thin paper series surcharged 35 and 70k respectively, are provisionals issued by the Bolsheviks at Mariupol during one of their incursions.

We have a number of notes on various Ukraine "trident" issues, the most interesting of which relates to the existence of a series with small double-lined trident in red. These were used by the Hetman's Military Field Post Office attached to the headquarters of the army, and should be a scarce issue.

To the Savings Bank stamps authorized for postal use throughout Russia must be added a "Postmen's Fund" label, 15k, black on flesh, inscribed "To the profit of the postman." We have only seen a couple of copies, both postally used.

The prices quoted in the following check list (which cancels the list in the Gibbons' War Catalogue) are based on a recent purchase of a small parcel of the interesting stamps of South Russia. Special sets of these stamps are listed on page 36, and selections can be sent on approval if required. Our stock of many of the varieties is extremely small so that early application is advisable.

As we go to press the news comes to hand of what appears to be a final overthrow of the anti-Bolshevik forces in South Russia. If this is the case we are not likely to hear or see much more of their stamp issues once the country is in the hands of the "Reds".—Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Circular.

MIXED PERFS.

In Le Philateliste Belge we welcome the first number of an attractively produced journal, full of interesting matter. Belgium is fortunate in her philatelic press as she is already the home of our old friend La Revue Postale, the offices of which have recently been moved to Brussels. Another new arrival is Revista de Canges, which hails from Santo Domingo. We note that the M. C. occupies first place in its philatelic press list.

The Seventh Congress of the Universal Postal Union was opened at Madrid by their Majesties of Spain. A special set of stamps of no particular merit has been issued to celebrate the event.

Armenia, the Sarre Basin, Syria, and Memel are reported to be awaiting new permanent sets of stamps. It sounds too good to be true. If only Lettland, Danzig. and one or two others would follow suit.

A flood of commemoratives is shortly due from various parts. Brazil has commemorated the visit of the King of Belgium by issuing a really handsome and dignified stamp; Ecuador contributes a "Centenary of Guayaquil" issue of 19 values; Chili would like everyone to know that it is 400 years since jolly old Magellan found the back door to America; Denmark is rejoicing philatelically over the return of a half-portion of her Schleswig ewe-lamb; and the republics of Central America are combining to blow their own trumpets once more. Fortunately most of the South and Central American efforts are intended for U. S. consumption. They know New Europes have got them well beaten on this side.

Ingermanland is a country about which we should like some genuine information, not that supplied by the protagonists of its two issues. They may be all right, but that quarter of Europe has earned itself an unsavoury reputation as the birthplace of unnecessary and bogus issues, and the name of the new country is enough to condemn it at sight. Has anybody seen any postally used Ingermanlands?

New journals seem to arrive by every mail from the East. We have already referred to the Indian Philatelist, a small journal which should contain the germ of greater things. Now we have the Burman Philatelist, a house-organ from Rangoon which does not contain much original matter, and the Eastern Philatelic Bazar from Calcutta, which is at present purely an advertising medium. The most promising of the new arrivals is the Western India Philatelic Review of Bombay, in which we are glad to note plenty of new and interesting matter.

Batum Addendum.—We have had several enquiries as to the whereabouts of the revised list of Batum referred to in the new Part I Catalogue. Our intention was to include this in the addendum, but after the original list was printed we decided that we could not make any definite improvement, and unfortunately omitted to add a note to the addendum in explanation.

The Australian Philatelist makes some rather severe remarks about a North West Pacific check list recently published. Needless to say, this was not the M. C. list published in our May issue.

Recent Lettish provisionals, so Mr. George H. Jaeger informs us, are rendered necessary by the establishment of new postal rates. We are glad to know that these varieties, at least, serve a legitimate purpose, but we cannot believe that in all her recent "stunts" Lettland had no thought at all of attracting stamp collectors, even though every charity and commemorative issue had some valid national excuse.

We have received from the publishers a copy of the Catalogue Yvert & Tellier Champion, 1921, which, being the twenty-fifth is in some sense a jubilee edition. The new edition maintains the high standard set by its predecessors and now runs to close on a thousand pages. That the rise in stamp values is recognized on the Continent is proved by the prices in this new catalogue, many of which have doubled while there is a marked upward tendency throughout.

"Gibbons" Part I.—More than half the entire edition of Part I 1920 was sold within a month of publication. Needless to say the edition itself was a record one, but at this rate it does not look like having a long life.

The new Japanese stamps offered on page 16 were issued to commemorate the first national census which took place on October 1st. The design shows a census officer of the Taika period (645—650 A. D.) when the original census is supposed to have taken place. The stamps were for use on inland postcards and letters only, and though they are available from September 25th, 1920, to March 31st, 1921, we are informed that supplies are already exhausted. Another Japanese commemorative issue is in preparation to commemorate the completion of the shrine to the late Emperor.—Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Circular.

PRECANCEL COMMENT.

By H. S. DICKEY.

Here's a list of rare odds and ends I've picked up: 3c Troy, N. Y., coil pair, scarce; 50c Los Angeles postage due, fine item; 24c aeroplane Bristol, Vt.; 10c Fort Atkinson, Wis., special delivery, double, very fine; 10c Terre Haute, Ind., special delivery. I wonder what town will be next to have special deliveries.

I've found several Girard, Kan., precancels lately; 2c Pontiac, Mich., inverted; 11c Delevan, Wis., colored ink, up, and it's a bird of a stamp; 7c Owensboro, Ky., down, perf. 10; $1 Dowagiac, Mich., inverted; 3c Two Rivers, Wis., inverted; 8c Ardmore, Pa., a new one on me; 3c Pittsfield, Mass., surface print; 1c Gibsonia, Pa., must be named after those Gibson pictures, or some artist, maybe.

I have 63 varieties of Victory precancels and 35 varieties of 13c precancels, and 32 varieties all together of the 6c, 16c and 24c aeroplanes, so that you can readily see that aeroplanes are hard to catch.

Here are a few new precancels in small type: 1c Tucson, Ariz.; 1c Garrison, N. Y.; 1c Peekskill, N. Y., tiniest type; 1c Coldwater, Ohio (I'll bet this is a Democratic town); 3c Norris, Minn., (I'll have to ask Rotnem where this burg is.)

Here are three of the new 13c precancels: Harrisburg, Pa., a quaint old Pennsylvania town; Plymouth, N. H., must have had a pilgrim move up there from the Mayflower, and Northampton, Mass., the precancellor has a hec of a time with the name, it's generally hit on anywhere from one to three times on every stamp I've seen.

I got a pretty 16c aeroplane from Austin, Texas, up (sailing high, boys).

I don't know where Michigan, Ind., is, but I got a 1c precancel from there.

I have new 1c surface prints from Chicago, Ill., (colored ink); Centerville, Md., down; Columbus, Ohio, double; Richmond, Ind.; Girard, Kan.; Kansas City, Mo., inverted, big type; and Dallas, Tex.

New 2c surface prints from Girard, Kan.; Waukesha, Wis.; Davenport, Iowa, new type; Centerville, Md., down; Elgin, Ill., inverted; Chicago, Ill., inverted; same, double; Brockton, Mass.; Newton, Iowa; Terre Haute, Ind.; and Rochester, N. Y.

All precancels that I chronicle are normal unless otherwise mentioned. Here's a new 3c surface print, Kenton Ohio, in colored ink. I've been too busy to sort out my 3c surface print, though I think I have over 100 varieties.

In order that collectors may get a general idea about how some of the scarcer precancels run, I present here with a list of what I've acquired to date. I now have 217 varieties of 1c surface prints and 40 varieties of 2c surface prints (those of New York and Illinois of course predominate), while of some of the southern and western states I have only one surface print. If the readers desire, I'll give the list by states some time.

The new U. S. set, commemorating the landing of the Pilgrims, out in November, will set the collectors wild.

Indiana, Pa., is a new one on me, but they seem to use them up to the 15c value.

Wildwood, N. J., 11c surprised me as I thought the East was tamed long ago; but perhaps now that Harding is elected it will be effective.

Dallas, Tex., now uses the small type same as Kansas City, Mo.; the 13c is now used too; it's a beauty.

The Kansas City tiny type looks like it is going to be the rare type after all.

When I was a kid I found an old maid (neighbor) whose brother was an employee of the State Department during the Civil War, and I had the pleasure of talking her out of one 2c Dept of State on the original envelope; and my! the dozens of them she had; but I didn't have any money and so couldn't offer anything for the rest of them, so I failed to get them (and that old saying about opportunity coming but once is true).

Likewise an old soldier (whom I knew quite well) marched with Sherman to the sea, and when they captured Atlanta, Ga., they took all the sheets of Confederate stamps as souvenirs; and he had framed a sheet of 1c orange Confederate stamps, also a sheet of the 2c brown red and the 5c and 10c Confederate stamps in a big square picture frame, and covered it with glass. Say boy, how I used to love to listen to his story about the hundreds of sheets of Confederate stamps that the soldiers got out of that post office down South and took home to show their folks. But I have never been able to buy that picture frame full of original sheets of Confederate stamps. It's a beauty, though!

Among the rare 3c surface prints are Two Rivers, Wis.; Marshall, Mich.; Shelburne Falls, Mass.; Norwich, Conn.; Somersworth, N. H.; Albert Lea, Minn.; Pawtucket, R. I.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Memphis, Tenn.; and Red Bank, N. J.

A few new 13c precancels are Oklahoma City, Okla.; and Kansas City, Mo. (both tiny type) Chicago, Ill.; and Troy, N. Y., in normal and inverted; Barre, Vermont, (up); Jersey City, N. J., inverted; Gloucester, Mass., normal and inverted; Hartford, Conn.; and Southbridge, Mass.; Austin, Texas. —Precancel Gazette.

THE PRESS AND THE STAMP TRADE.

By DEREK INGRAM.

My friends, if I presume to claim your indulgent attention for a few moments, please do not assume that it is to read an apologia pro vita sua on behalf of the philatelic press. We have passed that stage long ago. There was a time when you yourself hailed the appearance of a new stamp journal with derision or, at best, received it with cold indifference, unless it happened to be your own "house organ"—the "long-felt want" that blew no one's trumpet except your own. No, sirs, times have changed, and you are now the first to gratefully signify your appreciation of the value of the press to the paramount educative hobby and to your trade.

The press—and not only the technical papers, but the press in general—has testified in no uncertain measure to the importance and the usefullness of postage stamps, and it is becoming more and more the part of the technical press to demonstrate its solicitude for the welfare of the hobby. The future of that hobby lies in the hands of the dealers. They are the distributing agents, in whose hands lies the whole fabric of the business of postage stamps.

And what a fabric it is!—an elaborate network of a highly organized commerce spread over all the world, with representatives stationed in every country and community, every colony and island, ready to purchase supplies of new postage stamps directly they appear and to consign them to their principles for whom they are acting.

It is the dealers who fix and regulate the market price—the philatelic stock exchange, so to speak—of these stamps; and it is to them we look for much guidance on the strictly scientific side of the pursuit, and from whom we derive the benefit of innumerable discoveries—the reward of patient, exhaustive research.

But—and this is where our poor rhetoric culminates in an emphatic warning—the whole fabric of philately, professional and amateur, would have collapsed long ago but for the influence of the philatelic press. Propaganda is the very life of philately. Propaganda without the press is impossible. Stamp dealing minus stamp papers is equally impossible, unless each merchant's trade is to be reduced to such a puny thing as a molecule, depending for its continuance—or even its toleration—on local support and parochial reputation. Well may we ask, where would the stamp trade be to-day but for the powerful influence of its own organs and the successful efforts of its accredited writers?

Formerly it was the almost invariable custom for writers in the lay press, whenever they deigned to descend to such, to them, banal things as postage stamps, to utter cheap sneers at the "insane idea of collecting dirty bits of paper." But the advance of education and enlightenment has taught the whole world that there is no hobby so instructive, so useful, so recreative, so lucrative, as that of stamp collecting. So long ago as March, 1894, the leading newspaper in England, The Times, published a lengthy article, entitled "Stamp Collecting and Postal Revenues," in which the effects which the collection of, and consequent dealing in, stamps have upon the revenues of different colonies and countries were most ably discussed. An immediate result of the appearance of this article in such an eminent daily newspaper was to cause a greatly increased demand for British Colonial postage stamps—for collectors, tyro and savant, had been encouraged to help the exchequers of our loyal colonies, and so to "collect Imperially." A "boom" set in—an insistent, constant demand for the issues of British Colonies which, as my readers will readily agree, have been in vogue ever since, and are likely to remain in popular favour so long as philately lasts.

All this was the result of education, and much of it the direct product of one single journal's precept. How infinitely more potent is the press to-day! And the stamp trade cannot blink its eyes to the fact. The welfare of the one is inseparable from the continuance of the other; the "heart," as represented by the dealers, cannot respire without the "lungs," the essential organs of the trade.

It is entirely due to a widespread philatelic propaganda campaign that the star of stamp collecting—and stamp dealing—is in the ascendant to-day; and publicity in the general press has been a great factor in bringing such a happy state of affairs. Is that fact sufficiently recognized by the men whose living is made from postage stamps? And if it is recognized, do they adequately co-operate in this ambitious educative scheme? The healthy state of the philatelic press to-day, and the enormous volume of trade announcements, implies that the answer to this query is in the affirmative. Only the other day The Times had an entire page full of advertisements for stamp dealers in this country—an unanswerable sign of the importance and prosperity of the trade and a valuable uplift to the already high prestige of the business of postage stamps.

On the other hand, a certain other eminent and venerable newspaper which, until three or four years ago, published a weekly column on postage stamps, has ceased doing so on the ground that the support from the stamp trade "did not warrant the continuance of this feature." For the same reason, several other daily and weekly newspapers in this country, to whom the idea has been suggested, have declined to introduce articles on stamps. For such a state of things no blame can, of course, be imputed, either to the papers themselves or to the stamp dealers, all of whom are naturally groaning under the prevailing high costs of living. It may even seem conceited to imagine that other daily papers would entertain the notion favourably. But why should not articles on postage stamps be a regular feature of every newspaper? With fashions, sport, and crime taking up valuable space every day, surely stamps ought to be discussed by the same papers at least once a week.

That this is no mere Utopian idea is proved by the fact that at the present time short articles and paragraphs relating to stamps are actually to be found in many daily newspapers. This is inevitable because of the remarkable philatelic events that are constantly claiming attention just now. History in the making is more aptly illustrated in new postage stamps than in any other way, and it is not to be wondered that most of the leading newspapers recognize that there is more "human interest" in new issues of postage stamps than was formerly imagined. The astounding prices—far and away above all previous records—lately obtained in Paris and London for various rarities were bound to be treated as items of general news, for no one need be a stamp collector to be impressed by such remarkable transactions.

And, in being impressed, the longing to start collecting stamps has seized thousands of people, young and old, who had hitherto resisted the charms of philately. Now, at last, they recognize that postage stamps are things to conjure with, and that they form the basis of a League of Nations infinitely more adhesive than, say, coins, old china, bric-à-brac, and other collectible objects.

Dealers, "it is up to you"! Stamp scribes are "doing their bit"; help them with might and main, and, what is more to the point, with pocket, in their missionary work. They are striving to educate and instruct the public, to obtain new recruits to philately, to tell the Philistine why he must collect stamps. Don't let this great work be any longer a mere labour of love. For to many such earnest missionaries their work for the cause of stamps is actually a labour of love, bringing scarcely reward and often absolutely no remuneration at all, but actually involving them in personal financial loss, sacrifice of time, amusements, &c. This is the sort of thing that brings down ridicule on the head of the stamp lover. It is up to you to protect and encourage him. Also it is your bounden duty to support the scribe in his efforts to improve the status of the stamp world, to eliminate all that is undesirable, and to maintain our unrivalled hobby on the highest possible plane.

There is too much blood and crime in the newspapers. Let us all combine to supplant them in a gigantic "push" of peaceful propaganda, in the shape of articles, paragraphs, and news items based on postage stamps, backed by bold advertisements.

The decision to inaugurate an International Congress of Stamp Dealers was a most happy one. "Union is Strength," as the motto on the 10 franc "Trois Rois" stamp of Belgium reminds us; but there must be purpose in the strength. We might, indeed, paraphrase the maxim on a certain German stamp by saying "Advertise, advertise, advertise." The stamp trade is a peculiarly international one, and vast possibilities are opened up by the Zürich conclave. There at last the International Board of Philatelic Trade might well see the light.

There is a wealth of suitable literature for the purpose of philatelic propaganda, and this would only require to be reprinted wholesale to make a profound impression on the minds of many—at present—hobbyless, and therefore discontented and irritable, Philistines.

If the stamp dealers of the world will combine in raising a big fund for the purpose, it is conceivable that a minimum of a hundred thousand new stamp collectors could be obtained within a year or two by the wholesale distribution of educative literature. The stamp trade must, indeed, look into the future and establish and enlarge its business by constant and prominent publicity. It is important to remember that the outlay on such publicity should never be based on existing sales of stamps and accessories, but on potential sale. It is a disastrous error (exceedingly common among British firms) to refuse to throw bread upon the waters. It is merely a matter of bad bookkeeping. Advertising, to produce new business and future sales, is in the nature of capital expenditure. It will not infrequently involve spending more for a year or two on advertising than the gross value of the turnover in one year. But it will be worth it. Philately is going on from strength to strength, and when in future years we look back upon the extent of its ramifications and its trade to-day, we may even smile when we observe how small they were in comparison with their immensity in the future.

Switzerland is the fertile land of peaceful propaganda. Let us hope that at the Zurich Congress something will be done to afford practical proof that the stamp dealers of the world fully appreciate the vital importance of the philatelic press, and that they will demonstrate this by according it their substantial and constant support. Otherwise all their deliberations will be futile.—Stamp Collecting.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Rouletted Stamps of 1876-79.

In 1876 another change was made in the color of the 5c denomination and a supply was ordered from the manufacturers printed in blue instead of black. Instead of being perforated, these stamps were issued with roulette. In the following year the 1c and 3c values also appeared rouletted and in 1879 the 2c was issued with this form of separation. The colors of these values remained as before and all four denominations were printed from the plates previously used for the perforated stamps. The 5c is known entirely imperforate.

CHAPTER IX.

The 1880-83 Issue.

In 1880 the contract for printing the postage stamps was awarded to the British American Bank Note Company, of Montreal, who immediately made new plates for the 1c, 2c, 3c and 5c values. While the subjects of the designs are the same as those of the rouletted stamps they replaced, the treatment is entirely different. The portrait of King Edward VII as Prince of Wales is shown on the 1c, but the feather in his cap is larger and has changed sides. The value in words occupies the upper curve of the oval instead of a distinct scroll, while the ornamentation is different and the letters "N" and "F" occupy separate circles in the upper corners.

In the 2c the codfish is on a narrower oval and the lettering is much larger. Numerals of value are shown in the lower corners only and the name "Newfoundland" at top extends right across the stamp.

The portrait of Her Majesty Queen Victoria on the 3c is on a larger scale and the name "Newfoundland" above is not only in larger letters but is upon a much more abruptly curved label. The numerals "3" are shown in the upper corners, while across the base, in a straight label, is "Three Cents". The side ornaments are of a peculiar character and look more like femoral bones than anything else.

On the 5c the seal is larger and is now correctly drawn, while above this only the name "Newfoundland" appears in large letters. At the bottom large numerals "5" are shown in each angle and between them are the words "Five Cents" on a straight label.

All four values were printed in sheets of 100 and are perforated 12. While they were all produced at the same time, the 2c was not placed on sale until 1883, when the supply of the roulette stamps of that denomination finally gave out. This value and also the 1c show considerable variation in shade.

CHAPTER X.

The 1887 Issue.

In 1887 a change in the postage rates on newspapers resulted in ½c stamps becoming necessary, and when a supply of these was ordered, a new 10c value was also requisitioned. The ½c is of small dimensions and is nearly a square of about 14½ mm. The design shows the head of a Newfoundland dog in a circle, around which is a band, inscribed "Newfoundland" at the top, and "Half Cent" at the bottom, the numeral of value, "½" on a tablet, separating the two latter words. The 10c is a transverse oblong rectangle in shape and the design is very similar to the 13c of 1866 except that the vessel is schooner rigged. The name "Newfoundland" is on a curved tablet which extends across the top of the stamp, and at the bottom

AN INNOVATION
I am sealing today in plain, unmarked envelopes five copies of a First Issue revenue most collections lack—$20.00 PROBATE OF WILL.
Collectors out west believe Bostonians and New Yorkers get all good things advertised days before they get their MEKEEL'S. This innovation is to protect the man far away.
No order from this advertisement will be filled until February 21st. Orders, as received, will be placed in plain envelopes and the first five drawn on that day will be filled and others will be refunded.
$17.50, which is one-half catalogue, is the price for this rare stamp. Condition varies but I think each copy worth the price. If you are successful and don't like the copy you get, just return it registered and I will refund $17.75.
Can any offer be more fair?

is "Ten Cents" on a straight label. The numerals of value are shown on discs of solid color at each side of the central design. These new stamps were placed on sale about October, 1887, and at the same time the 1c was issued in green. About a month later the color of the 2c was changed from green to orange-vermilion, the 3c was issued in brown instead of blue, and the 5c was issued in a much darker shade than previously.

CHAPTER XI.

The 3c Stamp of 1890.

In November, 1890, a 3c stamp of entirely new design was issued. In the centre is a small profile bust (to left) of the Queen with a laurel wreath; behind this is a broad circular band, placed so that the profile shows in the hollow enclosed by the band, while the lower part of the latter is covered by the bust; the upper half of the band is inscribed "Newfoundland" in uncolored letters. In the upper corners are shaded numerals "3" on shield-shaped tablets; in the centre below is a large numeral on a fancy label, behind which passes an arched band, extending from one lower corner to the other, inscribed "Three" on the left and "Cents" on the right. Bands of engine-turning at the top and sides complete the rectangular form, and the whole is filled in with fine shading and fancy ornaments. The stamp was engraved and printed at the Ottawa branch of the British American Bank Note Co., and, as usual, the sheets consisted of 100 stamps arranged in ten rows of ten. Presumably the color originally intended for this stamp was slate, but it shows more variation in tint than any other single Newfoundland stamp. All shades and gradations from deep slate to pale grey may be found, frequently with an admixture of violet or lilac for good measure.

This stamp is known imperforate horizontally and at one time it was reported on pink paper. As these pink paper varieties were always without gum, it was obvious that the pink coloring was not in the paper as originally printed. It appears that in 1895 a large package of these stamps suffered shipwreck on their way to St. John's and when recovered were minus their gum and had changed color as the result of their involuntary immersion in sea water.

REFERENCE LIST.

Nov., 1890. Engraved and Printed by the British American Bank Note Co., Ottawa. No wmk. Perf. 12.

3c slate (numerous shades).
(a) Imperf. horizontally.

CHAPTER XII.

The 1894 Issue.

The 12c value was evidently in but small demand, for it was not until 1894 that a new supply was required. The plate, originally made by the American Bank Note Company, was sent to the Montreal printers and a quantity of the stamps printed in a puce-brown color very different from that of the 1866 issue. This value was issued in August, and in November the ½c denomination was issued in black instead of rose-red. A month later the 6c denomination appeared in crimson lake, the supply in dull rose issued in 1870 evidently having only just given out. The American Bank Note Co. plate was used. At the same time a change in the shade of the 5c was made, its color now being a bright blue quite different from the blues of 1880 and 1887.

REFERENCE LIST.

1894. Printed by the British-American Bank Note Co., Montreal. No wmk. Perf. 12.

6c crimson lake.
12c puce brown.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Re-issues of 1896.

In the early part of 1896, 20,000 each of the ½c, 1c (two colors), 2c and 3c (two colors) were reprinted in colors resembling more or less closely the obsolete colors of those denominations. As they were allowed to be used for postal purposes they are more correctly named re-issues than reprints, though they represent a most unnecessary assortment of stamps. Speaking generally, the colors are brighter than those of the original issues and the gum is distinctly yellowish instead of white.

REFERENCE LIST.

1896. Re-issues. Printed by the British American Bank Note Co., Montreal. No wmk. Perf. 12.

1c deep brown.
2c green.
3c brown.

The Cabot Issue.

Following the example of Canada, Newfoundland issued a special series of stamps in the Diamond Jubilee year of 1897, though this series was issued more to commemorate the 400th anniversary of the discovery of the Colony than to mark the jubilee of Queen Victoria, and it is usually known as the Cabot issue. The series consists of fourteen different values ranging from 1c to 60c, and each has its own distinctive design. The 1c, 2c, 5c, 12c, 30c and 60c denominations are upright rectangular in shape and the other values are oblong.

On the 2c is a portrait of Cabot, the discoverer of Newfoundland, and below is the inscription "Cabot. Hym That Found the New Isle". Giovanni Cabot was a native of Genoa. His great desire was to discover new lands beyond the sea, but failing to get help from Spain or Portugal, he went to England in 1491 and settled in Bristol. On March 5th, 1496, King Henry VII granted letters patent to "John" Cabot and his three sons to take possession on behalf of England of any unknown country they might discover. Accordingly the Cabots set out in the Matthew in 1497 and on June 24th sighted the coast of Newfoundland or Labrador, along which they sailed some three hundred leagues. On returning to England, £10 was granted to Cabot out of the Privy Purse and this was recorded in the accounts as to "hym that found the New Isle"—hence the inscription on the stamp. Cabot sailed again from Bristol in 1498 with a small fleet of five ships, but failed to return and nothing was ever heard of the fate of that expedition.

On the 3c is a pretty view inscribed "Cape Bonavista, the landfall of Cabot" this being the first land sighted by Cabot on his memorable voyage of discovery while on the 10c is a picture of Cabot's ship, the Matthew, leaving the Avon at the commencement of the voyage

The 4c, 5c, 6c, 8c, 12c and 24c values illustrate the Colony's resources and sports. On the 4c a hunter with dead caribou is shown, this being descriptive of the sport of caribou hunting, while on the 12c are shown some "Ptarmigan" and on the 24c are two men in a boat fishing for salmon, these also typifying some of the local sports. The 5c illustrates mining, the 6c logging, the 8c fishing, and the 15c a group of seals—these being all resources of the Colony. On the 30c is a representation of the Great Seal of the Colony, which typifies "Fishermen bringing gifts to Britannia" while on the 35c we are shown an iceberg off the coast of St. John's—characteristic coast scenery in the winter months.

On the 60c is a portrait of King Henry VII who granted Cabot the charter to discover new lands. His reign is remarkable for having witnessed some of the greatest events in modern history. Columbus discovered the West Indian Islands in 1492. Cabot made his discovery of Newfoundland and Labrador in 1497 and in that same year Vasco da Gama sailed from Lisbon, rounded the Cape of Good Hope and reached India by sea. These discoveries entirely changed the commercial history of Europe. Hitherto the countries on the Mediterranean Sea had been the most important but they now began to be outstripped by those countries which lay on or near the Atlantic, and Portugal, England and Holland became the great trading nations of the world.

The borders are different for every stamp of the series, but all show the value in words and figures, and the dates "1497-1897", as well as the inscriptions, characteristic of each one.

The stamps were engraved and printed by the American Bank Note Company, of New York, and were printed in sheets of one hundred on unwatermarked paper. They have the 12 perforation usually associated with the productions of this firm. The stamps were placed on sale on June 24th and on the day they were issued the stamps previously current were withdrawn from sale, as shown by the following official notice.—

"GENERAL POST OFFICE,
ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND,
14th June, 1897.

THE POSTMASTER,

Dear Sir,—By order of the Government, I have to inform you that on and after the 24th June inst. the stamps at present in use are to be called in, to be replaced by those of the Cabot issue.

You will please at once make a requisition for all stamps required for the use of the public in your settlement, and return all stamps on hand of the present series, retaining only sufficient for the public requirements while your order goes to the General Post Office.

(Signed) J. O. FRASER."

Only limited quantities of these stamps were printed, and while some of the lower values were soon sold out, others were in stock years later An official circular was issued stating the exact number of each value printed and also showing that the dies and plates were destroyed, viz:—

The following is published for public information:

"AMERICAN BANK NOTE COMPANY,
78 to 86 TRINITY PLACE,
NEW YORK, June 23rd, 1897.

It is hereby certified that from the plates of the Cabot Series of Postage Stamps engraved by this Company in the months of April and May, 1897, there have been printed as follows:—

400,000 stamps 1c; 200,000 stamps 10c;
400,000 stamps 2c; 200,000 stamps 12c;
1,000,000 stamps 3c; 200,000 stamps 15c;
400,000 stamps 4c; 100,000 stamps 24c;
400,000 stamps 5c; 100,000 stamps 30c;
400,000 stamps 6c; 100,000 stamps 35c;
200,000 stamps 8c; 100,000 stamps 60c;

And in addition, one hundred (100) sets of the above stamps, being one stamp of each value; all of which have been delivered to the Post Office Department of Newfoundland.

It is also further certified hereby that on this date, and in the establishment of this Company in the city of New York, in the presence of

JOHN M. GREATA,

There have been destroyed the fourteen (14) steel plates from which the above stamps were printed; together with 7 rolls and 14 original dies or engravings from which such plates were laid down. No other good impressions of stamps from the said plates have been taken; and the bad impressions therefrom, made in the course of printing, have been destroyed by burning.

JOHN E. CURRIER, Asst. Secy.

We hereby certify that on the twenty-third day of June, 1897, we saw the above-mentioned 14 steel plates, 7 rolls, and 14 original dies or engravings destroyed by the American Bank Note Company, New York.

J. M. GREATA,
J. OUTERBRIDGE."

The additional one hundred sets referred to were evidently specimen stamps intended for distribution through the Postal Union.

PROSPECTIVE POSTAL AND STAMP-COLOUR CHANGES.

"Can you have an early article," a correspondent writes, "giving a summary of the Madrid Congress decisions, especially as they affect new postal rates and stamp colours?" Writing on this subject in the Daily Telegraph, Mr. Fred J. Melville says:—

"The decision of the Madrid Convention of the Universal Postal Union to double the unit of letter rate on international correspondence has been known for some days, and it is remarkable that some aspects of the increase, as it will affect this country, have not caused a storm of protests. The Postal Union rates are based on the French currency, reckoned on a gold basis. Hitherto 25 centimes has been the international rate for letters going abroad, and our equivalent has been 2½d. Now the rate is to be fixed at 50 centimes per 20 grammes weight (about 7/10 oz.) and 25 centimes for each additional 20 grammes. Thus, taking our unit of weight as 1 oz., a 1 oz. letter to Paris will cost 5d and a 2 oz. letter 7½d. At the present rate of the French exchange it will cost us to write to France double what it will cost our French correspondents to reply.

"To the philatelist the projected increase means some sweeping changes in the stamp issues of the world. On the new basis the Postal Union equivalents will be:—

50 centimes—5d

For these three denominations the Postal Union agreements require that the colours of the stamps of every country shall be readily recognizable, and hitherto the three units of postage rates have been ½d (5 centimes), green; 1d (10 centimes), red; and 2½d (25 centimes), blue. It is probable that the same range of colours will be applied respectively to the new rates, requiring the 1d stamp to be green, the 2d one to be red, and the 5d stamp blue. This will mean some shuffling and adjusting of stamps of every country in the Postal Union, including our home and colonial issues. In addition there will be the necessity for a large number of our colonies to provide themselves with a stamp of the denomination of 5d, which, in many cases, is not already provided for." —Stamp Collecting.

THE PILGRIM POSTAGE STAMP.

We are at last convinced that there should be a Department of the Fine Arts at Washington or some sort of Bureau of Censorship or something else on that order. This conviction is based on the Pilgrim Tercentenary postage stamp, which has just appeared in our midst and is causing no end of speculation.

It takes an expert in history, art, archæology and microscopy to determine exactly what is meant by the picture and it was a triumph of realism that someone connected with the government should have put in bold letters below the design the words "Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers." We are glad to be informed on this point. At first sight nothing definite appears to view, but concentrated inspection reveals a central male figure in close embrace with someone or something. It may be that he is hugging a woman or is being hugged by a bear or is fighting an Indian, but possibly he is carrying ashore a feather-bed. He seems to be standing in the stern of a whale-boat and possibly is stepping on to the Famous Rock, which does not show in the picture. On the right is what seems to be the ruins of a pine tree and in the left horizon is a ship, which is undoubtedly The Mayflower, and this is the one intelligible feature of the entire design. Apparently this atrocity is a reduction as well as an adaptation of a large steel engraving once commonly seen in American homes with its counterpart, "The Sailing of the Mayflower from Delft," but the process has turned the original into a mass of intricate confusion. Our suggestion to the Washington authorities is that postage stamp pictures designed to be educational as well as commemorative should be simple and should clearly denote the subject. If it was necessary to get up such a stamp as this, it was wholly possible to make it beautiful and illuminating—and now it is neither.—Phila. Inquirer.

By JOSEPH WARD.

FIUME.—The first newspaper stamp from this bit of Adriatic coast is triangular in shape, gray green in color; and one centesimi in value. In the centre is the ship presenting starboard stern, and evidently trying to get out of sight.

PANAMA.—The issue of 1918 consisted of three values: twelve, fifteen and twenty-four centesimos.

The first value pictures the Culebra Cut, with a steamer within. The Spanish caption "En El Corte de Culebra Agosto 11 de 1914" is beneath.

The second shows "El Vapor Panama Cruzando El Canal Vistatomada del sur en El Corte de Culebra Agosto 11 de 1914."

The last of the set portrays the steamer Cristobal in the Gatum Locks, or as the Spanish caption has it, "El Vapor Cristobal en la Exclusa de Gatum El 11 de Marzo de 1915."

On the ninth day of October (1920), the Republic postal department issued two new stamps of the value of fifty centesimos and one balboa. The first pictures the large drydock and machine shops located at Balboa. In the former, however, is seen two ships undergoing repairs.

The 1 balboa has for the main feature of design the collier Nereus in Pedro Miguel Locks.

These stamps were overprinted CANAL ZONE for use in that territory leased by the United States.

TURKEY.—A set of Turkish stamps was issued in 1920. They were five in number and all ship stamps! They are one, two, five, ten, and thirty piastres in value and picture, in order, a cruiser, torpedo boat, the same again, dreadnought, and another cruiser, respectively.

THE CULT OF THE POSTAGE STAMP.
By FRED. J. MELVILLE.

The stamps of the new Republic of Latvia, or Lettland, have added considerably to the pictorial interest of our stamp collections. They are now being produced under the direction of a distinguished artist-engraver, M. Richard Sarrinsch, who is the chief of the Lettish Government Printing Works at Riga. He was formerly Art Director to the Russian Imperial Office for the Production of State Papers, at Petrograd, and he was largely responsible for the high degree of typographical excellence which always characterised the stamps of Russia until the Bolshevists came. Sarrinsch had an adventurous escape from Petrograd, and has now found scope for his genius at Riga. He was responsible for the designs of the several very attractive commemorative issues of stamps in recent months, notably the stamps to celebrate the liberation of Courland from the Bolshevists, showing a Lettish warrior slaying the Bolshevist dragon. Another pretty issue marked the liberation of Lettgalen; and as recently as May 1 of this year, there was his admirably conceived design for stamps to commemorate the first meeting of the Constituent Assembly of Latvia. In this he portrayed Latvia as a young girl in the Lettish national costume, with her hand on the helm in the stern of a boat, which she is steering towards the sunrise. It was an appropriate allegory of the start of the new Parliament, and expressed well the aspirations of the young State. But, as the critics point out, the waves are still high, and the political sky is clouded—facts which only intensify the historic allusion in this allegory.

M. Sarrinsch's latest production is a set of Red Cross postage stamps for Latvia, which are sold at a supplement in excess of their actual postal franking value. The extra amount is collected on behalf of the Red Cross work. Thus the 20 kopec stamp sells for 30 kopecs, 10 kopecs being the Red Cross contribution. The values are: 20+10 kopecs, 40+15 kopecs, 50+20 kopecs, and 1 rouble+30 kopecs. The first three are just to hand, and the fourth value is expected shortly.

The design shows a Red Cross knight warding off Death with his shield, and protecting two wounded warriors. The counterpart of the design and the frame are in another colour, brown in the case of the 20 kopecs, blue for the 40 kopecs, and dark green for the 50 kopecs.

It is something of a curiosity to have an inscription on a stamp commemorative of the Peace Treaty of Versailles. This occurs on the German stamps overprinted for the plebiscite area of Allenstein, in East Prussia. The overprint quotes the Articles in the Treaty under which the plebiscite is provided: "Traité de Versailles. Art. 94 et 95."

Among the many interesting pictorial stamps issued by Belgium during and since the war, there was none commemorative of Termonde, which was deliberately and ruthlessly devastated by the Germans. One has now been issued, whereon (within a maroon-coloured frame) is a view in black of the beautiful town hall of Termonde. The denomination, 65 centimes, is an unusual one, but it is intended for use in paying a combined letter rate and express delivery or registration fee.—Ill. London News.

UNITED STATES AND COLONIES

I am a specialist only in the above, and can help you with your wants in these countries. I have been collecting U. S. since 1881, and I am still at it. Ask John Murray Bartels—he knows—for I was his partner 'way back in 1896-'97, in the stamp business in Washington, D. C. I have a few good things to dispose of, including NEWFOUNDLAND. Full mint pane 1c on 3c (Scott 75-77); 3c airpost, (S. 201), only 200 were issued, of which 87 copies are unused. One mint copy with St. John's P. M. initials on back; also the provisionals of Sept. '20, in blocks of 4, and panes of 25, all mint; also U. S., in blocks. If interested, communicate.

AUCTIONS OF STAMPS:

I attend all auctions in N. Y. City, and will be pleased to act as your agent for your bids. Terms, 5 per cent. of lots secured—no other charges. I have a number of leading collector clients already, for these stamp sales. Always remember, that the man on the floor gets the bargains. I will arrange to handle your collection or surplus duplicates for auction. I want to buy full panes of Parcel Post, and Commemorative issues; also a set of blocks of 4 mint Executive for a customer. Never send anything without quoting prices first. Watch this location weekly. Interviews by appointment in N. Y. City, correspondence by mail otherwise.

WILLIAM W. RANDALL, Times Square P. O. Station, NEW YORK.

GREAT BRITAIN FOR JUNIORS.

To many collectors there comes a time when, owing to various causes, interest in stamp collecting slackens off. This lack of enthusiasm is rarely permanent, and most collectors return to their albums with renewed energy and vigour. One of the causes of this falling off of interest in stamps may be financial, and nearly every collector finds, after he has obtained a certain number of specimens, that it becomes more and more difficult to add anything new to what he already has without dipping deeply into his pocket. This applies to both the specialist and the general collector, and so, unless he happens to be one of the New-rich, he quietly drops collecting until a flood of new issues or a handsome legacy enables him to indulge his fancy once more.

It is to those who find it difficult to carry on that I offer the following suggestions, and more particularly am I endeavouring to interest the younger generation of stamp collectors who may for a time have reached the end of their pocket money.

My advice to those who find themselves up against a fullstop is—become a specialist. I fancy the reader, at this advice, will be inclined to discontinue reading this article any further, as specialism in stamp collecting usually means money, and plenty of it, but I feel sure that if he will only do as I suggest he will find ample repayment in pleasure and further interest in his stamps.

As a start, I recommend a specialist collection of the Georgian issue of Great Britain. These stamps are easy to obtain in quantity. Personally, I have saved all stamps from parcels, etc., received at my place of employment, but, if the reader is not able to obtain many from a similar source, a small outlay at most dealers will secure dozens, if not hundreds, of unpicked, used copies of most of the current values. Even the halfpenny and penny stamps need not be despised, as varieties of shade, watermark and perforation occur that should be collected. If my memory serves me right, I believe a copy of the current penny stamp in aniline pink shade realised several pounds at auction.

Then there is the rare halfpenny green, without watermark, which obtains a price running into several pounds. Here I would like to warn the young collector against attaching too much attention to the value of his stamps. The true collector is not a speculator, neither is he out for financial gain, and he takes as much pride in the commoner issues as he does in his rarities and is always on the lookout to improve the pages of his album by replacing the poorer copies by cleaner and lighter marked copies.

To continue my remarks on specialising, different perforations may also be looked for, but it is chiefly the varieties of shades of colour that I particularly wish to draw the reader's attention.

SHADES, ETC.

I propose to take the various values in rotation, commencing with the three-halfpenny. This stamp is not so varied in shades as many of the others, but careful searching will reveal shades ranging from pale to deep brown. The twopenny value is rich in variety, ranging from a dull orange to almost brick-red, and the collector will have no difficuty in showing several distinct varieties of colour, the colour of the stamp as first printed being distinctly different from that now to be bought at the post office.

The twopenny-halfpenny is also a splendid stamp to specialise in, both in colour and varieties of printing, the shading and lines of this issue being much coarser in some copies than others, while the shades of colour run in large variety through pale and dark blue to a decided greyish blue.

The threepenny value is another good stamp for our purpose, and, like the twopenny, there are two distinct varieties of colour, one in mauve and the other in red-lilac. In both colours various shades can be found.

The fourpenny stamp is not so prolific in shades, neither is the fivepenny. In the former, grey and grey-green varieties may be found; so far the fivepenny has remained fairly even in colour. Next comes the sixpenny. This, like the threepanny value, has been issued in a variety of colours, and many different specimens can be shown, varying from pale lilac to deep red-lilac.

The sevenpenny and eightpenny values (which, by the way, are obsolete) are not so varied, and the same remark applies to the three remaining values, the ninepenny, tenpenny and shilling As time goes on these three values may show more variety, especially as many more of them are now being used owing to the higher postal rates.

Most of the values mentioned have been issued with inverted watermarks.

SPECIAL POSTMARKS.

I have also added to my collection used stamps bearing the special postmarks issued during the war. I refer to the "Buy war bonds," and similar postmarks. These will be of historical interest in the future, if not already so.

While writing of postmarks, copies of stamps postmarked on the day of issue are always interesting, and these, together with any early dated copies, can be included at the collector's option. Coloured postmarks can also be collected if desired.

As my remarks are meant for the collector of small means, I do not propose dealing with the four higher values (the 2s 6d, 5s, 10s and £1), but to those who are able and wish to continue a specialised collection of these there is ample material to work on.

KING EDWARD ISSUES.

Having completed the Georgian issues, we can now follow on with the stamps of King Edward's reign which, although obsolete, can still be obtained at very moderate prices for unsorted used lots.

It will be noticed that these stamps differ from those of King George inasmuch as most of them are bicoloured; they therefore probably offer a larger field for specialising.

The Edwardian stamps were printed by two different firms, Messrs. De la Rue (who printed them from 1902 to 1911), and in 1911 by Messrs. Harrison & Sons, who were responsible for five values, the halfpenny, penny, twopence-halfpenny, threepenny and fourpenny (orange). Later, in 1911-12, they were printed at Somerset House, and the values issued from there were the three-halfpenny, penny, twopenny, fivepence, up to £1. The De la Rue and Somerset House series were perforated 14, whilst the Harrison stamps are perforated both 14 and 15 by 14.

BERTRAND L. DREW

The Harrison prints can generally be distinguished from the others by the coarseness of the printing and a certain indistinctness in the finer lines of the stamps. I believe the only sure way to distinguish the printing of the various firms is by the control numbers. To obtain these is probably out of the reach of many collectors, so I suggest for the present that these minor varieties be ignored and that the collection be continued in the same way as suggested for the Georgian issues.

The Edwardian stamps were also printed on two varieties of paper, known to collectors as ordinary and chalk surfaced. The latter paper is so prepared that it is impossible to remove any postmark or other obliteration from any stamp that has once been used. This, while preventing those so disposed from defrauding the revenue by using a stamp twice, has also to a great extent, protected stamp collectors from "cleaned" stamps being sold as unused ones, thus killing two birds with one stone. It is difficult in many used copies to detect the difference between the ordinary and chalk-surfaced paper. The easiest way to find out whether a stamp is printed on ordinary or on chalk-surfaced paper is to draw a small silver coin across one of the perforations or a piece of the marginal paper adhering to the stamp. If a black line appears where the silver has touched the paper, it indicates chalk surface."

EDWARDIAN SHADES.

Commencing with lowest value, the halfpenny, of the Edwardian series. This stamp was printed in three distinct shades of green, the first being dark or blue-green, the second being yellow-green of a pale shade, and the third a dull pale green. Shades of colour of the two latter issues, also varieties of watermark and perforation, should be looked for. The penny red also shows a slight variety of shades as well as of perforations and watermarks.

It will be noticed that the four values, halfpenny, penny, twopence-halfpenny and sixpenny, were printed in a new design, and are not, as most of the other values, an adaptation of the designs previously used for the Jubilee issue of Queen Victoria, also that the twopence-halfpenny and sixpenny are printed in one colour, the reason for this single colour printing being economy on the part of the authorities. Only one die and one printing being required, less expense was incurred in producing the stamps. Would that all Government departments were as careful!

The three-halfpenny, purple and green, is to be found in various shades, and the same remark applies to the next value, the twopenny, green and carmine.

The 3d is remarkable for its being printed on coloured paper, which is yellow. It is the only one of this series so printed. The design is in dull purple, and this stamp is interesting inasmuch as the colour of the paper and that of the imprint vary.

The fourpenny value was first issued in green and brown, and later (November, 1909) in an entirely new colour, orange. Both stamps show a variety of shades, and careful examination will reveal minor details and differences in the dies used for the separate issues.

The fivepenny, purple and blue, is also worthy of attention, the difference in both the colours varying from pale to bright. The sixpenny, purple, is to be found in coarse and fine printing. The shades of this stamp probably vary more than any of the others. Gibbons list at least eight different varieties of colour. Plenty of space will therefore be required for this stamp in our album.

The sevenpenny, grey, an entirely new value, was issued to the public in May, 1910. The design is similar to that used for some of the Colonial issues. It does not offer much variety to the specialist, and only exists in a few shades.

The ninepenny, tenpenny and shilling are all bicoloured, and each of them shows a large variety of shades and colours, the shilling being particularly varied. I have seen a block of four in which the central portion is a very deep green—in fact, nearly black.

As with the Georgian issues, I do not intend to deal with the four higher values, and I leave them to the option of the collector.

It will be noticed that I have worked backwards in this article, having taken the Georgian (current) issues first, my object in so doing being to interest the young collector in specialising in stamps that are easily and cheaply obtained.

MOUNTING UP.

To arrange such a collection as I have endeavoured to outline, I suggest that a small blank album be obtained, a page, or more if required, being devoted to each stamp. The stamps should be placed on one side of the paper only. The opposite blank page may then be used for any notes or memoranda, should the collector be so disposed.

Needless to say, only fine well-centered copies should be used. Pairs, blocks and strips will add to the beauty of the collection.

Many readers will doubtless improve and to those who wish to go more deeply into specialism, I recommend the excellent series of handbooks by Mr. Fred. J. Melville on the stamps of Great Britain, which may be obtained from the proprietor of this journal at very moderate cost.

In conclusion, to the young collector I offer the oft repeated advice: "Study your stamps," and I feel sure that, as time goes on, no collector will regret the time given to the commoner varieties of to-day. Indeed, I firmly believe that the studying of your stamps will prove as beneficial to the mind as a mu advertised course of mind and memo training.—Stamp Collecting.

TWO TIMELY TOPICS.

By ALVAH G. CLARK.

ome months ago we referred to the book ribed by Mr. Clark and commended it ly. It is a matter of regret that the price es the book out of the reach of the ordi- collector. In connection with the "repntative collection" Mr. Clark submits the ograph referred to for our inspection. It teresting and we would reproduce it in the EKLY were it not for the fact that some he subjects would not come out clearly.—O. W.)

rom time to time in the last several rs I have noticed articles upon the ject of stamp colors, and, as I renber, none of them gave a text or a erence work that would meet the cting conditions. I myself would e, until a few weeks ago, been just hopelessly at sea, so to speak, about ext that one could use in matching colors or giving the various shades stamps a name.

bout six weeks ago I had brought my attention by the Head of the nestic Art Department of our Tren- School, a book that I immediately ognized as a most valuable help to latelists. I speak of "Color Standand Nomenclature" by Robert Ridgy, Curator of the Division of Birds, S. National Museum. This book, lished in Washington in 1912, has colored plates and pictures in color 5 named colors. It is a most wonful book of its kind, and I immedily wrote to G. E. Stechert & Co., ok sellers), 151-155 West 25th St., w York City, as to whether or not y could supply this work. They re- d that they could furnish same for . Possibly this is too costly for many tamp collector, but it should surely in every philatelic library. I send information for what it is worth.

read with interest the article by land S. St. Pierre on "A Junior Colion." Some of the advice he sets th therein is very good indeed for "Junior." Next to his last paraph about a "Representative Collei" particularly interests me. This he cribes as one stamp from each stamping country. This is, as he says, a y interesting collection. I have one, I send herewith a photograph of out of six Circassian walnut frames, h holding one hundred stamps, in ich it is contained. The point I de- to bring out is that I pity the nior" who attempts it unless he is ch better off financially than the rage collector well up in his "teens." et me mention just a few items that vas compelled to secure. The prices ted having been paid ten years ago, l for the cheapest stamp from the ntry named, that I could obtain:—

Bremen,	$1.00
British Columbia,	.75
Honduras (Comayagua),	2.00
Bamra,	1.25
India (Jamu and Kashmir),	5.00
Marianna Islands,	7.50
Poland,	2.50
Roumania (Moldavia),	2.25
Madagascar,	1.90

could name several others. Besides s some that catalogue only a few ts, will make you think you are sing the end of a rainbow. My colion is not complete now. Then there are all the new countries which have been created by reason of the late war. Some of these I believe are, even now, next to impossible to obtain.

It is a most interesting collection for a "Senior."

OUT OF RUSSIA.

By PERCY MCG. MANN.

It has been almost six years since the Philadelphia Stamp News "discontinued", but hardly a day passes that I do not receive a request for a "sample copy" from some one who either finds an old advertisement offering that publication or who was unaware of its discontinuance.

Today, January 10, 1921, I received a registered letter from Moscow, Russia. One can imagine my disgust when I found the envelope franked with the old imperial government postage stamps instead of some weird Soviet emission. Two No. 77 and two No. 79, equalling 30 kopeks, placidly sealing the envelope at the back was all that met my eye.

Russia, and especially old time European Russia, has been more or less of a closed book to philatelists since bolshevism entered upon its career. And when one at last receives some word from Soviet Russia, one expects some indication of its political existence on its postage stamps. The letter reads:—

"Herewith I send you Roubl 5—and please you to send me your Journal Philadelphia Stamp News for the years of 1920, 1921 and 1922 to my address. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain, etc."

It was dated "Moscow, the 14 Juny, 1920!" The stamps were cancelled Moscow, 15-6-1920! And it was delivered to me today, January 10, 1921, having been over six months getting out of Russia to America! It was so long on its journey that the U. S. P. O. when it reached this country and the other registry offices through which it passed to reach Philadelphia, did not place the usual registry postmark at the back as is customary.

Soliloquizing, 5 roubles at the present rate of exchange would not pay for the P. S. N. for one year, let alone the three years requested.

But saddest of all, there was not a single kopeck in the letter. Somewhere, somehow, the mysterious Soviet postal officials or clerks appropriated that 5 roubles! There is Russian writing in pencil on the cover, and perhaps this accounts for the removal of the roubles, and perhaps it doesn't—over this writing there appears a Moscow censor mark, dated 18-6-20. I am writing to the Russian philatelist, and perhaps he will give us some philatelic news from "Out of Russia."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—H. E. Harris of the firm H. E. Harris & Co. re-states his conviction that German dealers are making a practice of establishing two prices with the American dealer getting the short end of the bargain. Answering the statement made by Carl Hennig in a recent WEEKLY he returns to his original charge and furnishes us with documentary evidence that his case is a good one. American dealers doing business in Germany will do well to protect themselves.

—Three new songs by Howard Starr Dickey have been sent us for review. They are entitled "Fulfillment", "When the Nightingale Sings in the Moonlight" and "That Gee-Gee Girl of Mine". Price of each, 60c.

—Bridger & Kay inform us that they have just acquired a collection of New South Wales, the deal running into 30,000. The firm considers this a probable world's record for a single country.

—If any of our subscribers would like to send a ray of cheer into the life of a shut-in, the opportunity is offered in the person of Fred A. Jekel, 2203 Miami St., St. Louis, Mo. The Managing Editor is satisfied that Mr. Jekel is deserving of being remembered.

—There is a letter at this office for E. G. Young. Kindly send address.

—We have received a very neat perforation gauge and watermark detector from the Stamp Shoppe, Washington, D. C. It is for sale to the trade and any collector may secure a specimen by sending stamp.

—The WEEKLY for Jan. 8 is a mighty good number but I beg to protest against the hypercritical attitude in regard to the "Pilgrim" stamps. It seems to me that there is a tendency among stamp collectors to feel that every new issue must be criticised and that criticism reveals a high degree of philatelic intelligence. Criticism of another's effort is the cheapest thing in the world and a great deal of it is worse than worthless. In my opinion the new Pilgrim stamps are a very fine set, not open to any legitimate criticism, and I believe they will be very popular. Contrary to Mr. Ward and Mr. Severn, I think the five cent is decidedly the most attractive of the three stamps. I call it a beautiful stamp, unless critically analyzed under a lens. The criticism that the name or initials of the country are missing and that this is a defect, seems to me silly. No one in the wide world capable of enjoying a stamp will fail to recognize the issuing country. Every stamp collector knows that Great Britain assumes that her stamps will be recognized. I think that Uncle Sam can take a chance once in a while. —HUBERT LYMAN CLARK.

—"We have never received settlement or reply of any kind from Frank Warner, Victoria 724, Buenos Aires, Argentina, and furthermore, we were advised by another dealer in that city that Frank Warner and C. P. Mego were trade names under which Hiordan (P. V.) was conducting business. As this man is an old offender, it is about time he was brought to justice. We have already placed the account in the hands of an attorney in Buenos Aires, but would be glad to obtain additional evidence against him, so would appreciate it if you will insert a notice to this effect."—H. E. HARRIS & Co.

—I am under the impression my subscription has about expired and am, therefore, enclosing my check for one dollar, for I'd hate to think what might happen should I try to keep in touch with things without its aid. You certainly are to be congratulated on the manner in which you keep up the standing of the paper from week to week and year to year.—BREWER CORCORAN.

—F. E. Hook, 4715 Lincoln Av., Detroit, would like to obtain the name of the collector in Williamstown, Mass., who recently ordered some stamps and forgot to sign his name to the letter.

—The annual election of officers of the St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society was held Jan. 4 at the club rooms, 801 Chemical Bldg. The officers are:—H. W. Marston, Pres., W. D. Helman, Vice-Pres., and C. W. Swatek, Sec. and Treas.

500 All Different WAR STAMPS $5.00

A VERITABLE GOLD MINE FOR COLLECTOR OR DEALER. A GENUINE SNAP.

Every live Collector knows that I always give more than full value for money received. This Packet is no exception. It has been made up especially for me by a large German dealer and could not be produced in this country for twice the price. It contains such fine things as the new Turkey Pictorials (5 vars.); Thrace (Allied Occupation); Esthonia, provisional mark values; Lichtenstein, big Jubilee stamps; German Occup. of Roumania & Lithuania, Poland surch. on Austria; Upper Silesia, scarce 1st Issue; Memel on France; Danzig, Schleswig and East Silesia Plebiscites, etc., etc.

Ordinarily, I do not offer packets. But this is so big and so real a bargain that I have made an exception to my general policy.

Furthermore—should you not be satisfied in every way, should you not feel that this is THE BIGGEST FIVE DOLLARS WORTH YOU EVER SAW, send it back and your money will be refunded without question on my part. I REALLY AND SINCERELY want you to see this unparalleled BARGAIN.

A NEW YEAR'S GREETING.

The Managing Editor has received from Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Vallancey of Stamp Collecting a set of photographs neatly mounted, forming a souvenir of his visit to Sidcup last August. The beautiful Vallancey home is pictured from all angles and there are several interior views picturing the comfort that some stamp publishers are privileged to enjoy. There is a full length picture of the two Managing Editors, and the photograph of Mrs. Vallancey and their daughter is particularly well executed. The tennis court revives memories of the Saturday afternoon in August when we had an enjoyable visit at this beautiful London suburb.

EDITORIAL.

Back—From one of the delegates to the recent International Postal Congress at Madrid, Spain, we have received some interesting particulars of the session and he was impressed, it seems, by the industry of the attendants in writing home and using the special stamps. with postmark for the occasion. that were issued to celebrate the meeting. As Mr. Prager, the second assistant postmaster general, says, much interest was manifested in the developments of postal transportation, aerially, and from reports, it appears that the air service of the United States was regarded as a triumph. At least, many of the European countries expressed great interest in our aerial mail affairs. It is evident that the most engrossing subject in postal circles to-day is that aerial transmission of mails.

Albania—A correspondent has given us an interesting dissertation of Albania and its stamp issues. He writes: "It was a very interesting experience, for Albania is more primitive than any other part of the world I have seen to date. I did not suppose that there was anything like it in Europe as it is a country not only without railroads, but even without roads. Albanians did not seem to know the meaning of government or nationality and it was my interesting experience to have been at its real birth as a nation and to get photographs of the first session of its first congress, the first officers. etc. At their first session, they elected a temporary president and allowed me to come in and get the pictures while they were making history for themselves, not important history as the world goes, but of great moment to themselves. Albania is a country almost all mountains which were practically isolated from other peoples, so that it was not the easiest matter to develop a national spirit; and I fancy that they have a long way to go yet, though their success in forcing the Italians out of their country must have helped greatly in cementing them together. Of course, they reckon their independence from the 28th of November. 1912. when they declared their independence of Turkey; but from that day on. they have been dominated by outside influences. It was part of Germany's plan to absorb it through Austrian occupation, and when the Austrians withdrew in the autumn of 1918, the Italians and French succeeded them in different parts of the country. . . . . During the Turkish regime, of course the Turkish stamps were in use. Albania's first real stamps were the Skanderberg set, showing the portrait of old King Skanderberg. During the time of the Prince of Wied, these stamps were marked with a rubber stamp till such time as the regular Prince of Wied stamps should be secured from Italy, where they were being printed. The 10 quintar stamp was received from Italy three or four days before the Prince of Wied evacuated and was never put in circulation. One of my interpreters was postmaster at Durazzo at the time and has a large stock of stamps of all issues. During the occupation of Scutari by the Austrians, special stamps were used and during its defense by Esad Pasha, the Tarabosh stamps were used, followed by others during its period as an International City. following the Balkan wars, etc." We promise further particulars concerning some of the Albanian issues.

Offered—From Mr. C. F. Richards, New York City, we have received the following letter: "Here's a question that I do not remember having seen discussed in print: Is it permissible to remove from your approval books stamps to test watermarks? a customer asks, in effect. I told him: 'I imagine that this question would be answered differently by different dealers and collectors. Personally, I have never done it, for if the watermark cannot be discerned by scanning the back, I do not care for the stamp. At the same time. I can see no reason why the stamp should not be removed. if carefully replaced without damage in any way. It would be too risky to try the benzine treatment. You can bet your bottom dollar that there are plenty of collectors who do not hesitate to take the stamps out.' Would you care to discourse on the subject?" Mr. Richards' opinion is the one generally accepted. although it may be doubted that the careful buyer would have any compunctions against immersing the stamp in benzine to prove the watermark. Would the collector feel that he did not have ample justification in putting the stamp back if the correct watermark did not show? We trow not.

Example—A reader, Mr. Lewis Winkler Bealer of Washington, takes pen in hand to indite a letter, as follows: "I enclose herewith a letter just received that explains itself. Regarding it, I will say that while in the past I have subscribed to a number of collectors' publications, never but once (in this case the Borderland Collector that made a generous refund) has there been any notice of suspension, refund or suggestion or promise of refund; and I think that Mr. McKee and the Scottish Philatelic Co. deserve great commendation for their conscientious efforts in this respect. Don't you?" Yes, we do, especially in view of the fact that the suspension of the Scottish Philatelist was a consequence of the insolvency of the banks of the publishers. Nevertheless, Mr. Andrew McKie, the manager of the publishing company, says that the remaining portion of the subscriptions is to be refunded. We may say that there have been instances in this country where upon the discontinuance of their stamp papers. the publishers have returned scrupulously the unearned parts of subscription money, but these exceptions truly are rare.

Cheap—Many collectors in this country have been receiving lots of stamps from dealers in middle Europe that are sent unsolicited. The typical selection consists of a batch of New Europe at about prevailing prices and a few fancy things at stiff figures. We suppose that there is a good profit in these "sendings" because of the hazard attending the promiscuous distribution of the stamps. This indiscriminate showering of wares on collectors whose names are obtained here and there is bad business and the aftermath will be unpleasant. The unsolicited approval lot brings woe in its wake, as a rule, and we are pleased to see that the American Stamp Dealers' Association has ruled that it will not undertake the collection of accounts based on this reprehensible practice.

Supposing—If a reputable philatelist is said to have exhibited at a stamp meeting the inverted two cent of the current issue, in its relation to the rest of the stamps on the sheet, and if other collectors say that they have actually seen said stamp. what is the answer? If a departmental notice was issued calling attention to the invert. we have not seen it; and if the department has had returned to it. sheets about which it may have sent out warning. it has not found any of the "mistakes," so we are informed reliably. A correspondent says that he cannot get a line on any story in this connection and so we try another tack. and that is write to the department itself. This suggests the statement that it is not the intention of the authorities to alter the designs of the Pilgrim stamps to conform with the custom of including the name of the United States on the legend of the stamps.

Appreciation—We hail the Hartford Courant. whose Washington correspondent sent in recently a richly flavored, philatelically, letter from the capital, as the managing editor headed the remarks on Congressman Ackerman's philatelic activity; the contributions of collectors to the department through their purchase of unused stamps; and their keenness in spotting forgeries: "Stamp Collectors Give $250,000" and "Philatelists Also Detect Practically All Counte feits." Do you remember way ba when the Honorable E. B. Sterlin who, by the way, had a prominent pla in the recent political march, discover the famous forged beer stamp and w substantially rewarded by a gratef government?

EXCELSIOR WATERPROOF MATCH.

Baltimore.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

Among the many match stamps which have either an unusually interesting design or an unusually interesting history we may rightly class two that were used in Baltimore. In fact, both their history and their design possess features quite out of the ordinary. The first of these two stamps does not bear any firm name nor indication as to who were the proprietors and in that respect is unique among all the match revenues. In the Boston Book the stamp is listed under the heading "Excelsior Match Co., Baltimore," but the present writer can find no company of this name in the Baltimore records. Quoting from the Boston Book, the reader will note that "* * * * * Lord & Robinson, * * * formed the company * * * etc."—a statement that apparently is not in full accord with the facts.

"This die, although belonging to Lord & Robinson, who formed the company, was originally registered and approved as the property of one C. J. Donnelly. In some way Mr. Donnelly became involved in a dispute with the real proprietors of the die and refused to allow them the use of it. The matter was referred to the Bureau at Washington for adjustment, and they decided that the best way out of it was for Mr. Carpenter to submit a new model, of the same design, to the Department, the same to be approved in the name of the real owners. This was done; and, on January 28, 1870, Mr. Carpenter wrote to Lord & Robinson informing them that the design had been approved for their use. It is, so far as we know, the only case where the same design was twice approved. In August, 1872, the die, plate, etc., were sold to the Maryland Match Co."

Die approved, January 29, 1867.
First issued, February 21, 1867.
Last issued, August, 1872.
25,405,440 issued on old paper.
210 stamps per sheet, (14x15).

The firm of Lord & Robinson was composed of C. W. Lord and G. W. Robinson and is listed in the Baltimore directories for 1868 to 1872 as wholesale dealers in brooms, woodenware, etc., at 88-90 W. Lombard St. The only reference to matches is in the directory for 1871 where in addition to the above, the note, "match factory, 8 Saratoga St.," is carried. That number on Saratoga St. is the same address as the Alexander match factory in 1865-67 and probably was at the same building, but as Saratoga St. has been numbered East and West for many years, the exact location cannot certainly be identified. Probably it was on what is now East Saratoga St. near North Gay St, and only two or three blocks from the present City Hall.

The Baltimore directory for 1867 lists Chas. J. Donnelly as a match manufacturer at 15 China Alley. Evidently the Excelsior Waterproof Matches were made by Mr. Donnelly for Lord & Robinson from early in 1867 until sometime in 1869 and this fact explains why Lord & Robinson appear as match manufacturers only in the 1871 directory and why neither their name nor Donnelly's appears on the stamp. A queer mix-up!

The Lord & Robinson stamp is an upright rectangle of the standard 1c size bearing as its principal device a representation of the subject of Longfellow's poem "Excelsior". The writer is unable to learn whether the scene is from some artist's painting or is from a drawing made purposely for the stamp. In the foreground of a mountain scene a scantily clad youth facing toward the right is depicted in the attitude of climbing upward and onward, his left arm outstretched and carrying in his right arm a banner inscribed "Excelsior". The word "Excelsior" also appears arched over the top of this scene and "Waterproof Match" is curved below it. A straight marginal label across the top of the stamp reads "Baltimore" and a similar label across the bottom is inscribed "U. S. Inter. Rev." In each corner, just inside these marginal labels is a small circle containing a colorless numeral "1". Side labels just below the upper numerals read "One" at the right and "Cent" at the left. Floral ornaments here and there and a fine line of color surrounding the whole, complete the design. The effect is most pleasing.

This stamp was one of the later Butler & Carpenter productions and certainly is a credit to the Philadelphia engravers. All of the issue was printed there and probably there were three or four plates used. The usual color is a rather dull blue, sometimes greenish, which is characteristic of the blue M & M stamps printed in Philadelphia on old paper, but the stamp also exists in light blue on the thick paper of the scarce 1870 printing. The scarcest shade on old paper, however, is the true ultramarine of 1869. This color is very rare indeed, only three or four copies being known to the writer. One of these copies bears a manuscript cancellation that is not perfectly legible but appears to read "6-23-70—H & J" in two lines. Strange to say, this specimen is the only copy of the Baltimore Waterproof Match noted with any cancellation.

The variety on silk paper is much scarcer than the old paper stamp and the shade of the former is much darker than that of the latter. A copy on the experimental silk paper of 1870 has not been noted but may possibly exist, as this stamp was being printed about the time that paper was in use. Probably all the stamps on old paper were used by Lord & Robinson, but it is impossible to state whether any of those on silk paper were used by that concern, as they seem to have gone out of the match business in 1871 or 1872 and there is no reference to the Saratoga St. factory or to matches in connection with Lord & Robinson in the Baltimore directories after the edition for 1871. Stamps on silk paper printed between August, 1871, and August, 1872, may have been used by them.

Apparently Lord & Robinson sold their match business to Weedon & Bell, as the latter firm first appears in the Baltimore directory for 1872 as proprietors of the Maryland Match Co. The factory of the Maryland Match Co. was on Fort Avenue near Johnson St. and their office was at No. 13 Cheapside for about two years. The firm of Weedon & Bell was composed of Jas. H. Weedon and Henry C. Bell. In the 1873 directory the firm appears as Weedon, Armistead & Co.,—Mr. J. J. Armistead being the new partner—and the following year—1874—is its last appearance. In 1874 the office address was 35½ Light St. and Henry C. Bell is listed as a box manufacturer.

The Excelsior Waterproof Match stamps have always been fairly plentiful in the usual indifferent condition. In 1888 Sterling valued the old paper variety at $1 and the silk at 50c. The Scott quotations more correctly reflect the relative scarcity of these two varieties:

	Old	Silk
1896,	.75	.75
1898,	1.00	1.00
1900,	.60	.75
1903-20	.80	1.50

The ultramarine color was first listed about 1906 and since 1910 has been quoted at $12.50. In view of the extreme rarity of the true ultramarine shade, the quotation is remarkably modest and should not be accepted very seriously

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address

UNITED STATES.—It is indeed odd how the same notes will be read by two different persons and will be interpreted by each in a different way. In a recent Chronicle I described in detail the Pilgrim stamps and tried my best to be impartial. Hardly had the paper arrived when one dealer wondered why I had been so severe in my criticism, the stamps, he thought were worthy of the strongest commendation. Shortly after, a collector wanted to know why I praised the issue when the engraving was crudely done, their appearance was unsatisfactory, and altogether they were among the poorest work turned out in the way of United States stamps. Look them over yourself and take your choice. They certainly cannot compare with the 1869, the Columbians or the Omaha issues, but are far superior to the recent Victory emission. A few years back the Bureau of Engraving and Printing lost Mr. Baldwin, no doubt their best postage stamp engraver, and he certainly has not been replaced.

Numerous letters have been received asking as to the plate numbers of the several denominations. In all, twenty plates of the 1c, twenty-four plates of the 2c, and exactly two plates of the 5c were made. The entire series of forty-six plates are of 280 subjects which are cut into post office sheets of 70. The lowest plate number of the 1c is No. 12418 and the last plate 12459. The earliest plate of the 2c is No. 12422 and the last plate, which, by the way, is the highest numbered plate of the Pilgrim issue is No. 12463. The two 5c plates are numbers 12426 and 12427. While there has been but one printing, the 5c denomination has appeared in two very distinct shades, a deep indigo and a light blue.

Through the courtesy of the Hon. James L. Wilmuth, Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, we are able to bring out list of plate numbers up to January 14, 1921. It will be noted that most of the plates made are for the 2c surface printed stamps, of 400, 800 and 1600 subjects, to be used on the three sizes of presses. A large number of these are necessarily required for the life of such a plate is exceedingly small. Four new 1c plates of 400 subjects for the rotary presses have been made which will produce the well known perforated 10x11 varieties. Outside of four plates for 5c stamps, the only other engraved ones are a few for the 2c sidewise rotary coil stamps and four for the 2c booklets.

Mr. C. H. McBride sends for inspection a copy of the 2c surface print, type II, showing a very distinct imperfection, evidently a plate scratch, extending vertically through the entire stamp. No doubt the stamp above, as well as below, is in a similar condition.

Dr. G. Ward Disbrow sends a copy of the same stamp showing a horizontal line through the left "2" and "EN" of "CENTS". This is the 46th stamp on the S. E. pane of sheet No. 11896. Anyone watching the current offset stamps will certainly be rewarded with minor plate varieties, for almost every sheet contains some imperfection.

Rev. E. M. Gearhart sends for inspection a horizontal strip of three of the 2c Stock Transfer revenue wherein the stamp itself is doubly printed, or rather shifted.

The first precanceled Pilgrim stamp like the first Victory, comes from Federalsburg, Md., and was used on Wolsieffer's recent auction catalogue. Only the 1c has been seen, but of course the 2c and 5c will be issued by this enterprising post office.

Our Chronicle would hardly be complete without a list of the provisional 2c on 3c envelopes. Mr. J. R. Allen Thomson sends new ones from San Antonio, Messrs. R. H. Mason and H. B. Agnew a new window variety from New York. Each was overprinted for a different Connecticut firm but were the same variety. Messrs. Harmon Wendell and Mason send a new size 7 on blue from Detroit, Rev. C. L. Young another from Des Moines, Mr. George Smith several from Portland, Me., Mr. J. V. Nielson one from Charleston, and Mr. J. H. Wilms the first we have seen from Louisville. While this is a type IV overprint, the figure "2" is so tall and narrow that it can be readily told at a glance from all of the others.

Mr. R. K. Milne informs us that 1,449,292 postals were overprinted in Grand Rapids.

ARGENTINE.—Mr. Arthur Chubb sends us a copy of a new 5c stamp in greyish blue color that is evidently a new commemorative. The stamp has a side view of "Capitan General Justo Jose de Orquiza" and at the top beside the name of the country is "1859 11 de Noviembre 1920". The figures of value are in each lower corner. Mr. Chubb also adds that he has received a copy of the 2c red with the inscription "1820-1920, Mausoles del Gral. Belgrano".

AUSTRALIA.—A new value, the 1s 4d, was issued in Melbourne on December 2nd. Design, King George's head; wmk., single Crown A; color, pale peacock blue. This stamp will be used principally for telegraphic purposes.—Australian Philatelic Record.

CILICIE.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the following values of French stamps with these surcharges: 2c surcharged "O. M. F. Cilicie Sand. Est. 5 paras"; 5c, the same as the previous value except the value is "10 paras"; 10c, the same but "20 paras"; 25c, the same but "1 Piastre"; 15c, the same but "2 Piastres". All overprints are in four lines in black.

COLOMBIA.—Mr. W. Ward shows us a distinct novelty in "surcharges" in the shape of a copy of the 5c numeral type adhesive (with the word PROVISIONAL inset diagonally across the lower part of the figure), bearing an indecipherable "overprint," which, we are told, was impressed over the design on the lithographic stone itself!—Stamp Collecting.

DANZIG.—The new 4m value, Germania type, has been overprinted "Danzig" in black. The Economist Stamp Co. have submitted a copy for chronicle.

GERMANY.—The Economist Stamp Co. submit to us for chronicle the 75pf, Germania type, in lilac brown color.

ICELAND.—The Economist Stamp Co. submit to us the following values of the new set of regular postage stamps of this country: 1kr blue and brown, 2kr brown and dark green, 5kr light brown and blue. Also the following Officials of the same type: 3a orange and grey, 4a green and grey, 5a dark orange and grey, 10a blue and black, 15a greenish blue and grey, 50a purple and grey, and 1kr carmine and grey.

ITALY.—Mr. Frank P. Brown has shown us the Special Delivery type stamp of this country in the 50c value.

JAPAN.—This country has recently issued two stamps called "Memorial Stamps of the First National Census." Both are the same type showing a native building in the foreground. The colors are red and lilac, respectively.

NIGERIA.—We take the following interesting paragraph from Marsh's Weekly Philatelist:—"I have received supplies from this Colony of the 3d, 4d, 6d, 1s, 10s, and £1 values printed from Plate 8, also of the 2d, printed from Plate 5. The 3d stamps are printed purple on yellow, showing orange at back. The 4d come in two distinct papers, one orange and the other yellow. Both papers were used for the one printing, as can be seen by an examination of the consecutive sheet numbers. Thus I have before me as I write sheets numbered 0080, 0083, 0084, and 0085 on the orange back paper, whilst sheets 0086 and 0087 show the yellow back. The difference is visible on the face of the stamp as well as at the back, the yellow paper giving a brighter appearance to the stamps. The 6d are printed in pale purple with tablets in a brighter violet than formerly. The 1s and 10s are on paper of a bright emerald hue on the face and olive-green at back, whilst the £1 value shows no appreciable change from the early printings.—Stamp Collecting.

PAPUA.—We have received a few of the new bi-colored 2d and 4d values. The 2d is dark purple with violet centre and the 4d is orange with light brown centre.—Australian Philatelic Record.

PARAGUAY.—Mr. Arthur Chubb calls our attention to the 75c blue, Scott's No. 214, surcharged with large "50" in black.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR.

Take a mixed lot of stamps and spread them out on the table before you. If you look at them closely you will discover many differences in them, other than those represented by colour and design. It is of these differences or "varieties" that I wish to speak this week, for often they mark the only distinction between a stamp that is worth a few pence and another valued at as many shillings or pounds. Stamp collecting, like scoutcraft, is a valuable training in observation of small things—it teaches one to use one's eyes to some purpose. Since it is almost invariably the case that a "variety" of a stamp is worth more than the ordinary example, it therefore behooves the wide-awake collector to study his stamps carefully, and keep his eyes open for the differences that constitute such "varieties."

"VARIETIES" OF PRINTING.

The first thing that should strike you, if you are not singularly unobservant, is the difference in the appearance (or as we call it "impression") of the printed designs. Compare a stamp of one of the higher values of the United States with one of our current low value British postage stamps, and a difference in the printing will be at once apparent The American stamp will be seen to be made up of a number of very fine lines, which stand out ever so slightly upon the surface of the paper. Its colour, too, seems somewhat dull and flat. This is due to the particular process by which it has been printed, known to philatelists as "steel plate" or recess printing. It is the system employed in the production of the first British postage stamps, and the one that is capable of giving the finest and most artistic result, but it is also the most costly, and has, therefore, been largely superseded by cheaper and inferior processes. One of the most common nowadays is that by which our own stamps are printed from plates with a raised surface called "typography," or surface-printing. The impression is characterised by a smooth even surface, and bright colouring, the lines being either perfectly flat on the paper or slightly indented into it. A third system of stamp printing, which, however, is not so widely used, is "lithography" or printing from prepared stones by transfer. Many of the recent stamp issues of the "New Europe" States have been lithographed. Lithographed stamps are not as a rule so easy to recognise, since they often possess certain features common both to recess printing and typography. Generally speaking, the appearance of lithographed stamps is slightly blurred and indefinite, and there is an absence of fine lines in the design. So much for "varieties" of printing for the present. The importance of being able to distinguish an engraved, typographed or lithographed stamp quickly and certainly cannot be over estimated by the true philatelist, and every opportunity of practice should be seized upon. In a future article we may deal more fully with the subject of stamp printing in all its aspects.

There are many "varieties" of postage stamps that cannot always be recognised with the naked eye, and a good magnifying glass is, therefore, a highly desirable article of the would-be philatelist's outfit. A very suitable type of glass is that known as the "Coddington" Glass (as illustrated), which has a smooth under surface that can be placed in actual contact with the stamp so that it is always in focus.

PERFORATIONS.

The next point to observe in your stamps is their edges. In the majority of instances these will be found to present the same regular "scalloped" appearance that is found on our own stamps in daily use. In other words, they are "perforated," viz., have lines of small holes punched between them so that they may be the more readily separated one from another. Others, which have plain, straight edges, are termed "imperforate" and are usually more valuable than perforated specimens.

No stamps issued before 1854 were perforated, but in modern times the use of perforation is almost universal. Some of the recent issues of Czecho-Slovakia, Esthonia, Russia, Latvia, Poland, etc., have, however, been temporarily issued "imperforate" owing to a shortage of perforating machines, and the urgent demand for stamps by the public.

The subject of "perforations" is a slightly puzzling one for the stamp collecting beginner, and I shall refrain, therefore, for the present, from attempting to enter into the question of the different sizes and gauges of perforations to be found on various stamps. It is sufficient for the young philatelist to distinguish between stamps which are "perforated" and "imperforate". An early form of perforation, known as "roulette," consists merely of a series of "cuts" between the stamps, weaking the resistance of the paper and enabling the stamps to be torn apart. It is found to-day upon certain recent stamps of Greece, Palestine and the Kingdom of the Hedjaz (Arabia).

"Imperforate" stamps have, of course, to be cut apart with scissors. Years ago, when postage stamps were first issued, the would-be funny post office clerk was wont to enquire whether you "liked them trimmed, or with the fat on"!

WATERMARKS.

Certain stamps, when held up to a strong light and looked through from the back, reveal a design or device wrought in the paper on which they are printed. This is the "watermark" impressed in the paper during manufacture to stamp it as Government property, and thus prevent its misuse. The watermark of the present British postage stamps consists of the Royal Cypher—a crown above the monogram GvR, while that of a number of British Colonies is composed of the letters C. A surmounted by a Crown (several times repeated), denoting that it is supplied to the printers by the Crown Agents for the Colonies through whom a large number of Colonial Governments obtain their stamps.

But it is an entirely mistaken idea to suppose that because a stamp has no watermark it is not genuine. Not all Governments use watermarked paper for stamp printing; they have other means of protection against forgery. Reference to the Catalogue, however, will show at once which stamps are normally found with watermarks and which are not, as well as the type of watermark (if any) to look for —Stamp Collecting.

EUROPEAN AIR SERVICE.

Announcement is made that the airplane mail and passenger service which has been operating daily between the Netherlands and Great Britain since May, 1920, has been extended so as to include a daily service to Denmark and Sweden by way of Germany. Under the new arrangement, which went into effect September 15, passengers and mails can leave London either by way of Croydon, at 10 A. M., or by way of Cricklewood, at 4 P. M., and reach Amsterdam that evening. From Amsterdam the journey is continued at 8 50 A. M., the next day, with stops at Bremen at 11.30 A. M., Hamburg at 1 P. M., and at Copenhagen at 3.30 P. M. A branch or supplementary service leaves Bremen in time to reach Berlin at 3.30 P. M. By this service the trip from London to Copenhagen is advertised to be made in 24 hours, as compared with 40 hours by steamer or rail and steamer. Owing to the early approach of winter in this latitude, it is regarded as impracticable to attempt to make the trip in one day at the present time, but it is planned to accelerate the service next spring.

The entire service for passengers and mail between points in the Netherlands and London and elsewhere has been more or less experimental during the whole of the past season. The plans of the company operating the machines include the organization of services all over this part of Europe, and the service so far given has been more or less in the nature of an attempt to find out what routes are commercially and otherwise practicable. The service between the Netherlands and England has been carried on without a single interruption and with increasing success. The service from Holland to Great Britain carries more passengers than freight, whereas, that from England to Holland carries more freight than passengers. The mail service to Great Britain averages about 480 letters per day, letters for the service simply being marked for the air post and double postage paid.—Scientific American.

MECCA.

By WILFRID B. HAWORTH.

Several articles have appeared in the philatelic press dealing with these stamps, notably one in the September number of the Stamp Collectors' Monthly Circular; but up to the present no notice has been taken of certain regular plate-flaws which occur in the one para.

The series now in issue consists of six values for general use, and three postage due stamps.

The values are respectively:—

1 para, brown.
5 paras, orange.
10 paras, green.
20 paras, red.
1 piastre, deep blue.
2 piastres, mauve.

Postage Due.

20 paras, red.
1 piastre, blue.
2 piastres, mauve.

All these are printed on white machine-made paper, composed of wood-cellulose and esparto, without watermark. The sheets were gummed before printing, and were supplied by the Government Press, Cairo.

The stamps were printed by the Survey of Egypt, to the order of the Arab Bureau in Cairo, and, according to the official history of the issue, they were produced by a combination of photo-process work and offset lithography. The plates consisted of two panes, arranged side by side, each pane containing fifty stamps in ten rows of five. A control number appears under the first stamp in the bottom row of each sheet of fifty, consisting of native characters, contained in a small cartouche. The first represents a letter of the Arabic alphabet; this is followed by a hyphen, and then come two figures signifying the appropriate year of the Gregorian calendar.

The stamps are rouletted 13 by a series of cuts arranged thus:—

In single specimens this may, to the inexperienced eye, look like a perforation, and, as the first and rarest issue is the only perforated one which has appeared up to the time of writing, care must be exercised not to confuse the two when buying.

The ink used is "fugitive" in character, and was supplied by an English firm, whose name has not up to the present been divulged.

One piastre.—The first value to appear with the so-called zig-zag roulette, was the one piastre value. It is printed in Chinese blue ink. The design in the main reproduces the details of an ancient prayer-niche in the Mosque at El 'Amri at Qus in upper Egypt. I repeat these particulars, which are already well known, in order that this paper may form a complete study in itself. The original rough sketch was made by Mustafa Effendi Ghozlan, and the fair drawing was executed by Mr. A. Kirichdjian.

The initial printing was completed and the stamps issued on the 13th May, 1917. In all 176,050 were printed, the control letters being "I-IV." Since then there have been a number of new editions, as is evidenced by the shades, which range from deep blue to pale milky blue. I have not, however, any official information as to the quantities of each of these later printings. Up to the present I have not noticed any permanent varieties in the one piastre stamp.

One-half piastre, or twenty paras.—This value appeared on the same date as that last described. The initial sketch of the design was made by Agami Effendi Ali and the final drawing by Mr. Kirichdjian. It is taken from the last page of a Quran in the Mosque of El Sultan Barquq, of the XIVth century. The colour is given as Shackell-Edwards red.

There are two printings mentioned in the official history, the first appearing on the 13th May, 1917, amounting to 174,500, in all. The control letter for this is "I.-IV". I cannot be absolutely certain, since the difficulty of finding corner-blocks with controls is so great, owing to the fact that the margins of the sheets are usually removed before the stamps reach England, but it seems probable that this printing was in deep red.

The second supply was issued on the 3rd September, 1918, and amounted to 90,000 specimens. The control number is "I—IΛ". I think the pinkish shades belong to this printing, but again I cannot speak with certainty.

Since then, there have been several more editions, and I have noticed a very pale pink, and also a curious shade of deep red, which has the appearance of a worn plate. In this, the white portions of the design stand up very distinctly. The only specimens I have are a pair and a single. In the case of the latter, the date is indistinguishable, although the office of origin is Djedda; the pair also comes from the same place and is clearly dated 21st October, 1919.

Again I have noticed no permanent flaws.

One para.—Next in order of date appeared the one para value, intended for the franking of newspapers, etc. It was designed by Agami Effendi Ali and the main features are copied from the stucco work above one of the entrances to Cairo Railway Station.

Four printings are given in the official history. The first was issued on the 24th July, 1917, to the number of 185,000, the control number being "I—IV". The London Philatelist, in chronicling a pane of 50 stamps presented to the Royal Society by the Survey of Egypt, speaks of the colour as "dull". From this it would seem that the very pale shades are the earliest printing.

The second and third I have not yet been able to separate, owing to the scarcity of clearly dated postmarks and corner blocks with control letter attached. In the second supply there were 97,650 stamps and they were issued on the 8th October, 1917. The control letter is "ϒ—IV". The third, amounting to 193,250, with control "ϒ—IV", appeared on the 9th February, 1918.

The fourth printing, of which 194,000 were made, with control "I—IΛ", was placed on sale on the 17th June, 1918. I feel tolerably sure that it is to this group which belong the stamps printed in a rich brownish plum.

Subsequent to this date are a number of editions of which no particulars are yet known.

From dated copies, the fifth seems to be in a bright brownish plum, quite distinct from the fourth printing. The sixth is in a paler shade, and the seventh in a pale "cold" brown. There were still other supplies prepared, but I cannot distinguish them yet through lack of material.

We now come to the most interesting part of this value, namely the plate flaws. Of these I have located eight in the left-hand pane, all occurring in the Arabic lettering in the centre of the stamp.

(3) The third variety is No. 26 on the sheet. It consists of a large kidney shaped dot in the same position as the first flaw described in (2) above.

(5) No. 43 shows a small dot in the same place as the large one mentioned in the (3) above.

(6) It is not an easy matter to describe the position of this flaw. The tail of the "s" character is prolonged to the left, and would seem to make a loop and be carried on into the form of a crescent. About halfway between the right-hand horn and the lowest part of the crescent is a circular dot, and this constitutes the flaw. It is found on the last stamp in the bottom row of the pane—No. 50.

It described is another fault in the ver part of a looped figure. This is mber 38 on the sheet.

(9) This the only other variety I ve noted up to the present, and as it es not occur on the left-hand pane, d also as it is permanent, it must be ncluded that it is to be found on the ght half of the sheet. It consists of small dot just to the right of the nute curved stroke at the extreme t of the centre panel.

Two piastres.—This value first apared on the 20th August, 1917, when ,750 sheets were printed. The colour mauve and varies from pale to bright. e design, of which the original rough etch was made by Agami Effendi Ali, based on the first page of the Quaran El Sultan Fareg (1411 A. D.), which now in the Cairo Museum of Arab Art. e lettering on the central panel is of a ferent type from that used for all the er values, being in Kufic characters. is form of writing "was frequently ed for Sura headings and important les in the MSS. of the period." So r as I know only one printing has en made of this value, and the conol is "I—IV". I have not met with y flaws up to the present.

Five paras.—The next value to be ued with the zig-zag roulette was the piastre or five paras. It is officially scribed as being printed in "Shackellwards deep yellow." The first printg, to the number of 45,950, was made the 24th October, 1917, and bore the ntrol "I—IV". The shade is somenat deeper than that of the second pply, which was issued on the 4th ly, 1918, with control "I — IA", mounting to 94,000 stamps.

I cannot say whether there have been bsequent printings, although specens in my collection in a very bright range, and also in a pale, slightly nkish shade, would seem to point in is direction.

There are no flaws.

The central ornament is based on a agment of a XVIth century Quaran om the tomb of the Sultan el Ghuri.

Ten paras—The last value to be issued ith the zig-zag roulette was the quarr piastre. The first printing of 47,550 pies, with control "—IV" was ised on the 6th November, 1917. Subquently a supply of 94,400 appeared the 11th March, 1918, with control —IV" and a further edition of ,000 five months later (to be exact, the 4th August, 1918) with the conol "—IA".

There have doubtless been several esh supplies since then, but the variaons in shade are very slight.

The design is reproduced from the incipal door of the Mosque of El alih Talayi', dating from the XIIth ntury.

We must now glance at the three amps of the postage due set.

These were all issued on the 27th ne, 1917, and in the case of each value, e control letter is "I—IV". Of the paras there was a printing of 186,375; the 1 piastre 182,525; and of the 2 astres, 1,804,500.

Proofs were taken in purple, blue, d, green, and orange, and I believe ey are now coming on the market.

The original idea of the design, which as sketched by Agami Effendi Ali, is ken from a very old door with metal naments at the main entrance of El shra Barshai at Shari' el Ashrafuga, airo.

I have not noticed any marked shades, nd so far as I know there are no aws.

An interesting minor study of this oup may be made in the postmarks. he following are those I have seen:—

(2) Somewhat similar, but smaller in size: the town name spelled "DJEDDAH"; the number in all my copies is "3".

(3) A large single circle divided into three parts by two parallel lines. The upper and lower segments are filled by an Arabic inscription and the date, also in Arabic, is in the third or middle segment. This is the one most commonly found.

(4) As type (1), but with town name "YAMBO."

(5) As type (3), but smaller.

(6) An octagon divided as in (1). The town name I cannot decipher, but it ends with ". . . WAJHE". This I only know in violet.

(7) A circle as in type (1), inscribed "EL-AKA . . .", which I take to be El-Akabah.

(8) A double circle as in (1), inscribed "MEDINA". In this case in place of a figure, the lower part is filled in with vertical lines. I cannot say whether the same occurs in the upper half, as my specimen only shows the lower semi-circle.

(9) Since starting to write this paper I have met with another type of obliteration. It consists of a solid circular stamp with Arabic characters cut into it, so that they stand out white on a black ground. In the centre is a second solid circle, similarly inscribed.

I think I have said enough to show the very wide field which is open to the student of the current stamps of Mecca. But before closing I want to issue one word of warning. I have seen complete sheets of the 1 para obliterated with the Djedda postmark, type (1), in violet, which have been cancelled to order. As, however, all the genuine postmarks enanating from this town, which I have seen, are in black, there is no difficulty in avoiding the trash.—Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

THE MEREDITH FIND.

By DR. WOODHOUSE.

One day, while overhauling family silver for two ladies, who had consulted me in my capacity as Keeper of the Collections of the Pennsylvania Museum, I suggested to them that they must have old letters with stamps on them. Gradually, I elicited the fact that some papers were stored in the garret at 311 Walnut Street. They had been moved there about 1873, after a fire in the office of Judge William M. Meredith. The ladies were quite certain, however, that there were no stamps, as, on the only occasion that anyone had seen these papers, a bundle had been removed which proved to be letters antedating the stamping period. After a little conversation, one of the ladies turned to the other and said, "How perfectly splendid! Dr. Woodhouse is going to take off our hands the going over of the papers at 311," and the keys were turned over to me.

Accordingly, within a day or so, I climbed the stairs to the garret. The house, you will recall, is next door to the one occupied by Townsend, Whelen & Co., where Hemingway got the St. Louis. When the door of the garret was opened, a pile of old furniture was disclosed, and back of it, packing cases, boxes, chests, old fashioned hair-covered trunks, baskets and still more old furniture. The first chest which was opened contained a miscellaneous mass of papers, dating from 1790 to 1800. I could go on telling you how each case which I pried open told its own story. The papers were the ledgers, journals, receipt books, diaries, pocket-books, and letters of the Meredith family from 1750 on. These I packed into motor lorries and carried away with a view to more careful examination.

Such a mass of papers, I believe, has seldom been found. Apparently, Judge Meredith had saved every scrap of paper which had ever passed over his office desk. I leave it to you to imagine my excitement, when, covered with dust, I opened the first trunk containing the adhesive labels. Some of the nicest specimens I found carefully folded, with the envelope inside the document. Despite the joy that I have had with Five Cent New Yorks, Carriers and other classic aristocrats, I believe the monetary value of the stamps will prove to be comparatively small, when the old documents have been edited and disposed of. I have seen Revolutionary passes, letters from people of historic interest, to say nothing of the records in the order books of the Baltimore Mail Coach or a pen drawn plan of the city of Philadelphia, made in 1787.

This will tell all there is to be said about one of the most exciting finds that has come to a member of our Club, since the world-renowned Vito Viti correspondence. Some day, after I have looked into the last bundle, I shall be able to tell you just what the find contained philatelically. At present, it is only possible to say that I have seen no St. Louis, no James M. Buchanan nor any of the other wonders so glibly illustrated in the public prints.—P. S. C. Bulletin.

PRECANCEL NOTES.

By W. HICKMAN CARTER.

It makes a collector feel good to be able to fill in one space of a set that has been vacant a long time. The 13c Cincinnati current type has just arrived. The 7c invert of Type 8 is the only invert of this type the writer has ever seen.

Say, Boy, those Victories look sweet when mounted together on sheets instead of being scattered thru one's collection. Toledo, up, down and double; Detroit, U-1, up and down; Pontiac, down: Louisville, down; Huntington, W. Va., up; and South Bend, up, are recent additions to my collection.

The 6c Detroit "air" is also a welcome guest Fort Atkinson, "Wis" (one type) and "Wisc." (another) are giving collectors new thrills as well as conveying a lot of sox to the feet of our citizens.

Precanceling the black 7c has to be well done in order to make good specimens. Picked up a crackerjack Oklahoma, Okla., yesterday, while a Bridgeport, Pa., pair one is perfectly clear, while the other is entirely undecipherable. The Erie, Pa., one buck, is also not to be despised.

Elgin, Ills., is just out in a new dress. Her Christmas togs are U-1, and the printing (I have only the 10c) is perfect

The Louisville, Ky., victory, down, is a "warm number" and will, doubtless, be a much sought item. Only a few were printed. I have only two copies postally used. A friend secured a part of a sheet o. g. Strange that the 12c Louisville, perforated 10, has never appeared. The 11c, perforated 10, is still running this Christmas.

A postal employee was kidding me about collecting a few days ago, in a crowd, and said: "Boys, I've just found out what precancels are for; they are just something to keep the NUTS busy." I didn't resent it—for maybe he is right, after all!

Springfield, O., Type 7, 8c and 20c, perforated 11, and 3c perforated 10, have been picked up lately.

The writer does not consider the 13c stamps unlucky but they are scarce in this vicinity. Mine, in order of receipt, are as follows: New York U-1, Sapulpa, Okla., Baltimore, Flint, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati.—Bushnell's Magazine.

CARUSO A STAMP COLLECTOR.

William W. Randall of New York informs us that the eminent tenor, Enrico Caruso, who has been seriously ill this winter, is quite a stamp enthusiast. Several years ago, when Mr. Randall was editing The Philatelic Gazette, he learned through a friend of Caruso's that the great singer was a stamp collector, and that his collection of Italy, his native land, was one of the most complete in existence. At that time he was just taking up the collection of the stamps of his adopted country, the United States. Mr. Caruso will likely sing again in the Spring, as the latest reports from his bedside were said to be very favorable for an early convalescence. His trouble has been pleurisy, but his magnificent voice has not been impaired in any way.

BOB.

By EDWIN B. HILL.

It was dark in the theatre. The mechanical organ had begun to disclose its lack of technique. The scant score of persons at the first showing settled in their seats. A man came in late, hesitantly felt for a seat, and sat down beside me. I smiled to myself, for it is not customary to sit near anyone at this first showing,—and for reasons. When the crowds come later,—but that is another story.

I shall not advertise the film, by telling the title and hero; but I shall state that, as the play developed, it showed the hero in the depths of degradation, caused by alcoholic indulgence and addiction to drugs. The nervous twitching of the lips,—the shambling gait,—the awful indecisions,—all were here. I, who had been for twenty years in daily newspaper work "back East", recognized the type and every bit of the action,—and it caused me to shiver.

I was interested, and did not at first notice that the occupant of the adjoining seat had edged closer to me. I was recalled to myself, however, by a grip upon my arm, and felt him shaking as if with ague. I did not move. I thought rapidly, and to the end that, if I might be the instrument to ease the soul-agony of one mortal, well and good. Physical pain,—had I not known it these many years? But this was different; and I sat to the end.

The lights came on at last. I did not rise to go, neither did the man beside me. He came out of it like one awaking from a mesmeric trance, and began a low apology.

"Let us go somewhere, for I have much to say to you in explanation," he declared.

We passed out into the open light of day. My companion here disclosed himself to be not more than thirty, with a fine patrician face, which made me think of some one I had known, remotely. He was smooth-shaven, but his hair,—it was snow white, where it showed beneath his very up-to-date traveling cap.

We crossed the street to the lobby of a hotel, and sat down. The man nervously clasped and unclasped his hands. Then he finally said, in a low, soft voice:

"I owe you an apology which I cannot give,—that is, the explanation which my action demands."

I put out my hand deprecatingly.

"It is neither demanded nor requested that you disclose anything further. I have seen a soul in travail, and that is enough. I have no wish to be intrusive, be sure. I shall leave you," and I arose and passed out the door.

On the sidewalk I stopped and cogitated. Then I cursed myself for failing perhaps to have done the right thing. I went to the post office, still deep in thought, and opened my box. There were three telegrams and two letters in it. I tore open the dispatches, one after the other. They were all from the same man,—a boyhood friend I had not seen these forty years!

"Just learned you were in the southwest. Will wire later."

That was the first. The second read:

"Will be in El Paso Wednesday week. Want you to lunch old friend with me."

The third wire was as follows:

"Can't get in touch with you. Shall try in El Paso. Don't fail me. Am homesick to talk to some one who read in the old 'National Reader,' forty-eight years ago, at Miss Beckley's."

Then I read the letters,—all couched in friendly terms, and insistent that we meet. This was the day, and I had still an hour. I was off for the Union Station, to look up my friend. A Red Cap sighted me, like the Prodigal Son. He almost fell upon my neck!

"Yes, sah,—Mr. Bob, sah. He's out heah in his own cah, sah."

And the Red Cap ushered me forth like a railway magnate. The private car was parked in the railway yards not far away, and a young negro who saw us coming grinned delightedly, as he came forward to take charge of the delinquent guest.

"Mr. Bob is sure some flustrated," he said, confidentially. Red Cap 'lowed he'd find you, suah. But he ain't. Then Mr. Bob offahs him fi' dollahs if he git you heah an houah befo' lunch. He done it."

By this time we were at the car door. The valet preceded me, then stepped aside. The big man sat looking out of the window, seeing nothing, the weariness of life on his face. I had an inspiration.

"Spell 'Copenhagen'!" I called.

He sprang to his feet, held out his hands to me, and I was there, the tears dimming our eyes. Neither of us spoke for a few minutes. Then dear old Bob said, huskily:

"It is strange, but I was thinking of that word, the day we were spelled down by White Jess."

White Jess, be it known, was a slip of a negro, black as midnight plus, who could spell anything in or out of a dictionary. He was uncanny as Blind Tom.

"You remember White Jess? Wait!" Then dear old Bob pushed a button, and a negro came into the compartment, his white cook's garb upon him. Bob fixed him with his eye.

"Jess, spell Copenhagen!"

The negro looked at Bob,—then at me. His face crinkled into a smile:

"Bless the Lord! It's him! Why, Eddy!" And White Jess took my hand in both his clasping and unclasping my fingers as the tears rolled down his face. Before I could speak Jess fled to his tiny cell.

And then Bob and I talked and talked, and talked again,—of the old days, and the old joys, and the old sorrows,—of boys and girls long since dust and of others who had gone into the world to failure or to success. It lacked only five minutes of lunch time, and an added hour and a half before Bob's car would be attached to the out-bound train, Eastward for Chicago.

"Bob should be here," my old friend said. "You know I have a son?" and he looked inquiringly. Of course I did not know. We laughed, and Bob told of the girl he had wedded,—a schoolmate I remembered well,—now sleeping forever in the Oak Hill in the old home.

There was a slow step in the aisle behind my chair

"Oh, Bob! I want you to meet my old school friend ——"

I rose, and turned to meet the man of the film theatre. We were equally embarrassed, and Bob, noticing it, said no more. At lunch the young negro waited on us.

"Jess!" called Bob, and White Jess appeared, smiling.

Then we talked,—we three,—but Bob and I principally, of the don't-you-remember brand, Jess smiling approval.

"Oh, yes! And that is young Jess, who is valet and maid-of-all-work,—Jess's son." And so some more history, of no interest except to the initiates.

Lunch was ended, and we adjourned to the other compartment. Bob had this fitted up like a library with his books; and, what interested me also, some philatelic publications lay on the table.

"So you collect?" I asked.

"Collect? Yes,—and Bob, here, and Jess,—and young Jess. We are all collectors, up to our eyes!"

Bob laughed joyously.

Then, turning to young Bob, he said:

"Bring out the old U. S. and the Cape Triangulars."

For thirty minutes I reveled in stamps of the sort I never expected to see again,—Woodblocks, and used and unused Capes, and U. S. of glorious fame. And still we talked! Young Bob grew enthusiastic. His father never took his eyes off the man. I noticed again the whiteness of the younger man's hair, while that of his father was very dark, despite his years.

When young Bob went to return the album, a tiny childish book fell out, at my feet. Bob picked it up. Neither man spoke for a minute. Then the voice of young Bob,—thrilling with pent feeling,—broke the silence:

"I shall be grateful if you will him, father."

Young Bob moved into a darker corner. Bob turned to me and be his story:

"You know I went to the Univ sity,—but you don't know. Howeve went; and little good it did me, for first two years. Then I came to, was graduated with honors. Natura I wanted my son to do likewise; a after Bob had gone through H School, I sent him to my alma ma He was away four years, and then other year in France. When he ca back he was not the boy I had s away. For that I blame no one besi myself. I should have remembered."

I heard a murmur of protest from man in the gloom, but Bob held up hand deprecatingly.

"When he came back, I took H with me into the office. Finally I d covered it was useless. He was a c firmed liquor and drug victim.

"The boy's mother died. Then day in a fit of anger I turned him off

"When you can be a man, co back,' I said. I handed him a check ten thousand dollars. This he tore before my eyes.

"'Give me the little collection stamps that was my mother's, and k your money,' he said. I—I gave it him. I did not see him for ei months. Then I was passing through western city, on the train, and saw boy sitting by the roadside, a du hedge at his back, feeding a homel cur. His wild, sorrowful eyes haun me. I sought him, but without succe Then, a year to the day he left, he ca to the house.

"The tears were rolling endlessly do Bob's cheeks as he talked, and, son how, my shaking hands were wet.

"He came home. He was white a thin. His face was lined,—the lines punishment and battle, — and his h was white.

"He came into the room where I s I wanted to take him into my arm but I could not move. He walked slo ly over to the table, drew out the lit stamp collection which was his mothe and laid it down.

"'I know you want this now, — it has done its work.'

"Then he started toward the do Before I knew what was happening, was on his knees, and we were weepi together.

"Yes, it had been a long and bit battle, but Bob had won. From t day he has been with me in all things helpful and guiding; and when I aside the burden of my work, he w carry it on."

Young Bob came out of the gloom.

"I wanted you to know. That is w I gripped your arm today,—that is w I was ashamed and discourteous."

"Oh, but you were never that!" cried. "You were never that! It w I—but I wanted not to be obtrusive.'

"You saw the actor?" Young B turned again to me. "The agony of is that I was the man he studied a from whom he made the magic of genius live,—I, my degradation. I n him once, a year ago. He saw me a came to me in the street. He look into my face, never speaking. We sto and bared our souls. Then he turn away. That night he sent me this not one man can do another. There is nothing in hell or out of it I feel I do not deserve. Forgive me,—if you can; for I can never forgive myself."

Then young Bob resumed:

"I wrote him a long letter, telling him that his art would never consent to alteration,—that it was his duty to portray the character,—that perhaps out of our soul agonies some one might be re-born. This he acknowledged. We are to meet when I return to the West."

The car was coupled on. I made my adieus, and, as I stepped to the platform, the engine gave the signal, and the train pulled slowly out old Bob and young Bob, and old Jess and young Jess waving to me in farewell.

"They's suah ouah folks," said a voice beside me. It was the Red Cap, his face wrinkled in joy. "An', sah, I might' nigh lost fi' dollahs thoo youah dere-lic-tion!"

I assured the Red Cap that I was full of sorrow, for I had not been to the post office for three days. He and his small son had been "spelling" each other off, trying to find the delinquent.

"An' them men, sah, they's quality,—quality. Yes, sah. Bob an' Massah Bob, them two is jes' kindness he-self. Why, young Bob meet up with a man back here been dopy foah a month, mos'. An' young Bob he sen' him away to git cuah. Yes. sah. He cullud man, too. Bob, sah, suah got a white skin, but his heart am black."

With which unconscious paraphrase of Eugene Field the Red Cap darted away at call of an official, leaving me to chuckle audibly,—and to dream dreams of long dead days "back home."

OLD MAN MEX. IN DISREPUTE AT U. S. P. O. IN SHANGHAI.

(Clipping from S. R. Sheldon.)

Old Man Mex., who has been sinking lower and lower in the public estimate, passed completely out of sight from one quarter yesterday. He has no standing whatever at the stamp window of the U. S. Post Office now.

When silver exchange slid past the 200-level yesterday morning the surcharged American postage stamp went out of existence so far as availability for local purchasers is concerned. It will only be resurrected when silver exchange rises above the figure mentioned. Meantime it will take U. S. currency to buy U. S. stamps. The following notice to patrons appeared in the Post Office lobby at about 10.30 o'clock yesterday morning:

"Under orders from the Postmaster General surcharged stamps are removed from sale on account of the rate of exchange.

"Stamps are now sold for American money exclusively. The clerks are forbidden to accept Shanghai currency in exchange for stamps.

"Local currency will be accepted in payment for money orders at the bank's selling rate of exchange at time of purchase."

In explanation Postmaster Everett quoted the order of the Postmaster General made effective July 1, 1919, which states that the ordinary stamps shall be sold for American money only and that surcharged stamps shall be sold for Shanghai currency only and that the surcharged stamps shall be withdrawn from sale when exchange reaches 200, or two Shanghai dollars are equal to one American dollar.

Should the gold rate fall below 200, the sale of surcharged stamps will again be opened.

Postmaster Everett, noting the reporter's tender years, considerately refrained from giving his opinion of the exchange situation when questioned yesterday. Everybody in the Post Office, however, registered extreme thankfulness for one thing—that there wasn't a mail closing in the afternoon.

STAMP BACKS.

By E. BENTLEY WOOD.

The general collector is so accustomed to take it for granted that everything which is interesting in a stamp is contained in the printed design on the face, that he fails to realise that the issues of some countries may present equally important details and varieties on the backs.

Possibly, when individual specimens have turned up, the difficulty of showing both sides of the stamp in his album has led him to disregard the feature as in unimportant one, but a little inner knowledge will prove that "stamp backs" are more frequent and more interesting than a casual thought would lead one to suppose.

SAFEGUARDS AGAINST PILFERING.

Probably everyone who has handled quantities of the familiar penny reds of our own country has come across copies bearing the initials of the Oxford Union Society, or names of certain firms printed on the back These were allowed—and at one time printed—by the Government to prevent pilfering, the post office refusing to redeem such for cash if presented at the counters. They are sometimes regarded as advertisements, but they were clearly not such, for the inscription was not seen when the stamps were affixed to a letter. The privilege of the O. U. S. was later extended to having their initials placed on the face, but this practice was not of long duration, and does not come within the scope of these notes. Various firms also adopted the system, but, as the full list wouuld require more space than our Editor can put at my disposal, I may have something more to say about them later on. Suffice to say that a collection of these, in all the range of plate numbers, would alone fill a good sized album.

A revival of the practice occurred about 1903, when certain firms again placed their names at the back of the late Edwardian and early Georgian stamps, but as these were privately done over the gum, there was little chance of restoring used copies.

"STICKY BACK" ADVERTISEMENTS.

As a purely advertising medium, Messrs. Pears, of soap fame, approached the Government, about 1890, offering a big sum to have their name printed on the back of all half-penny and penny stamps. This was refused, but some sheets, which were probably prepared as specimens were used up by the firm and copies may occasionally be met with.

New Zealand, however, accepted the advertising stunt, and for some time pills, soaps, and other miscellanea were puffed on the backs of this colony's stamps for the public to lick.

BURELE BANDS.

Another of our antipodean colonies, Queensland, had a "stamp back" which, as it was official and took the place and purpose of a watermark, is legitimately admitted to our albums. This is known as the "burelé band," a design of interlaced wavy lines, crossing the back of some of the issues.

This was of the same character philatelically as the moiré backing of the Mexican stamps of 1872, and also the blue posthorn of the 1886-1891 issue of Sweden.

DENOMINATIVE FIGURES.

Some of the early stamps of Greece had figures on the back, corresponding with the denomination in lepta on the face, but numerous errors and transpositions occurred, which make the collection of these issues rather complicated.

Spain also adopted figures for some of its emissions. Those of the 1875 type ran from 1 to 100, denoting the position of the stamp on the sheet, but a new system was introduced in 1900, each sheet bearing a different number, each stamp on the same sheet, however, being numbered alike. Numbers were also used on the backs of some of the stamps of Persia.

The official stamps of Paraguay bore on their backs various designs and letterings for each of the seven values, and some of the provisional cheque-die stamps of Nyasaland were initialled in MS. on the back.

STAMP PRAYERS.

One of the most curious examples of "stamp backs" is that on the S. Antony commemorative issue of Portugal, on which each stamp bore a Latin prayer to the saint of the country.

COINS AND BANKNOTES.

The Great War has been responsible for some vagaries, the Russian coinage stamps being the most remarkable. The need of small currency becoming acute in 1915, an inscription of the arms and Slavonic type was imprinted on the back of the 10, 15 and 20 kopec stamps, denoting their "having circulation on a par with silver subsidiary coins." They gave way later to coupons for small change.

The "Neurope" stamps of Lettland are now well known, printed on the plain backs of maps, bank notes, and other available papers. Piecing these together would make a good jig-saw puzzle!

THE SO-CALLED "GOLDBEATER'S SKIN."

One other interesting and highly ingenious example is the 1866 issue Prussia, which is inaccurately descri in Gibbons" as on "goldbeater's sk This was actually a highly transpar paper coated with collodion and g tine on which the design was printe reverse, showing a correct posi through the paper. The stamps w gummed over the printing so that w stuck on the packet the design wa the back and defied any attempt of moval and re-use without damaging stamp.

"WHITE BACKS."

The yellow and green "white ba of some of our Colonial issues h recently been the cause of much sp lation, but these are only on a par v chalky and other surfaced papers, their inclusion in these notes is necessary.

Sufficient examples have been give prove that the reverse side of sta is as important and interesting to student of philately as the more or obverse types which grace our albu though, as mentioned above, the d culty of showing both sides does perhaps, appeal to the majority of lectors.—Stamp Collecting.

EIGHT CENTURIES OF POSTAL SERVICE IN FRANCE.

By LOWELL J. RAGATZ.

The first regular postal service in France was a local post established in Paris as a royal convenience early in the twelfth century. Court favorites were permitted to use it as a matter of course, but merchants continued to use private messengers as they had for years past. For communication beyond the walls of the city, the messenger system remained in vogue for the royalty and nobility and commercial classes as well. Because of the cost of such service, there was little letter writing done.

At certain irregular intervals, however, a considerable mail would be carried at a time. Crusading was at its height, and whenever outgoing parties moved southward, or returning bearers of the cross took their way northward, they were almost invariably intrusted with letters to be delivered along the route of travel. Indeed, dispatches to and from the Crusading states in the East were very frequent at this time.

Then, too, merchants traveling from one of the great mediaeval fairs to another, and the jongleurs, troubadours, and itinerant monks wandering now north, now south, now east, now west were regularly intrusted with Communications to be delivered when they reached the court or settlement in which the addressee lived. That many letters sent in this way never reached their destination goes without saying. As for those which were actually delivered, most of them had been on the way for months, but this was a matter of no import in the easy-going days of old.

The first attempt to establish a regular mail system outside of Paris was made near the middle of the twelfth century, when the Sarbonne University, in the interest of those associated with it, asked for and received the authority to employ grands and petits, messengers charged with conducting parties of prospective students from central points of assembly to Paris, to care for their baggage, and to convey student correspondence. This service was, however, necessarily limited to a comparatively small group, and could not by any means be called a general postal system.

Louis XI appreciated better than had any of his predecessors the importance of an institution which would serve materially to centralize the royal power, and at the same time provide no small revenue. In the third year of his reign, 1463, he established throughout all his domain royal postmen under the control of a director of mails nominated by himself.

This force was employed primarily for the transmission of royal correspondence. Louis wished to be the first one in Paris to know the news from his outlying domains, and through the agency of the royal mails he was able to do so. Thus, on January 9, 1477, while at Plessis-lès-Tours, he was informed of the death of Charles le Téméraire on the battlefield of Nancy on January 6. The royal couriers had covered a distance of 450 kilometers in three days.

The mails were, however, opened to the nobility and commercial classes in a short time, and were gradually put into general use. A fee was charged, but just what the rates were has not been determined.

As more used the system, it grew rapidly. Upon the accession of Charles VIII, there were already 230 relays, and he immediately increased this number. Horses came into extensive use. Routes to Italy were established. On January 12, 1495, a record was set by the receipt of a letter from Rome written in reply to one sent from Paris on December 15, 1494. When the wretched condition of mediaeval roads is considered, and it is remembered that much of the journey had to be made under winter conditions, this will at once be seen to be a considerable achievement.

A decree of 1576 set a schedule for departures and arrivals of mailmen and established a definite system of charges. Ten deniers of the city of Tours were charged for letters, fifteen deniers for packages weighing less than an ounce, and twenty deniers for packages weighing more than an ounce. While we have no exact information regarding former rates, we know that the schedule of 1576 marks a considerable reduction.

Two decrees of Henry IV dated May, 1597, and August 3, 1602, greatly increased the number of postmen and relays, and authorized the appointment of two officials to look after the hiring and care of relay horses, and a controller general of mails.

During the unsettled times which followed the death of this monarch, the price of postage was a subject of constant dispute between the mailmen and the patrons of the post. To put an end to the abuses which had arisen, Richelieu on August 26, 1627, announced a general official rate.

The postage on letters from Paris to Lyons, Macon, Cleremont-Ferrand, and Nantes was set at three sols, that on letters to Provence and Languedoc at six sols, and corresponding charges to other points were made. These rates were subsequently subjected to a twenty-five per cent. increase under Louis XIII in 1643.

A radical change in the postal service was made in 1672 when Louvois, then general superintendent of the mails, adopted the system of farming out the postal service to the highest bidder. This person paid the government the amount of his bid; the sum collected over and above this payment, which was virtually a franchise tax, went to pay the employees of the service, and the surplus which remained was profit for the entrepreneur.

In other words, the government abandoned its policy of responsibility for the service, and received considerable revenue without turning over its hand. It was understood that the established rates would be maintained, and that the service would be kept on its usual plane, but as has always been the case when a government has surrendered any of its prerogatives and disavowed responsibility, flagrant abuses appeared. Rates were shifted whenever this could be done, discriminations against poorly paying districts appeared, and with general economies enforced by the contractors in order to assure a handsome profit, the service deteriorated, and the mails were shortly in a wretched condition.

The policy of farming out the postal service was maintained for 118 years. Twenty-three contracts were made during this time. The increasing sums paid for the right to transport mail, as shown below, give some indication of the profit which must have accrued to those engaged in the business.

Contract.	Made.	Sum Paid to the Government
1	1672	1,200,000 livres
2	1683	1,800,000
3	1688	1,400,000
4	1695	2,820,000
5	date uncertain	2,820,000
10	1729	3,946,042
15	1750	4,801,500
20	1776	10,400,000
23	1786	12,000,000

It will be noted that the last fermier paid just ten times as much as did the first.

During this time, the authorized rates were frequently changed. The postage for letters going from Paris to Bayonne was set at eight sols in 1672. In 1676, a zoning system was introduced, the fee being set at two sols up to twenty-five leagues, three sols up to sixty leagues, four sols up to eighty leagues, and five sols beyond that distance.

Mail then took only ten days to go from Provence to Brittany, and Mme. de Sévigné praised Louvois for having introduced such a splendid system. But as already mentioned, the system became gradually worse until in 1728, the postal couriers were from fifteen days to three weeks in traveling from Aix to Nice.

The schedule of rates was raised somewhat in 1703, but in 1759, under Louis XV, a large increase went into effect. Rates were then as follows:—

INTERIOR POSTAGE.

Distances.	Single Letter Sheets (per quarter ounce.)	Letter in envelope (per quarter ounce.)	Double Sheet Letter.	Parcels (per ounce.)

The rate on newspapers and periodicals was eight deniers a sheet. Gold and silver were transmitted at a charge of five per cent. of the amount sent.

A general public delivery of mail within Paris itself was inaugurated in 1759, when la petite poste was established. Rates were two sols per letter in the city proper, and three sols in the suburbs. Prepayment was made compulsory. This was an innovation, since payment had in every instance heretofore been optional.

By 1771, the French postal system employed 12,000 carriers traveling over 3,000 relays, and over 30,000,000 pieces of mail were being transmitted annually. Postal relations had been established with Spain, Portugal, the Netherlands, Germany, Poland, the Scandinavian countries, Switzerland, Turkey, and the Levant.

Then came the Revolution, and the overthrow of the ancien régime. In the reforms introduced in the period of the abrogation of privileges commencing in August, 1789, the policy of farming out the postal system to private individuals was abolished and in 1790, the mails were declared to be a monopoly under state control.

Under the tariff inaugurated in 1791, distances were figured from the border of the department in which the sender lived to the border of the department in which the addressee lived. Rates were increased slightly over those of 1759.

In 1759, a four-zone system was introduced, the city of origin in each case being figured as the center of Zone 1, as under the American parcel post system. All points up to fifty leagues from the point of mailing were classified as being in Zone 1, those from fifty to one hundred leagues in Zone 2, those from one hundred to one hundred fifty leagues in Zone 3, those over one hundred fifty leagues, in Zone 4.

The rates on single letter sheets per quarter ounce were set at 10, 15, 20 and 25 sous respectively. Double sheet letters weighing up to half an ounce required 20, 30, 40 and 50 sous respectively. If an envelope was used in either case, an additional charge of 1 sou was made. The rate on newspapers was changed from eight to fifteen deniers a sheet; that on books was set at five sous per printed page.

By 1796, the flood of assignats, paper money, flowing from the presses under the control of the radical Revolutionists had become so great that this currency depreciated enormously in value, reaching as low as one-twentieth of its face value.

A PLEASANT TIME WAS HAD.

At the last meeting of the Stamp and Coin Club, held Thursday, Dec. 23, several interesting collections of war stamps were exhibited. The design for the pins was submitted and was approved by the members of the club.

We have been very fortunate in securing the Editor of MEKEEL'S STAMP WEEKLY, Mr. Charles Severn, to speak for us at the next meeting. Mr. Severn has lectured a great deal and has written voluminously. Teachers, as well as students, are invited to hear Mr. Severn's interesting talk, the subject of which will be announced later.—Hyde Park Weekly.

[On Jan. 13th, 1921, the editor of the WEEKLY spoke at the Hyde Park High School before the members of the club, who made attentive listeners. Even though there was a basket-ball game on that afternoon, philately held its own. Chas. Anderson is president of the club and Ralph Eisendrath is the chairman of the entertainment committee.]

THE STAMPS OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

CHAPTER XV.

The Provisional 1c Stamp.

In October, 1897, Newfoundland, for the first time in its postal history, had recourse to surcharging. All of the 1c Cabot series had been sold, as well as the 1c green of the previous issue, and while new stamps had been ordered from the American Bank Note Company, through some mix-up they could not be ready in time. It was decided to make a temporary 1c stamp by surcharging 400 sheets of the 3c denomination of the 1890 issue with the words "One Cent" in one line, between two horizontal bars. The sheets of this 3c consisted of 100 stamps in ten rows of ten, but as the printer was afraid he would not have enough of one sort of type to overprint an entire sheet, it was decided to surcharge half sheets of 50 stamps at a time. As it was, the type decided on ran out before the printer could complete his setting and for the last row he had to use types from two other fonts. The first eight stamps in this row are of a somewhat similar type, but with thinner and more open letters, while the last two stamps on the row are in sans-serif or block letters. There are thus three types or varieties of the surcharge, and, as shown in the following diagram, the first four rows are of type I, the first eight stamps of the last row are of type II, and the two end stamps to complete this row are type III, viz:—

I	I	I	I	I	I	I	I	I	I
I	I	I	I	I	I	I	I	I	I
I	I	I	I	I	I	I	I	I	I
I	I	I	I	I	I	I	I	I	I
II	II	II	II	II	II	II	II	III	III

The total numbers of each type printed were, therefore, as follows:

Type I.	40 on each sheet,	32,000
Type II.	8 on each sheet,	6,400
Type III.	2 on each sheet,	1,600
Total number printed,		40,000

These stamps were issued solely for use on newspapers and printed circulars sent out of the Colony. When the stamps were first issued the sale was restricted to five for each applicant, but the applications became so numerous, and there were so many "repeaters" among the purchasers, that it was feared the supply would be used up before the permanent 1c stamps could arrive. The sale of the stamps was, therefore, stopped altogether and people having circulars or newspapers for abroad had to pay the postage in cash, and the stamps were then affixed by the post office employees.

Newspapers and circulars for delivery within the Colony itself were franked with a special handstamp, lettered "PAID ALL", in a circle, the postage being collected in cash. This prevented local speculators posting large quantities of circulars or open envelopes to themselves to get the used stamps. In fact, all reasonable precautions seem to have been taken to restrict the sale of these provisionals to their legitimate use, as the issue was one of urgent necessity.

A trial sheet was printed in red, but as this color was not satisfactory, the same sheet was overprinted in black and this latter color decided on. Specimens of these doubly overprinted stamps were first reported in 1904, so that it would appear some official had confiscated the trial sheet and placed the stamps on the market.

REFERENCE LIST.

October, 1897. Provisional issue, surcharged locally on the 3c stamp of 1890. Perf. 12.

1c on 3c gray-lilac. (3 types).

CHAPTER XVI.

The Royal Portrait Series.

The permanent 1c stamp, which replaced the provisional described in our last chapter, was placed on sale in December, 1897. It shows a portrait of Queen Victoria in the centre, very similar to that on the 1c of the Cabot issue but on a larger scale. Above the portrait is curved "Postage One Cent"; across the top is "Newfoundland"; in each of the four corners is a large "1"; and between the lower numerals "Cent" is shown on a straight tablet with rounded ends. This stamp was printed in carmine.

WILLIAM W. RANDALL, Times Sq. P. O., N. Y.

At the same time a new 2c stamp was issued, this showing a portrait of King Edward VII, when Prince of Wales, in uniform. "Newfoundland" is on a curved scroll above the portrait, numerals "2" are in each corner, and between the lower ones are the words "Cents Postage". The color chosen for this stamp was orange and both values were engraved and printed by the American Bank Note Company, of New York, in sheets of 100.

The colors of these two stamps did not conform to Postal Union regulations and it is, therefore, not surprising that changes were made within a few months. The 1c in its proper color, green, was issued in June, 1898, and a month later the 2c was placed on sale in vermilion—a more correct color for this denomination.

At the same time that the change of color was made for the 2c, a new 3c value was issued, this showing a portrait of Queen Alexandria when Princess of Wales. Above the portrait "Newfoundland" is arched with "Postage" below it in a smaller tablet. Numerals of value are shown in each of the four corners and between the lower ones is a tablet bearing the words "Three Cents" in two lines.

In August, 1898, a ½c value was added to the series, this showing a portrait of the present Prince of Wales when H. R. H. Prince Edward of York. Curved around the upper portion of the portrait medallion is "Newfoundland Postage" and below, on a curved scroll, is "Half Cent". Under this latter inscription is a large "½" and the value is also repeated in the two upper corners.

A new 5c stamp bearing portrait of King George V as H. R. H. the Duke of York was issued in June, 1899, and thus made up a set of pictures showing four generations of the Royal family. Above the portrait "Newfoundland" is curved, below is "Postage—Five Cents" in two lines, and in each angle is a large numeral "5".

The final value of the Royal portrait series was the 4c, showing portrait of the present Queen Mary as H. R. H. the Duchess of Cornwall and York. This was issued in October, 1901, at the time their present Majesties were visiting the Colony. Above and below the portrait "Newfoundland" and "Postage" respectively are curved; there are numerals of value in each of the angles and between the lower figures is a small straight tablet inscribed "Four Cents".

The ½c, 3c, 4c and 5c denominations were, like the earlier issued 1c and 2c, engraved and printed by the American Bank Note Company of New York in sheets of 100. All are on unwatermarked paper and have the usual 12 perforation. With the exception of the 1c green, there is remarkably little variation in shade in any of the denominations.

In 1902 it was reported that in February of that year a sheet of the 3c entirely imperforate was sold at the Post Office at St. John's to a non-collector who immediately cut the entire sheet into vertical strips for convenience in separating the stamps! He had used a good many of them before a collector rescued the remainder. In October of the same year the 2c was discovered imperforate; in December, 1902, the discovery of part of a sheet of the 1c imperforate horizontally was recorded; and in March, 1903, the ½c was discovered imperforate.

On Christmas Day, 1898, Newfoundland joined the Imperial Penny Postal Union and the following official notification was published:

"POST OFFICE NOTICE

Regulation in Amendment of the Post Office Act, 1891, approved by the Governor-in-Council

Section 4 of Rules and Regulations of the Post Office Act, 1891, is amended as follows:—

Provided that letters passing between any place in Newfoundland and the United Kingdom and such of the possessions of the British Empire as may adopt the same rate of postage, shall be at the rate of two cents per half ounce weight.

To come into force on Christmas Day, the 25th Dec., 1898.

J. O. FRASER, P. M. G.
GENERAL POST OFFICE, ST. JOHN'S.
NFLD., November 10th, 1898."

This change of rate did not, of course, necessitate any change in the current stamps, but only meant a larger demand for the 2c denomination than hitherto.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Map Stamp.

In September, 1908, a new 2c stamp was issued showing a map of the island as the main feature of the design. Above is a semi-circle containing "Newfoundland", "Postage" and "2", the numeral having artistic foliate ornamentation below and on each side. Across the base is "Two Cents" with numerals of value in each lower angle. Why this stamp was issued is a mystery, for though its color, rose-carmine, better interprets the Postal Union shade for this denomination than the vermilion of

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—H. L. Wilcox states that the three aeroplane stamps and the 13c apple-green may be located by inquiring at Section 5 of the City Hall, N. Y., Post Office; Albert E. Wellman writes that the 24c aero may be obtained at Torrington, Conn., also the $2 perf. 10.

—We welcome back to our columns this week C. Seidenberg of Beecher, Ill., who will be remembered as a former advertiser. We are glad to have Mr. Seidenberg with us again, and trust he will receive his share of stamp patronage.

—We are informed by R. Nicoll of a mis-statement which is going the rounds of the philatelic press in connection with the payment of customs duties on printed matter mailed to Canada. Mr. Nicoll states that publications that are primarily advertising mediums do come within the scope of the law requiring the affixing of duty stamps. A newspaper primarily devoted to giving news would be free of the tax. Our correspondent further says that these customs duty stamps, of which there are four in number, 1c, 2c, 5c and 10c, have no right to be classed as postage stamps even though they do appear on mail, for they do not prepay mail charges.

—Herman W. Boers and other Detroit subscribers have submitted specimens of the new Detroit cancellation. It is like the former one with the exception that the third line giving date is omitted. All streets in Detroit have been renumbered and this commendable piece of publicity is doubtless proving a very satisfactory plan.

—We are informed by J. L. Shipley that the Baltimore post office has in stock the 16c and 24c aero stamps. Carl S. Davis and L. H. Ehrlich, Jr., report the 24c as being on sale at Kansas City, Mo., and Ivan H. Richmond advises us that the 24c aero stamp is on sale at the Washington, D. C., post office; and we are informed that the 6, 16 and 24c aero stamps are on sale at the main post office, Pittsburgh, Pa. We are indebted to E. J. Bender for this information. Lowell J. Ragatz, Madison, Wis., states that the 16c is on sale at Madison and the 6c at Sauk City.

—The Marks Stamp Co. has just issued a catalog that places it in the front ranks of American dealers. We have received a copy of it and find it a book of 130 pages with stamps priced singly, in sets, packets and mixtures. There is a list of accessories, supplies, etc. The firm indicates in its advertising in the WEEKLY the terms under which this new catalog may be secured, and it will pay any dealer or collector to procure a copy.

—Mr. Severn states that Chas. G. Fitzgerald of Baltimore, Md., sent in a list of rebus answers that entitles him to being placed with the winners of 4th, 5th and 6th prizes. We are therefore making him a complimentary award, and regret that his name was not published in the original list where it belonged.

NEW JAPANS.

By RYNICHI YOKOHORI.

A new set of commemorative stamps will be issued April 3 to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the inauguration of the Japanese postal service. The Department of Communications has decided to hold this celebration on a very large scale and as usual a new set of commemorative stamps and picture postcards and a special cancellation will be issued for the occasion. The authorities will also compile an historical record of the Post and Communication Works, which has made a remarkable progress in so few years.

Nothing is known as yet as regards the denominations, designs and colors of the proposed stamps, but it is common belief that they will be finely executed, under the supervision of the Department of Communications to celebrate its own service. Further particulars will be given as soon as possible.

BACK VOLUMES.

We can furnish a number of bound volumes of the WEEKLY up to and including 1911 at $2.50 each. They are bound in substantial fashion with cloth back and are indexed.

We can supply unbound volumes of the WEEKLY for every year excepting the first four, at $1.50. Cost of transportation will be borne by us.

Send an order for a sample volume.

CHINESE CHARITY STAMPS.

By CHAS. S. THOMPSON.

In Shantung, Kiangsu, Nganwhei, and Chih-li, as well as in adjacent territory, many millions of Chinese are starving. Failure of crops, lack of rain, cyclones, and a population of a thousand to the square mile have all contributed to the production of a famine without parallel.

The Chinese Government is practically helpless, and is making many appeals for outside aid, as may be realized from the magazine propaganda, vide Asia, Literary Digest, etc.

To allow all parts of the empire to contribute to some extent, and to permit all stamp collectors to do likewise, three charity stamps have appeared. These are the 2c, 4c, and 6c of the current issue, which have been surcharged with eight Chinese characters, and a new value in English.

The two upper characters on the stamps read "yit fun", "som fun", and "um fun", on the 2c, 4c, and 6c respectively. The words mean one, two, or three cents (postage), as the case may be. The six lower characters, read from top to bottom, and from right to left, read "Fu sou chun goon yak foon." This means "Received contribution of 1c for relief funds." My rendition is Cantonese, but the syllables would be different in some other dialect.

5c on 6c grey, red schg.

Red and blue are considered to be lucky colors. The stamps are sold at their nominal face value, but their franking value is that of the surcharge.

GOOD REASON.

Tam met Sandy doing nothing in particular in the middle of the morning the other day.

"Whit wey are ye no wurking, Sandy?" he asked. "A thocht the strike was settled?"

"This is another strike," was Sandy's retort.

"An' whit dae ye want noo, Sandy?" demanded Tam.

"A rise in wages tae pay for the increased cost of postage stamps!" returned Sandy.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Big—We are getting on, evidently. A representative of a company that proposes to tell in scenario form the story of the different businesses in a thousand feet of film has suggested that philately be advertised in that manner. The subject would be treated in a generally impersonal sense and no individual exploitation would be shown. Production of a scenario of pulsing philatelic interest would be guaranteed by we do not remember how many thousand picture houses throughout the country and local publicity in the newspapers about the film would center attention on it when shown locally. Too, a large distribution of booklets would be made in the sections where the picture was on. In behalf of philately, we appreciated the compliment, but as the cost of the service was about a dozen times the amount of the American Philatelic Society appropriation for publicity purposes, we took refuge in the observation that the collecting interests were not yet ready to finance an enterprise of the kind.

Crude—Here is a description from Mr. Franck's "Vagabonding Down the Andes" of postal business as transacted down in Ayavaca, Peru, where the postmaster was "a comely young woman of Indian blood, her office scattered promiscuously about the baked mud dwelling of her parents." The wheels begin to move: "Stamps were at length found in the right-hand drawer of the hand sewing-machine on the earth floor, a native ink was brewed over the fagot-fire in the kitchen for the imprinting of the official seal, dug out from a chest of stockings and feminine small clothes." After a social call extending over an hour's time, the customer shook hands with all the members of the family, and twice with the fair postmistress for good measure, she assuring her patron that he could rest in the certainty that everything would be safely received by the addressees. Although he had explained the nature of the contents of the packages in order that natural curiosity might be relieved, he discovered by chance that the whole family that evening was regaling itself with an examination of the film and note-books, which were of value only to the sender. Nevertheless, the package reached its destination in perfect order, albeit the items in it were not in the same sequence as when they were entrusted to the "correo."

Picayune—Now and then we have cause to wonder how it is possible for men engaged in a progressive business can be so small as a few of them are Some time ago an article on the "Postage Stamp Craze" was published in the New York Times and it was a good example of the publicity for philately that is desirable. It happened that the names of the managers of a big stamp firm were mentioned in the article in connection with several opinions and observations on the present status of collecting, and now a dealer writes to us in high dudgeon to protest against this discrimination in favor of the "big bugs" and to asperse the motives of those who believe in publicity for the general good of the pursuit. He says that he supposes that the "great publicity campaign will be for the benefit of the big advertisers, the little dealers getting the cold shoulder." It is evident that the article in question was inspired by the members of the firm who happened to be named and was the result of individual and not concerted effort. What stumps us, however, is the petty jealousy which some dealers have for their fellows with whom they should dwell in reasonable harmony; but we are hopeful that the obsolete ideas to which they cling will be cast aside suddenly for the live and let live gospel that is preached in successful business circles in this day and generation. Of course, the names of the dealers who project an article have proper place in an article of the kind in mind, and we think that they may be congratulated upon running the editorial gauntlet. When the publicity plans to be fostered by the American Philatelic Society become operative, there could be objection against personal exploitation should it be attempted at the expense of a fund supplied by general contributions.

Plans—The president of the Society of Philatelic Americans, Mr. C. W. Kissinger, recently visited Minneapolis to confer with the Minneapolis members regarding arrangements for the forthcoming convention of the P. S. of A. at Minneapolis whose date will not conflict with that of the convention of the American Philatelic Society at Milwaukee. Mr. Kissinger says that nothing can induce him from his determination to not run again for the presidency of the P. S. of A., which he has held for ten years. It is the expectation that a proposal of importance to philately in this country will be developed during Mr. Kissinger's visit to Minneapolis.

Extreme—We are informed by Mr. C. F. Adams who has just returned from a trip that embraced many of the West Indian islands, that some of the postmasters of the British colonies there at the time of his visit were refusing to fill orders from stamp dealers or persons living abroad for the current issues at face. Those who remitted for stamps were referred to authorized stamp agents who for a commission would execute orders. We now read in his News that Mr. A. C. Roessler protested vigorously to headquarters against this ungrateful and unjustifiable ruling with the consequence that it has been annulled. The ban has been lifted, although the usual reservation that the stamps will be supplied so long as the stocks on hand are adequate to the demands on them is made by the Crown Agents for the Colonies. Thus does that busy little bee improve each shining hour.

Enterprise—Resuming our remarks on Albanian stamps, we may say that there are some lots of stamps of Albania that at last accounts had not been marketed, the batches having come into the hands of certain functionaries, either directly or in a roundabout way. At first, it seemed that there was no disposition to manipulate the issues for collecting purposes; but latterly, the philatelic equation probably entered the calculations of the postal people. We believe that the British army officer who is quoted in Stanley Gibbons' catalogue, foreign section, under Albania, as having furnished information about the recent issues is one of two strangers within the gates qualified to speak with authority, the other being our informant. It is not to be inferred that Albania's offenses are particularly noticeable, as in some respects the country did not take advantage of all the circumstances that would give the color of reason to further issues. Yet, the facility with which the authorities adopted the modern idea of reaching for the philatelic purse with one hand while the other worked the printing press is rather ominous. Still, why should not Albania have its fling as well as some of the countries that know better? The financial vista that bursts on the little country, far from affluent, that enters the stamp-issuing pale is apt to turn the head.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN Used Blocks of Four?
If not, why not? They are fascinating things to hunt—so elusive! The one you particularly want is so hard to find. I have hunted all over the earth for ten years for a block, which still catalogs only 4 cents (Canada No. 33), and as yet in vain! I want to buy used blocks for my collection, but just now I have a lot I want to sell. If you have a favorite country, let me know. H. L. CLARK,

WE'LL SEND ONE SELECTION
OF, say, $15 to $30 worth of some of the newer things we are getting in. If they please you, ask for more. If they don't, send them back. You can't make us mad. If we cannot beat the rest on price we miss our guess, and from the returns we are getting they are satisfying a great many. No obligation except that you make one week returns and, of course, furnish a reference. Little earlier than 1914—unless it's an unusual bargain, but for the recent ones try us.

INTERNATIONAL WHOLESALE STAMP CORP.

404½ CONGRESS STREET, PORTLAND, MAINE.

BLUNDER UPON BLUNDER.

By MORGAN FREMLIN.

You will remember a communication from me last spring relating how a registered letter, containing stamps, had been treated by the Customs and Post Office officials,—the blame finally resting with the Post Office, who offered to pay damages, etc. At that time the law covering the opening of registered mail for Customs inspection was carefully explained to all concerned by the Customs Collector of San Francisco. I repeat the final passage here: "——postmasters are not required to forward to the nearest customs officer for inspection, packages, which upon being opened, in their presence are found to contain genuine postage stamps."

And now after all the fuss we had last March, the same thing has happened again! Can you beat it? This time a valuable selection from Mr. Hooreman of Brussels has been held up. The same routine occurred. I signed for a registered letter to which was affixed a customs label—"To be examined for contraband mdse." The local Postmistress requesting me to open it, I did so, and upon examination of contents, she stated that she thought stamps were contraband and would return them to San Francisco for inspection! I protested, and warned her what had occurred last March; however, she would not relent, and I then immediately telephoned the Collector of Customs in San Francisco, and explained that a repetition of the trouble of last spring had taken place. He said that he was most astonished, and that stamps were certainly not contraband, and for me to notify the Postmistress to deliver the letter to me at once, under penalty; upon delivering this message, the Postmistress stated that the Customs Collector did not employ her and she refused to obey the order! I then called up the Collector again but was answered by the assistant collector to whom I gave the P. M.'s answer. He replied that she would be arrested by the Federal authorities for defying the law, and finished with the discourteous remark:—"You stamp collectors are a lot of trouble, and the Customs Dept. does not want to hear any more about these pieces of paper junk!"

It would seem that if the country was left in the hands of our Government officials, we would be terrorized by a bunch of brigands, and indeed this seems to be the case already in some departments, for I find that these Government employees are greatly astonished that "Mr. Humble Citizen" should dare protest against their high-handedness!

I have written to the Post Office Inspector in San Francisco, and am now awaiting the verdict. If these stamps are handled in the same ruthless manner as were the previous lot, they will pay Mr. Hooreman or myself full compensation, for I am thoroughly aroused!

I repeat that I have had previous registered letters from Mr. Hooreman and from many other foreign friends that have never had to undergo Customs inspection, including a letter by this same mail from a friend in Germany!

SPAIN, SCOTT'S NOS. 391 AND 392.

Our valued correspondent, Prof. H. L. Clark of Williamstown, Mass., is after information and he feels that it may be secured from one or more of our thousands of readers. He wishes to know what these "franchise" stamps were for and whether there could be a legitimate use for a block of four. We quote from Prof. Clark's letter as follows:—

"Can you tell me anything about the use of the so-called Franchise stamps of Spain, Scott's Nos. 391 and 392? I am offered a fine block of four of No. 391 apparently postally used. The cancellations read 3 May 69, Madrid, and are exactly like the Spanish cancellations of the period, even the cancelling ink being O. K. If they are "faked" it is a very clever job. But why should a Franchise stamp be used in multiple? Of course if each stamp was available for only a certain amount of mail, the use of a pair, strip or block would be natural at times, but as a rule, official stamps that have no indication of face value have an unlimited franking privilege. If you cannot throw any light on the use of these interesting stamps, will you ask for information?"

CORRECTED CATALOG PRICES.

A subscriber advises us that dealers should use corrected catalog values in their advertisements, and we endorse the suggestion. Montenegro 1910 set is particularly mentioned. This set formerly cataloged at $3.70, has now been reduced unused or used to $.93. It is oftentimes impossible for us to catch all these items, and dealers are reminded that the new Scott quotations must be used when giving catalog value.

THE METROPOLITAN STAMP CO.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—I think that at last we are in a position to put at rest the rumor that the 2c stamp, either engraved or of the offset type, exists in a tete beche condition. The information came from such reliable sources that for a while it seemed that the variety must be known. The Bureau when they first learned of the rumor, realized that such an error could not possibly have been made unless purposely made, for on the right side of every transfer roll are lines which are used in centering and spacing the next stamp and as these are not present on the left side, it would be impossible to use the transfer roll in an inverted position without knowing it. They, however, on instructions from the Post Office Department, went over the plates and failed to note any such variety.

In addition they investigated the facts concerning the sheet supposed to have been returned to the Philadelphia Post Office and find that the man who returned it made the return in March, 1919, two years ago, and the clerk who is supposed to have received it unfortunately died in the same month. I imagine that the sheet actually returned was one showing the 5c errors for a "5" resembles an inverted "2".

Just recently a small New York dealer tried to give the impression that he had such a variety, having faked a block by sticking one stamp over the other in an inverted position. This he exhibited in a wax envelope and as he would not permit a close examination, it was thought that the oddity actually existed. He even went so far as to notify us that he actually had the variety, and placing confidence in his word, were about to give definite information to our readers when we learned through the courtesy of one of our New York friends that it was nothing more than a fake. We therefore feel quite confident in stating that the rumor was without foundation.

Mr. Percy M. Mann has just located a pane of the 2c Pilgrim stamp from a sheet that became folded as it went through the press resulting in an extra row of perforations vertically through the entire left margins. While on the subject of the Pilgrim stamps, Mr. E. G. Ward sends us a copy of the 5c with initials of the transferrer, "J. A. M." This, as Mr. Ward explains, accounts for the "jammed" appearance of this denomination.

We note from Scott's Bulletin that the 5c Wine stamp, issue of 1914, has been located with the double line revenue watermark. This stamp heretofore has only been known with the single line postage watermark. We have not seen the variety but no doubt Mr. Luff has. With the discovery of this variety, the whole series is now known with each watermark. Many of the proprietaries issued at the same time are still unknown on the postage paper.

Only a few of the provisional 2c on 3c envelopes have come to my attention this week, and as the larger cities have practically all been heard from, I am under the impression that most of the surcharging is over. Mr. R. H. Mason has discovered two more window varieties, one from Milwaukee, the first seen from that city, and one from Seattle. Rev. V. M. Hansen sends two new ones from Portland and Mr. H. E. Jones sends a provisional 1c on 2c postal from Los Angeles.

Mr. Cassius L. Clay tells me that some albinos 2c and 3c envelopes were found in New Orleans and these were overprinted so that their value would be perfectly clear.

We also wish to thank the following for notes of interest:—Dr. William Evans, Messrs. H. C. Christensen, Benj. Cadbury, W. E. Garry, C. S. Sutton, E. H. Draper and William Lightower.

ARGENTINE.—H. J. Trautman calls our attention to the recent issued 5c, commemorative stamp that he has on paper watermarked "Multiple Sun". He also adds that while it was reported that it was used only for inland postage, he has a copy that was received in Buffalo on mail that was delivered in the city and assumes that it is being used for external postage as well.

AUSTRALIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. has shown us a copy of the new 1 shilling 4 pence stamp mentioned sometime ago. The color is pale blue and of the current type.

BARBADOS.—Messrs. Bright & Son call attention to the following in regard to the Barbados Victory set:—

"The three high values, 1sh, 2sh and 3sh, are printed in sheets of 25 stamps, with the watermark sideways—the normal watermark having the crown to the left of the stamp, looking at it from the face. We find the 1sh and 2sh values each have the watermark reversed, so that the crown is to the right instead of to the left. We also understand that the 3d and 6d values exist, with inverted upright watermark."

BELGIUM.—We are indebted to Henry Hooreman and A. E. Hussey for showing us the new 3c stamp issued recently. The type is the current one and the color grey.

BERMUDA.—J. A. Galbraith shows us the set of commemoratives of this colony up to the 1sh value. The type is

CANADA 6d THICK, HARD

A fine copy of this rare stamp for $50.00. Worth a Hundred if rarity means anything.

There are many other fine early Canadians, U. S., early Europeans, etc., in the fine collection I am breaking up.

Want lists of single stamps have first choice. Approval selections by countries, issues, or single stamps. Almost anything in ordinary 19th Century stamps at 35 to 50% off catalog.

J. O. MOORE, Rheims, N. Y.

similar to those issued in other colonies and show a likeness of the King in the right circle with a picture of a fleet of sailing vessels in the other. At the top is "Bermuda Commemorative Stamp 1620 1920." At the base, "Tercentenary of Establishment of Representative Institutions." The colors and values are as follows: ¼d, brown; ½d, green; 1d, red; 2d, grey; 3d, brown on yellow; 4d, red and grey on yellow; 6d, red, lilac and grey; and 1sh, green.

Mr. Galbraith calls attention to the fact that the ¼d, ½d, 2d, 3d, 4d and 1sh seem to be on old paper, while the other values are on new.

BRAZIL.—The new 100 reis stamp with design of an aeroplane is not, as we supposed, for "aerial post" use, no such post having been established in Brazil. The new stamps, which are making their appearance one by one, will consist of twelve denominations in six designs, with inscriptions as follow:—10 and 20 reis, "Viacao" (Road Transport); 25 and 50 reis, "Industria"; 100 and 200 reis, "Avicao" (Aviation); 300 and 500 reis, figure of Mercury (Commerce); 600 and 1,000 reis, "Navegacao" (Navigation); 2,000 and 5,000 reis, "Instruccao" (Instruction). The two latter are almost the same as the 1918 issue, but with colours reversed.—Whitfield King & Co.'s Monthly List.

DAHOMEY.—The Amiens Echo informs us that the 20c and 30c values have lately been bisected and the halves used as extemporary 10 and 15c stamps. It appears that, on account of the shortage of supplies of the ordinary adhesives, the 5, 10 and 15c Postage Dues have also been allowed to perform the functions of the regular stamps.—Stamp Collecting.

DOMINICA.—We are informed by the Postmaster at Roseau that a new 2sh 6d stamp has just been placed on sale.

FIUME.—The Economist Stamp Co. has shown us the D'Annunzio set with the following surcharges all overprinted in black: 5c and 10c, ("Raggenza Italiana del Carnaro"; the 10c also appears with the "15" obliterating the former value; the 20c has also the same overprint as the first mentioned values and also with the "15" obliterating the former value. The same value has also been surcharged "50" the 5c "55". The 25c has been surcharged in red without any change in value.

GERMANY.—Fred'k S. Wist has shown us the 60pf stamp in olive green shade.

E. S. Ward submits copies of the following values in new colors: 1¼m bright red and red lilac, and 2m carmine and blue.

JAMAICA.—J. A. Galbraith shows us the 1sh and 2sh values in the new commemorative set. The former is orange in color and shows a statue of Queen Victoria with the inscription at the base "Queen Victoria of Jamaica Lady Supreme," while at each side is the likeness of a palm tree. At the top is "Jamaica Postage Revenue" with the lower corners containing the denomination of value. The 2sh value is brown and blue and shows the "Rodney Memorial" with the value in the four corners. The stamps are very attractive and finely printed.

PANAMA.—The first centenary of the Independence of Panama occurring this year (1921), M. Champion informs us that a commemorative series of postage stamps is now being prepared by public competition.—Stamp Collecting.

PARAGUAY.—H. J. Trautman shows us a copy of the 75c surcharged "50" mentioned in our last issue. The overprint is very poorly done and is almost suggestive of being unofficial, but the correspondent advises that he has several strips and they are all of the same inferior surcharge.

RUSSIA.—Fred'k S. Wist has shown us a copy of the 3½R maroon and light green stamp with the surcharge at the base "K 10 K." in black and also across the centre in script type "DBL".

SYRIA.—A new issue is pending, comprising the current series of France surcharged with the letters "M. F." (MANDAT FRANCAIS) and Syrian currency.

The Echo of Amiens says:—

"Our readers will be interested to know that Syria is actually divided into four separate territorial administrations, viz.:—

(1) The autonomous district of the Lebanon, with Beyrout.

(2) The Government of Aleppo.

(3) The autonomous territory of the Alaonites.

(4) The Government of Damascus.

In the last-named the stamps of the Emir Feisul (Arab Government) continue to be used. It is probable that the Lebanon will shortly have a distinctive series.

Following are the total printings of the recent Aleppo provisionals:—

50c on 2c, 12,000.
1pi on 5c, 9,500.
2pi on 25c, 5,000.
5pi on 15c, 1,500.
10pi on 40c, 1,000.
25pi on 50c, 550.

A new issue is due for the first days of January.—Stamp Collecting.

TRANS-JORDANIA.—In addition to the 2 and 5 milliemes stamps referred to in last month's list, four additional values have been issued in the following numbers:—2,400 each of 3 and 4 milliemes and 2 piastres and 12,000 of 1 piastre. The two errors described last month exist also in these denominations.—Whitfield King & Co.'s Monthly List.

TOGO.—This country being now administered by France alone, the Gold Coast stamps overprinted "Anglo French Occupation" have been withdrawn from sale, both in Togo and at Accra.—Whitfield King & Co.'s Monthly List.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.—The Economist Stamp Co. has submitted to us for chronicle a copy of the 1sh 3d stamp issued recently. The color is purple.

FIELD'S CATALOG.

—David Field, the well-known London dealer, has issued a notable catalog, "Postage Stamps of the Great War and After, 1914-1920." The catalog makes a specialty of the description of stamps and the giving of information more or less general in character. The catalog is of value from the fact that the prices quoted represent the publisher's market quotations. A large map as a preface to the book gives in concrete form a mass of war issues information, and we heartily recommend this book of 180 pages with its many illustrations. The price of the book is 2sh 6d, but we can furnish it at 50c for a limited time. Apply to the WEEKLY office.

WATERMARKS, AND HOW TO DETE THEM.

By E. G. COWELL, New Zealand.

I think that many stamp collecto especially the younger ones, do not re ise the importance of the insignific little watermark, and the part it pla in the science of philately. Firstly con the question—What is a watermark

A watermark is a letter, device, or like, wrought into the paper during process of manufacture.

"The watermark in paper is produc by bending the wires of the mould, by wires bent into the shape of mould—it has the effect of making paper thinner in places"—Tomlins In many cases the value of a stamp pends entirely on the device or posit of the watermark, and from my o knowledge I know that it is very fool to swap a duplicate without first exa ining the watermark.

THE DETECTION OF THE WATERMA

There has been much written of lat years on the various methods of dete ing watermarks, but from my own p sonal experience I am of the opin that there is one method which sta out among all others. The known me ods, and the ones generally employ are as follows:—

(1) Placing stamp face downwa on a dark surface.

(2) Holding the stamp in front o bright light.

(3) Smearing the surface and b with benzine.

These methods have their advanta and their disadvantages. More of than not, methods 1 and 2 are of avail, and when the stamp is in mint condition 3 is out of the questi

My method, the result of a suggest in a very old American journal, is th

Allow the stamp to act as a negati and print a photograph from it. A body can do this; all that is require some sensitive self-toning printing paper, and of course some "Hypo," b of which are obtainable at any chem

Procure a piece of glass of conveni size. Cut a piece of the sensitive pa slightly larger than the stamp to photographed, and lay paper down, flat surface, sensitive side upmost. T place stamp, face downwards, on se tive paper. Cover all with glass; ca out on tray or plate into sun. brightness of the sun and the thickn of the paper of which the stamp is m must determine the time of the expos

After the printing is done, the p must be fixed in the "Hypo" bath, oth wise the light would affect it Thus everlasting record of the watermark obtained, and one can imagine hov collection of these various waterma can easily be got together by mount them in books, with a suitable desc tion for each.—The Stamp Lover.

VOORHEES' 88th STAMP AUCTION SALE

I have been holding PUBLIC STAMP AUCTION SALES in CHICAGO for ore than 12 years, yet I know that not so many as one in every ten of the aders of this paper have ever bought a stamp at any of my Sales. In the pe of getting some of you started, I am listing below a few of the lots in my xt Sale and will gladly send a complete catalogue of the Sale (listing over 0 lots), to anyone on request.

For the benefit of those who have never purchased at Auction, I may say at each lot is sold to the highest bidder at an advance of 10c or 25c over the xt bid; for example, if you bid $5.00 on any lot and the next high bid on that is $3.50, you would get the lot for $3.60. Each lot is accurately described d the "Catalogue value" according to Scott's latest Catalogue is given; and ould there be any error in describing a lot, it may be returned within 3 days ter receipt, for immediate refund.

If you have never purchased at Auction, try a few bids on any lots in this le which interest you, and I am sure you will want to continue at future les. Just a word of caution:—good stamps always bring good prices either auction or private sale, so that it would be a waste of both your time and ine to submit long lists of bids at ridiculous prices, such as 10% of "Catague value" on good stamps (as some new bidders have occasionally done). d liberally on lots you really want and if there is not competition up to your nit, you will get the lot for less; then if you like, add a few low bids for lyers" and at times a real bargain can be secured that way.

In bidding it is necessary simply to give the number of the lot you want id the highest amount you are willing to pay for that lot.

This Sale will take place on FEBRUARY 19TH and bids should be sent to reach me before that date. It is best to send your bids early, as in case of two or more bids of the same amount on any lot, the one received first gets the lot.

TRY THIS METHOD OF BUYING YOUR STAMPS, AND I AM SURE YOU WILL WISH TO CONTINUE AT MY FUTURE SALES. I hold an average of one Auction Sale a month the year around.

MARYLAND MATCH CO.

By Christopher West.

This 1c stamp is the successor of the Excelsior Waterproof Match of Baltimore and the die was altered from that of its predecessor only by changing the top marginal label to read "Maryland" and replacing the word "Excelsior" over the central picture by "Match Co.'s," so that the title legend now reads Maryland—Match Co.'s—Waterproof Match. The alteration was made in Philadelphia and all the stamps on silk paper were printed by the Carpenter firm in that city.

The Boston Book states:—

Die approved, August 12, 1872.
First issued, September, 1872.
Last issued, August, 1874.
9,075,000 issued on silk paper.
210 stamps per sheet, (14x15).

Referring to a previous article on the Excelsior Waterproof Match stamps, we find the proprietors of the Maryland Match Co. were at first Weedon & Bell and later Weedon, Armistead & Co., both being Baltimore concerns. All the Maryland Match Co. stamps on silk paper were used successively by these two firms. Mr. Henry C. Bell, one of the partners, was later a partner in the firm of England & Bell, also of Baltimore, and England & Bell appear to have succeeded to the business of the Maryland Match Co.

This stamp and its predecessor are the only match revenues upon which the term "waterproof" appears. That term is not found on the Alligator stamp, altho the Alligator matches were so named because they were nearly impervious to humidity. The Maryland humidity-defier-stamp varies little in shade; nearly all copies being a deep blue much like the Excelsior Waterproof Match stamp on silk paper. Fine copies are somewhat elusive and usually bring a good proportion of the catalog quotation, which has remained firm at $1 practically all the time for the past 25 years. Neither the Maryland nor its predecessor are known to have been used in multiple, and pairs or larger pieces are rare.

The variety on watermarked paper is not properly a Maryland Match Co. stamp at all. It was not issued until Weedon, Armistead & Co. had been out of business about eight years and was never used by their successors or by any concern in Baltimore Therefore its history will be taken up elsewhere.

3c VIOLET WAR AND VICTORY.

This book by Barrett is very handsomely printed with cover in purple and every student in U. S. will want it. Just out.

Post Cards.

While this is not our regular business we often find chances to pick up picture post cards at a very reasonable price. This time we have one that is especially appropriate for stamp collectors. Each card shows in colors the complete set of the stamps of one country. In addition a coat of arms in colors is given. These cards come from Europe and until recently have been unobtainable. Lithographed in faithful reproductions of original. Probably 100 different designs, including French and British Colonies, European, S. and C. American, etc. Just the thing for the stamp dealer who wants to make a snappy unusual offer. Useful to the collector for correspondence. Splendid to give out to non-philatelists as recruiting material.

WILL THE MARK BE RE-VALUED AT 6c?

The following clipping is taken from the New York Annalist and we are indebted to Charles P. Skinner for it. It is a very timely piece of comment on the present situation in Europe and is an intimation that Germany is preparing to lower the value of the mark to 6c. This will be an official re-valuation of the German monetary unit and the example may be followed by other countries. We quote from Mr. Skinner's letter the following:—

"The Annalist is well known as the leading financial weekly review of business and the inference drawn in this case from the action of Germany in re its postage stamps may well be true not only of Germany but of other countries. It is well known among collectors that countries like Poland (for instance) use the high value stamps most freely and have recently discontinued the issue of some of the lower values, of course for the reason that they no longer had postal value." The clipping follows.

Why are the "Pilgrim Tercentenary" stamps green, red and blue? Why have our 1, 2 and 5 cent stamps borne these colors since 1898? Why have the German 5, 10, 20, 40 (and 80 ?) pfennig stamps, which were formerly green, red, blue, black with red border (and black with red border on rose paper), just appeared in brown, orange, green, red (and blue) respectively? Finally, what does this change in color mean, anyhow?

The first two questions are easily answered even though the answer is not generally known: The colors were fixed by international agreement, Article VI. of the Universal Postal Union Conventions reading:

Section 1. The postage stamps representing the normal Union rates or their equivalents in the money of each country are printed in the following colors: the 25 centime stamps in deep blue, the 10 centimes in red and the 5 centimes in green.

As to the last two questions:

The 5, 10 and 20 pfennig stamps had the same postage value as our 1, 2 and 5 cent stamps, but soon after the armistice, letters began to bear 40 pfennig, and a little later 80 pfennig in postage. The rate was doubled, and then doubled again, ostensibly, of course, to increase revenues just as we paid a cent more on cards and letters during the war, but is this the whole story?

While brokers optimistically urge the purchase of foreign money and bonds for vast profits through the return of exchange rates to normal, many students of the financial situation wonder what will happen in Europe.

The new German stamps seem to indicate a revaluation of the mark. If the increased postage rates are merely a domestic matter, a temporary expedient like our own war rates, there would seem to be no need of reassigning the colors in the set. Since the colors have been changed, must we not infer that the German Government tacitly accepts for a long time to come six cents as the value of the mark?

The inference drawn must be checked up by the reader in the light of the facts and his experience. Its value, if correct, does not lie in any influence on the present worth of the mark—that we get very well in the daily quotations which represent fairly the purchasing power of the mark in Germany—it lies in our estimate of future worth. Clearly it is futile to expect 23.8 cents for a mark if its parity is to be only 6 cents.

When we hear that German industrial concerns are making tremendous profits let us remember that these profits in paper money must be some fifteen times former profits to be of equal value, and even then taxes are likely to absorb a half before even a 6-cent gold value can be attained.

An inference from a postage stamp seems a frail straw truly, yet a straw may tell us which way the wind is blowing, and we may soon find other straws bending in the same direction. It will not be surprising if several other countries soon follow Germany's lead in this matter, and it will be interesting to watch their stamps and see what value each places upon its currency.

Written for MEKEEL'S.

EIGHT CENTURIES OF POSTAL SERVICE IN FRANCE.

Adapted from ALFRED DE FOVILLE'S La Transformation des Moyens de Transport et ses Conséquences Economiques et Sociales (Librairie Guillaumin et Cie, Paris, 1880.)

By LOWELL J. RAGATZ.

(Concluded from last week.)

Under the operation of Gresham's law, which is that cheap money drives out the dear, these assignats were used to make all payments, and postal rates were therefore adjusted somewhat proportionally. One-fourth ounce letters sent up to fifth leagues were charged two livres ten sous, those up to one hundred leagues, five livres, those up to one hundred fifty leagues, seven livres ten sous, and those beyond this distance, ten livres. Rates on other classes of mail were set proportionally.

This scale, reminding one of that employed in Mexico in the early days of the Carranza regime, was in vogue but for six months. The maximum weight of single sheet letters was then raised to one-half ounce, and rates were lowered to six sous for those in Zone 1, ten sous for those in Zone2, fourteen sous for those in Zone 3, and eighteen sous for those in Zone 4, these prices being in silver money in general.

An innovation introduced, however, was that postage totalling less than a franc was to be paid in notes representing the current value of ten pounds of wheat, this grain then being used quite extensively as a standard of value by the government and by business men.

In 1797, the ten-league zone system of 1791 was re-established. The letter unit was set at seven grams. The fee under this scale ranged from twenty centimes per letter unit in Zone 1 to seventy-five centimes per letter unit in the zone included beyond the 150 league limit. No paper money was accepted. The primary object of the new schedule was to harmonize weight and rates with the newly introduced decimal system.

The schedule of 1806, amended in 1810, instituted another domestic tariff for single letter sheets ranging from twenty centimes per unit up to fifty kilometers to one franc, fifty centimes up to 2,000 kilometers. It was during this period when Napoleon was at the height of his power. His large conquests included within the empire explain the possibility of domestic postage rates at distances up to 2,000 kilometers.

This schedule remained in force throughout the Napoleonic period and the first half of the Bourbon restoration.

The last zone system in the postal history of France was established in 1827, at which time the following rates went

The postage on papers was set at two and one-half centimes per sheet for inter-departmental mailing, and five centimes per sheet when mailed from one department to another. This schedule remained in general force for twenty years.

By a law of 1829, 37,367 outlying communes were deprived of regular governmental postal service. Mail in them was delivered and collected but twice a month thereafter, and at a rate ten centimes per item over and above that charged in the communes regularly served under the tariff of 1827. During the rest of the time, the inhabitants were left to fare as best they might. Some engaged regular messengers, others, more privileged, were allowed to use the prefect's weekly service.

Charles X had little desire to have the several parts of his kingdom in close communication with each other, hence the deterioration of the service, already evident in the days of Louis XVIII, proceeded rapidly. Mails travelled slower and slower until it took a day and a half to receive a reply from Versailles, but eleven miles away.

The organization of the postal system as it existed under the Bourbons was retained by Louis Philippe, the Orleanist bourgeois king, upon his accession to the throne following the Jun revolution of 1830. The rates established in 1827 were kept in effect. His reign saw the beginning of the spread of the great network of railroads which was to cover Europe within a few decades, making possible much more rapid communication and resulting in a general sharp reduction of postal rates throughout the world.

Great Britain, which led Europe in railroad construction, was the first to place its postal system on a basis in harmony with the new order. The proportional system of charges was abandoned, and penny postage was introduced. The change was looked at with askance, not only in England, but on the continent as well.

The number of pieces handled at once increased tremendously. Whereas British mails had carried 76,000,000 letters in 1839, 169,000,000 pieces were carried in 1840. Because of lowered rates, the postal revenue fell from 478,000£ to 278,000£, and the net profit from 326,000£ to 100,000£. It was more than ten years before receipts again reached the total of 1839, but the number of letters handled increased constantly, reaching 350,000,000 in 1850.

The benefits of the many low rate plans which had been introduced with such tremendous success by her ancient rival across the Channel was not lost on France. By a new postal law of 1848, passed shortly after the overthrow of the Orleanist dynasty and the establishment of the second Republic, a uniform scale effective January 1, 1849, was inaugurated.

The rate on letters weighing up to seven and one-half grams was set at twenty centimes; that on letters weighing up to fifteen grams, forty centimes; that on letters up to one hundred grams, one franc; that on letters above one hundred grams, one franc plus another franc for every one hundred grams or fraction thereof. Double rates were charged for registered letters. Local letters were delivered at fifteen centimes each. The same law made provision for the introduction of postage stamps; 10, 15. 20, 25 and 40 centimes and 1 franc stamps subsequently appeared.

The new schedule resulted in a deficit of 11,000,000 francs in the first year of its operation, and the situation was not much improved with the passing of time. The Government was heavily pressed as a result of the maturity of a large number of Napoleonic era bonds and new large debts having been incurred as a result of the Revolutions of 1830 and 1848. It could not, therefore, easily bear this burden, and a readjustment seemed most advisable.

The letter rate was raised from twenty to twenty-five centimes per unit weight in 1850. In 1854, under the Empire of Louis Napoleon, it was reduced to twenty centimes once more on prepaid letters. Those sent collect were, however, charged thirty centimes per unit weight. The result of this differentiation was a tremendous increase in the number of prepaid letters. Whereas, in the last days of Louis Philippe, ninety per cent had been sent collect, in 1855 eighty-five per cent were sent prepaid.

In 1861, the unit of weight was increased from seven and one-half grams to ten grams, and in 1862 the rate for local delivery letters was reduced from fifteen to ten centimes. Otherwise the schedule of 1854 was retained throughout the period of the Empire.

The disasters of "the terrible year" commencing in July, 1870, namely the Franco-German war and the war on the Commune of Paris, resulted in a temporary increase of rates. In 1871, interior postage was again increased from twenty to twenty-five centimes, and local postage from ten to fifteen centimes. Postal cards were introduced in 1873.

The Universal Postal Union, established by the Treaty of Berne in 1876, resulted in the abolition of the twenty-five centime interior postage rate, and the application of this charge to foreign postage. As the state of finances had been improved greatly following the payment of the last of the German indemnity in 1873, a reduction was in order anyway, and the public had been clamoring for lower rates for some time. In November, 1876, M. Léon Say, Minister of Finance, proposed to the Chamber of Deputies a return to the low schedule of 1870.

The Budget Commission was even more liberal. It proposed an interior prepaid letter rate of fifteen centimes per ten grams, without a lower local rate, and a charge of thirty centimes per unit weight on "collect" letters. The entire schedule of rates for papers, books, magazines, etc., was correspondingly lowered.

The Chamber accepted the proposal, and the new schedule went into effect on

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, BALLSTON LAKE, N. Y.

May 1, 1878. At once the volume of mail handled showed a large increase. Thus, in 1877, the last year under the old schedule, 732,404,000 pieces of interior and 103,427,000 pieces of foreign mail were carried. In 1878, these numbers reached 1,193,425,000 and 106,830,000 pieces respectively.

Receipts of 1878 showed a loss of 17,695,000 francs over those of 1877. However, the expense of the service had increased materially by the union of the telegraph and postal service which had just taken place. By 1880, while the combined postal-telegraph service was still being conducted at a loss, the deficits were decreasing, and eventually the service became self-supporting.

A comparison of foreign rates before and after the introduction of railroads and the establishment of the Universal Postal Union will not be without interest.

ORDINARY LETTER RATES.

From France to	1833 rate (in francs)	1880 rate
Great Britain	.80 to 1.10	Uniformly 25 centimes
Austria	.70 to .80
Belgium	.80 to 1.10
Denmark	1.60
Spain	1.20
Hanover	1.40 to 1.70
Italy	1.50
Norway	1.50
Prussia	.90 to 3.10
Russia	1.60 to 3.10
Sweden	1.60
Switzerland	.90 to 1.30

In 1880, the twenty-five centime rate also applied to the United States, Canada, Egypt, and Persia. The rate to India, Japan, Peru, and Mexico was 35 centimes.

During the eight centuries which we have considered, the trend has constantly been to wipe out prohibitive rates with their attendant check on communication and business and the maintenance of particularism, and to substitute steadily lowering charges as better means of transportation lowered the actual cost of the service.

Whereas the posts were originally a royal convenience, they were soon opened to the nobility, and were later conducted by the Government for the benefit of all, but as a business enterprise. A system which was very efficient and amply sufficient for the times developed, but with the adoption of the principle of farming out the service to private contractors, it deteriorated until it was one of the scandals of the old regime.

With the coming of the Revolution, the principle of Government responsibility for the service was again adopted, and though under the Bourbons, it was conducted with such an eye to profit that outlying communes which provided little of the revenue of the service were practically deprived of the service, a realization of the fact that the post was a service due all of the public all of the time was gradually arrived at, and the modern system of regular, low-priced, Nation-wide service was adopted.

This, then, has been the postal history of France in particular up to our own time. In general, however, it is the postal history of western Europe.

While rates and systems have varied from place to place and from time to time, the general trend in all the west European countries has been the same. The mails have, throughout modern times, been a most important instrument of democracy and a potent factor in breaking down the narrow, encircling walls of particularism and creating spirits of nationalism and internationalism. Indeed, it is not too much to say that, as they were one of the primal causes of the movement toward popular control, so they are today, among the most striking evidences of the state to which our present day culture has attained.

ENGLISH COLONIES

We are pleased to announce the purchase of a superb lot of English Colonials, singles, blocks of four, and some duplicates of the scarcer, speculative stamps; most of the blocks are unhinged. Combined with our own stock, we can show today the finest assortment in America.

With the change of watermark, which has already begun to appear, we strongly advise our customers to fill up their vacant spaces, especially current "Georges".

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—A. M. McFadden informs us that the 16c and 24c aeros are on sale at the Washington, D. C., P. O. O. W. Crowder gives us the same word about Baltimore, Md. These two values are also located at the Chicago Post office (Sheridan Park Branch) by Walker Banning. A. E. Gwinnell writes that the 16 and 24c are on sale at the Wholesale Department of the Worcester, Mass., P. O. According to Karl A. Pember, the 24c may be secured at White River Junction, Vt. According to John S. Bridgman, the 16c precancelled is being used at the Memphis, Tenn., post office.

—Saturday evening, Jan. 22, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Mason of Washington, D. C., held a reception in celebration of the 25th anniversary of their wedding. It was held in their home at Clifton, Va., and the house was decorated with mid-winter foliage. The Washington Star gives a long list of guests and a very enjoyable evening was spent. Mr. Mason, who is connected with the Stamp Shoppe, has the hearty congratulations of hundreds of philatelists who have become acquainted with him through the columns of the WEEKLY.

—The J. W. Scott Co., Ltd., for many years at 36 John St., N. Y. City, will hereafter be located at Room 336, 206 Broadway. The change was made February 1. The firm reports a large business, both wholesale and retail.

—A list of bargain offers is at hand from the Zenith Stamp Co., New Britain, Conn. Many attractive items are given and the list will no doubt be sent on request.

—A wholesale price list has been received from C. A. Williams & Co., 291 Autumn Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y. It lists a wide variety of countries and prices stamps per ten and per one hundred.

—"Elliott Perry stopped off here last week with the Needham collection of Canada stamps. They were certainly some fine goods. A number of collectors took advantage of the opportunity and got many desirable Canadas."—HERMAN W. BOERS, Detroit.

—Under a decision of the Swiss federal council the new international postal rates will be put in force in Switzerland February 1, except in the case of packages, the rates on which will be applied April 1. After the present month, letters will cost forty centimes each and postal cards twenty centimes.

—Otto Arco, 501 W. 124 St., N. Y. City, wishes us to ask those of our readers who have purchased stamps of him to have them expertized in order that their genuineness may be satisfactorily established. Mr. Arco purchased three years ago several collections which he has since dispersed, and feels convinced that some of the stamps disposed of may not have been what they pretended to be.

—My correspondent in Barcelona, Spain, writes me with reference to the recent stamps issued in Spain: "Madrid, 1920:—Referring to the stamps you want, I am sorry to inform you that these were already bought up before coming out on sale, so it is nearly impossible to get any pieces, and they have been paid many times their facial value. I myself was unable to catch any sets. C. Ferrer."—J. E. GUEST.

A PHILATELIC ROMANCE.

(We have received from Carl H. Schafer the following clipping from the Niles (Mich.) "Daily Sun," under date of Jan. 26. It may indeed be called a real romance in philately. —W. O. W.)

A story of romance and adventure is unfolded in the records of events which led up to the wedding of Erdman Ockel of this city and Miss Elizabeth Heidrich of Austria.

Mr. Ockel, early in his youth, became interested in the collection of stamps, little dreaming that through this effort, he would win for himself a bride. In his quest for stamps, Mr. Ockel joined the National Philatelic Society and as a member had an extensive correspondence which brought him letters from every part of the world. But of all he received in the course of several years, one from Elizabeth Heidrich, also a philatelist of Austria, seemed to appeal to him the most. Other letters were exchanged and in the course of time, a declaration of love was conveyed in a letter from Mr. Ockel and he was made happy when the mail brought the message that she reciprocated his affection. Then followed a marriage proposal and the subsequent acceptance.

How Mr. Ockel was to get his fiancee, whom he had not yet seen, to America, was a problem, Miss Heidrich finding it impossible to get a passport. Miss Heidrich even went to Berlin herself to secure the necessary papers which would permit her to leave her native country. Last month a letter conveyed the glad news that Miss Heidrich had secured the necessary passport, and last week a wireless message brought the news that Miss Heidrich was on the ocean. Her arrival has been eagerly awaited not only by Mr. Ockel but by his friends here who were deeply interested in the pretty romance. Those who have met Mrs. Ockel proclaim her a charming young woman and congratulations are being showered upon Mr. Ockel.

SEEBOHM TO THE FRONT.

Outside of the Fennell Stamp Co., we have no dealer in any metropolitan center doing such good work in increasing our subscription list as Edwin P. Seebohm of San Francisco, Cal. During the past month hardly a day has passed but that he has sent us one or more subscriptions taken from patrons of his office. Few dealers are willing to co-operate with us this way, either through lack of time or lack of inclination, and we appreciate Mr. Seebohm's work all the more in that it stands out so conspicuously. Mr. Seebohm says:—"Some dealers do everything they can to keep their customers in the dark regarding philatelic journalism. They do not want it known that such a thing as a stamp paper is being published, but we consider this eleventh century tactics."

What do you say, Mr. Dealer?

NEWS FROM MID-EUROPE.

By A. KOECHLIN.

The air mail service from Frankfort to Basle referred to in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY Dec. 11 is in action. It is necessary to frank Swiss letters with a 30c stamp having the same overprint as the obsolete Scott No. 191.

As a consequence of the new inland rates the 3c, 7½c, 13c and 15c stamps of Switzerland have been overprinted with these values respectively:—2½, 5, 10, 20c. The overprinting of the 2½ and 20 is in black, while the 5 and 10c values are in red. The original value in each case is obliterated by three short horizontal lines.

Feb. 1 the rates for international mail will be raised and this will cause some more changes in colors. There will be a 5c orange, 10c green, 20c violet, 25c red and 40c dark blue, the first four in the Tell design and the last Helvetia.

Germany has recently issued some new mark values in the Germania type, the stamps being of the same size as the pfennig values and bi-colored. You no doubt have chronicled them before this letter is received. A 75pf red lilac made its appearance but it has been withdrawn as there were too many values in violet and lilac already in use.

The German service stamps with 21 are obsolete. The new 40pf and the higher mark values are only known without 21.

Fiume is most likely preparing a new set by this time and rumor has it that Austria too has a philatelic surprise awaiting us.

"HALF A HILL."

R. N. Bruns calls our attention to the fact that the Ladies Home Journal for February contains a story under the title "Half a Hill" by Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, who some years ago won honors in Collier's prize contest with a story entitled "The Sick Abed Lady".

The particular thing about the story we have referred to is the fact that it contains an interesting reference to philately. A character in the story is represented as "cramming up on philately". The situation is thus described:—

"I crammed till my brain like a rainbow-colored kaleidoscope of pale-pink presidents and bright-green antelopes and heaven knows what colored palm trees, potentates and general inch-square scenic effects representative of Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia—and Mars itself, for all I can remember.

"I crammed till my glib tongue flapped in my mouth like a stamp dealer's approval sheet! I crammed until—well, until I was all but late for the momentous event itself. Dashing madly back to my hotel room to freshen up a bit, I spilled a bottle of ink over my last clean collar! My hotel room, of course, had been paid for in advance, and I had my ticket home all right and a car fare presumably. But not one cent to buy a clean collar with!"

The page advertisement of Maxwell Krause stands out in this issue with a good deal of prominence. Our dealer friend has his own ideas in regard to advertising and there is every indication that he is making good. He uses all the way from a quarter page up, in occasional issues, and the advertisement this week indicates the class of business that Mr. Krause is doing. We quote from his letter, accompanying the copy, the following:—

"Let me say, if it is of any interest to you, that from a little more than $300 worth of advertising in your paper, I have done $10,000 worth of stamp business. This may not be a record, but is certainly indicative of the pulling power of your paper. All this business did not come directly from your ads, but much of it, of course, came from follow-ups. Nevertheless, I must credit it all to MEKEEL'S—a fact which many stamp dealers lose sight of. My main point is that a few generous ads in your paper plus good goods and a little pep on the part of the dealer is all that is necessary to conduct a successful stamp business."

MILWAUKEE PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

The Milwaukee Philatelic Society began its activities for 1921, the year in which the national convention of the American Philatelic Society will be held in our city, by re-electing practically all of the present officers, so the officers for this year will be as follows:—Pres., Dr. Leon D. Peaslee; Vice Pres., William J. Uihlein; Sec., Fred W. Noske; Treas., Louis A. Burmeister, Jr.; Lib'n, Dr. William H. Linke, and Publicity Sec., Aaron B. Rosenthal.

The officers and members have become imbued with a spirit which assures that the 1921 national convention will be an enjoyable and profitable gathering for all who attend. Milwaukee is famous as a convention city, and the Milwaukee Philatelic Society will be given the facilities of the various commercial and civic bodies which have contributed so much to establishing the city's reputation.

Our Society is experiencing a gratifying growth. Every meeting sees the entrance of new members, and these new members enter into the pre-convention activities with fully as much enthusiasm as do the older members. The Junior branch is also expanding, and promises to become one of the leading organizations of its kind in the United States before the year closes.

It would be too early at this stage to outline the program of entertainment which is being arranged for the convention; but the plans of the various committees concerned have gone far beyond the stage of mere preliminaries.

The winter season has witnessed a round of interesting affairs, and one of the most enjoyable was the evening spent at the home of Dr. F. A. Kraft, on Dec. 3, 1920, when the members and guests saw Dr. Kraft's splendid albums of British Colonials and Old German States, and partook of his generous hospitality. At another meeting a raffle of a 10 cent U. S. 1847 was conducted, with the result that more than $30 was obtained for the convention fund. On Feb. 18 there will be a donation auction in our quarters in the Public Museum.

A. B. ROSENTHAL.

PRAGUE AND STAMPS.

describing the many arcades in gue, Czecho-Slovakia, Maynard Wil- s in the February Geographic Maga- says: "Others are great open halls cut their way through massive den blocks, their plate glass walls arded with posters and pierced by ances to moving picture shows and rets that love the dark, with hair- ers' windows full of cheap perfume igh prices and with a postage stamp er or two. No modern arcade in gue would be complete without a age stamp dealer whose windows pock-marked with treasures for the atelist. In one of the arcades the or advances past the frankly in- ing photograph of the newest dance n to drop a coin in the slot and some tasteless fluid squirted into a s by hidden forces that earn for the e the name of "Automat". In these when paper lucre and uncanceled age stamps have driven out hard an automat whose vitals need the k of metal coin to stir them into n has a hard time.

opular as canceled postage stamps in Bohemia, the favorite art pro- ion nowadays is an American made crown note. This charming piece rt has not, like its 100 crown brother, counterfeited; hence the man who ives one in change does not have reak his neck while holding it be- n him and the light to see whether is a wafflepattern watermark in it."

A REJOINDER.

MY DEAR MR. SEVERN:—

Inasmuch as I am the guilty party referred to in your little editorial on Catalogue prices in Dec. 4 issue, may I not transgress on your time to give my answer to the question?

Assuming that an individual does garner together a large quantity of one stamp, why should the cataloguer raise the price? The supply is exactly the same as before, no more or no less. It is merely in a different location. If the cataloguer takes cognizance of the change of ownership, he would be bound likewise to keep close watch with the idea of lowering quotations in case the new owner tried to market his acquisitions. This would be some job.

Suppose he did raise his valuation on the stamp in question, what effect would it have? The increased valuation would have nothing to do with the "intrinsic" value of the stamp, which is after all what one needs to know. Increased catalogue might mean owners would sell, but that again would merely mean a change of ownership, and it is not likely the new buyers would rush to force the stamp on the market and reduce prices, below what they paid. True, most people like to sell on a falling market and buy on a rising market, for that seems to be human nature. Successful speculators, I have always been told, followed the reverse method of operation and buy on the falling while selling on the rising market.

Differences of opinion as regards values make business possible. One buys stocks or a piece of real estate because he has a higher regard for its value or possible future value than the seller. Time always tells which judged correctly. Looking forward into future possibilities, or possibly some information, the seller (or valuator) does not possess is generally the basis of investment in the business world, and why not in stamps? The result of the investment depends on whether the forecast, or the information, was correct. U. S. Steel, common, once sold below ten dollars a share, but even if the Stock Exchange still quoted it at that, I doubt one being able to buy at that price; at least not many shares.

The writer claims to know no more regarding the policy of the official cataloguer than any other man, (although he wants to say right here that he has always found Scott's willing to stand by their prices and game enough to sell at them so long as they had any). There are a lot of catalogues and cataloguers, and I regret to state that I cannot consider any of them as being divinely inspired. They make mistakes like other mortals.

There is not a stamp dealer of experience and few experienced collectors who do not know of daily sales of stamps at far above and far below catalogue prices, and who do not consider a lot of stamps under-priced and a lot of stamps over-valued. True, most sales are based on a percentage of catalogue value, but nevertheless every buyer and seller knows some things he will pay more for and some less.

Why slavishly follow any catalogue, if you think you know better? Today there are hundreds and perhaps thousands of discriminating stamp buyers who buy not only for the pleasure of collecting but with the idea of investment, and the laying-up of money in the form of stamps, believing that their knowledge will enable them to get better returns than other forms of investment. These are the buyers who disregard catalogue.

In your editorial you state that you know the number issued enters into, and that you consider it important to know what becomes of them. What governs actually the price is purely and simply the law of demand and supply. No cataloguer can eventually get away from it. Any one knows that a number one stamp of any country is worth more, all other things being equal, than any other. Not so many that the No. 1 of the 20th Century is also in demand because some collect only that century and want the first space filled in their albums. Any triangular stamp is apt to be worth more than a rectangular, and a pictorial than a plain one. These are only a few of the points that have to be considered if you wish to forecast the future price. Also, it is much (yea many times) easier for the cataloguer to over-value a stamp than it is to under-value it. Dealers and owners are willing to sell them if they know they are over-valued, whereas they don't sell them if they consider them under-valued. I can name several stamps that I am willing to pay double catalogue for and I cannot find them for sale anywhere.

In considering future values one must not overlook the fact that the demand varies with the price. Once a stamp is raised, say, from two cents to ten cents, the number of collectors is greatly reduced, and if raised again from ten to fifty, a further reduction takes place. The number of collectors able to add fifty dollar varieties to their collection is very small compared with the collectors of penny approvals. Stamps in demand at fifteen cents each might be plentiful were the price a dollar or two dollars.

ADVERTISING BILLS PAYABLE.

So promptly were bills paid last month that only one advertising contract was suspended Feb. 1. We appreciate the promptness with which our advertisers responded to our requirement that bills be paid on presentation and at the very latest before the 20th. When we make up the forms for March 5 we shall omit the advertising of any dealer who has not paid his February bill.

EDITORIAL.

Another—We have seen type IV of the current two cent, surface printing, in which both of the "2's" have been touched up. Indeed, the red line just above the lower curl of "2" is extended so far in each numeral that the figures almost are divided in two. The ultimate has been reached in tinkering with the 2's.

Generous—Some of our readers have a way of remembering us that makes us think that we could run a country newspaper to advantage. Our present position is better than that of the arbiter of the destinies of the aforesaid newspaper as the things that come to us are not to be applied on subscription, as the potatoes and eggs are. This delirious outburst is caused by the receipt of an entire envelope gauge for the numerous sizes of United States envelopes, a welcome tool for the U. S. envelope enthusiast,—may his tribe increase. Perhaps there would be a market for a scale of this kind, combined with a millimeter measure, perforation gauge, etc. Anyhow, it is a useful article that should be added to the list of accessories.

Profitable—In the Atlantic Monthly for December, 1920, p. 826, there is a significant stamp passage. Mr. Ragatz calls our attention to Charlotte Kellogg's "Down the Danube," (a personal narrative, mid-summer 1920), in which the following incident is mentioned: "'However, madame,' with another of his delicious mocking gestures, he slipped a packet from an inside pocket—'one can continue to be happy despite even plebiscites. Who knows that there may not be after all even something to be said for a varied repertoire in national hymns? Once I was a colonel in the Austrian army; now I trade in these!' He spread about a dozen rare postage stamps on the table. 'And at least these will do more for my wife and children than the pension we tried to run six months ago.'" With this bit of testimony, the case certainly will be settled in favor of the postage stamp.

Seen—One of the pictures that caught the eyes of our readers was that of the youthful Charles M. Schwab "of Washington, D. C., in a Snowdrift of His Collection of Stamps, Estimated to be More Than Two Million in Number," which appeared in the pictorial supplement of one of the "feature" syndicates. We are pleased to see the picture, and while we cannot say that young Schwab is to be congratulated upon his preference for quantity rather than quality, we are sure that his heart beats strong for our hobby; and he may develop into a Pack or an Ackerman.

Copied—While rummaging through the effects of a prominent attorney, deceased, we were much surprised to find the following letter that evidently had been addressed to him. We copy it literally: "Dubuque, Jan. 6, 1874. Dear Friend: These are the names of the best stamp companies I could find. Write first asking them for a circular. Franco-Amer. Stamp Co., P. O. Box 349, Elizabeth, N. J. 50 stamps for 20c; 100 for 35c; 300 for $1.00. Southern Stamp Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., P. O. Box 156. 5 foreign stamps and circular for 3c. American Stamp Co., Meriden, Conn." This letter reminds us of the good old days, in the manner of speaking, when the enterprising collector regarded the names of stamp dealers as an asset and consequently he would not impart them to his fellows without a return in stamps or pennies.

Pilgrim—There is publicity of an unclassified kind that we must accept with mixed feelings. Here is a sample from the sprightly Chicago American of recent date: "It remained for observing Waukegan to call the attention of Uncle Sam to the fact that he had made a serious omission in designing the Pilgrim Tercentenary postage stamps. Sets of the stamps, which have been on sale here for some time, reached Waukegan today and were placed on sale at the post office. An hour later an excited stamp collector made complaint to the postal authorities. He had discovered that for the first time in America's history the words 'United States Postage' had been omitted from the design of the stamps. There is nothing at all on the stamps to indicate what country issued them. As a result of this complaint, it is likely that the entire issue may be recalled by the postal authorities. . . . . ." Now, we are willing to give a Hurrah for watchful Waukegan and a Huzza for the excited stamp collector, but it is necessary to revert to the prosaic facts. As we said last week, it is not the intention of the authorities to change the design of the new stamps; and we may as well certify this statement by the following letter to us from W. J. Barrows, Acting Third Assistant Postmaster General: "There is no reason for recalling the Pilgrim Tercentenary commemorative stamps. These stamps are a departure in several respects from conventional designs—although precedent exists for the omission of country in previous American and foreign issues. There is no necessity for the name, as the stamps are fully identified and authenticated to the postal service in a notice, of which a copy is enclosed. Any additional lettering would have over-crowded designs which required all of the space assigned to them." A fig for precedent and "whosoever shall follow truth too near the heels, it may haply strike out his teeth."

Express—We have found on a letter bearing a one cent of 1861 used as a carrier stamp an express label: "Forwarded by the American Express Co. from 320 Chestnut St., Philadelphia," the printed line at top: "Internal Revenue Paid." In view of the fact that this label represented the express tax levy paid in cash, it has a collecting interest for the specialist in our revenue issues.

Prison—An inquiry comes asking if the mail sent by northern soldiers incarcerated in Andersonville Prison has any identifying marks upon it. We presume that the writer means exclusive of the written inscription, "Andersonville Prison," and date that mark such envelopes. At one time, we had the subject of the postal markings on prisoners' letters, both North and South, rather well in mind and it is our recollection that none of the southern prisons used postmarks, such as "Johnston's Island" and "Camp Douglas," as in the North. For instance, letters from northern prisoners in Fort Delaware, Del., found their letters postmarked "Delaware City, Del." with the usual superscriptions as to the examination of letter and we have never seen, we believe, a "printed" Andersonville postmark. However, our prisoners' letters have been scattered far and wide and it is possible that some enthusiastic collector of these interesting covers can supplement our observations.

Calendar—We are pleased to notice that the American Philatelist has started a philatelic calendar for the current year. It has been some time since one of these interesting time-tables for stamp folk has appeared which in view of the information and instruction that such a calendar provides is somewhat surprising. The calendar in question seems to be in good hands.

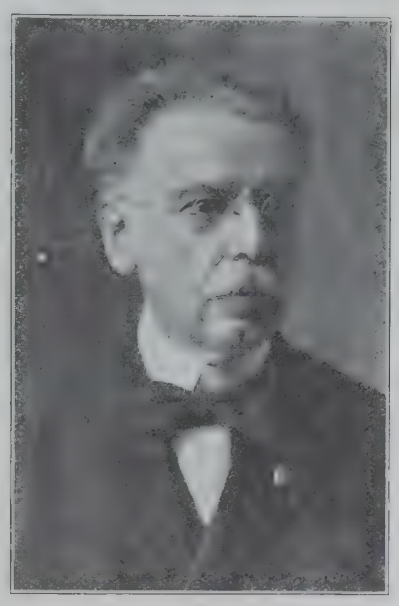
HONORS FOR DR. ABBOTT.

The many philatelic friends of Dr. Charles E. Abbott of Andover, Mass., will be glad to hear that he is now a member of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, having been elected from the 9th Essex district last November.

Dr. Abbott has been in the active practise of his profession for forty years, during which time he has taken a great interest in stamp collecting, though recently his work has seriously interfered.



He has, however, kept up with Great Britain, including plate numbers, postmarks, etc. He is also up to date with British North America, a few of the British Colonies and what he describes as "my pet Netherlands".

Any stamp collector visiting the State House and desiring to see the historic cod-fish at short range will no doubt secure the privilege of the floor by sending in his card to Dr. Abbott. We join with a host of friends in wishing him a large measure of success in his legislative career.

FIELD'S CATALOG.

—David Field, the well-known London dealer, has issued a notable catalog, "Postage Stamps of the Great War and After, 1914-1920." The catalog makes a specialty of the description of stamps and the giving of information more or less general in character. The catalog is of value from the fact that the prices quoted represent the publisher's market quotations. A large map as a preface to the book gives in concrete form a mass of war issues information, and we heartily recommend this book of 180 pages with its many illustrations. The price of the book is 2sh 6d, but we can furnish it at 50c for a limited time. Apply to the WEEKLY office.

UNFAIR REGULATIONS RESCINDED.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

An article in the WEEKLY of January 8th treated of the unfair regulations brought into force in the summer of 1920 by the presidencies of St. Kitts-Nevis and Antigua in the Leeward Islands. Orders received through the post from collectors and dealers were not to be filled by the Post Office, but rather by certain specified vendors. The vendors of St. Kitts did not charge a commission, but in Antigua a charge of either 2½% or 5% was made.

A protest to the Administrator of St. Kitts brought forth the statement that "the action taken by the Postmaster of this presidency is that directed by the Governor of the Leeward Islands and the Secretary of State for the Colonies."

But when the matter was taken up with the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and the unfairness of these regulations pointed out, he replied that "the Colonial Government has been asked to adopt the standing arrangements in other Colonies, which provide that an application from a collector or dealer in stamps for postage stamps in current use, accompanied by a remittance in full, should be complied with by the local Postmaster, if he is able to do so, as with any other applications for stamps on the part of the public."

According to local advice, the ruling was intended to relieve the Post Offices, which along with other Government Departments, are short-staffed. The Colonial Postmaster in many of the smaller islands usually serves in a dozen or more official capacities, and in most cases his salary does not come from the Post Office, but rather from some other more important of his positions.

DEATH OF HERMAN SCHMIDT.

We are pained to record the death of Herman Schmidt, the New York dealer and a man of sterling integrity. Ever since the Managing Editor visited New York in the interests of the WEEKLY he has made it his practice to call on Mr. Schmidt. He died February 1, but particulars are lacking. The business of the firm will no doubt be continued by the son, Fred H. Schmidt, an energetic and well-informed stamp man.

JUST COMMON COURTESY.

Whenever we write a letter asking for information we make it a practice to enclose an addressed stamped envelope for reply. It is simply a common everyday courtesy that should not be neglected. Why should we expect anyone to trouble themselves with a request we have made upon them when we do not even pay the postage upon the reply? The ethics of correspondence require that this little detail be given proper consideration.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Mr. B. K. Miller has located a block of the thirty cent postage due stamp, perforated 10 on the single line watermarked paper. This stamp has never been known in this perforation and the block in question is from a 400 subject plate No. 5526. Formerly this denomination was made from 200 subject plates of which there were two. No. 73 and 260. Some time later, two plates of 400 subjects each were made namely, 5526 and 5537, the latter plate has not as yet been used. We have as yet to learn of the existence of the fifty cent stamp with the same perforation.

In accordance with our recent advice, the Government now issues envelopes on white and blue paper only, the amber and buff having been discontinued on January 1st last. I understand that a new contract has been entered into by the Post Office Department for the furnishing of these envelopes and that they will now be watermarked 1921 instead of 1915 as heretofore. The Government has greatly curtailed their list of envelopes sold to the public and those interested may obtain on request from any of the branch offices a list of those sizes now available.

Several weeks back, we mentioned that an envelope originating in one of the cities of Florida had been seen overprinted with a large figure "2" in black. Through the courtesy of Mr. A. F. Gamber we are now able to inform our readers that the Post Office at Daytona Beach did this overprinting. It seems that they had a small stock of unsurcharged three cent envelopes and these along with quite a few found in the overprinted lots from Jacksonville were locally surcharged by means of a rubber stamp with a large black figure "2"—13 mm. high by 8 mm. wide. Anyone who has received a quantity of the Jacksonville envelopes will realize how poorly the work is done, consequently quite a few went through without receiving the overprint. Mr. Gamber went over the Daytona stock most carefully and found that practically all of those overprinted had been sold and that the office was using those surcharged in Jacksonville, in fact the stamp for doing this work locally has been destroyed.

Mr. George P. Smith while in Baltimore recently, learned that the die for overprinting envelopes had been received ,and he was fortunate in obtaining 50 on blue, all that they had on hand in this color. As they have a good supply of two cent envelopes on hand, they will not start surcharging their stock until the latter part of next month. In the meantime, they are overprinting the postal cards which are badly needed. Rev. C. L. Young sends quite a few of the second St. Louis varieties which have not as yet been chronicled. We overlooked mentioning some time back, that Mr. R. J. Wagner had mailed us an envelope from Fostoria, Ohio, overprinted in manuscript. When the clerk sold him some envelopes he noticed that one had not been overprinted and consequently took a pen and did the good work. Mr. W. A. Cullers informs me that he has found a similar variety but does not state which office used them. These latter varieties are of course of passing interest but will never take catalog rank. Mr. Julius Kahn sends an overprinted postal card from Minneapolis of the second type. We now know both cards with the overprint of this city.

Mr. T. Russell Hungerford calls our attention to the fact that he has located a bottom plate number block of the 2c Pilgrim Stamps from plate 12442 wherein the stamp directly above the plate number shows a crack or line running from the "E" of "THE" down through the left arm of the "T" of "CENTS". He does not state whether this is from the lower right or left pane.

We desire to thank Messrs. O. F. Henker, G. R. Rankin and D. B. Baker for notes of interest.

AUSTRIA.—Mr. F. A. Brown advises that he has recently received a revenue stamp of this country with the word "Deutschosterrich" surcharged diagonally across the face upon a letter and it had been used to pay postage as there were no other stamps on the letter and no postage due stamps were affixed to collect on this end.

CENTRAL LITHUANIA.—Mr. Frank B. Jancowski shows us two values of a new set, viz., 25c red and 2m purple that he advises are of a set of stamps used in part occupied by Gen. Keligowski's troops or in other words of the "Wilno" government. The set is from 25pf to 20 marks and at the top has the words "Srodkowa Litwa" with the values at the base. A design in the centre shows the typical eagle and a warrior on horseback.

CHINA.—Mr. E. G. Young sends us the following information regarding the latest surcharged stamps. The stamps are sold at the face value of the unsurcharged stamps but do duty in the amount of the surcharge—which is therefore exactly the opposite of a sur-

FINE COPIES OF 1861 U. S.

Almost as hard to find beautiful copies of some of the '61 issue as of the '69's. How many extensive collections show perfect copies of the 5c buff, 15c black, 24c steel blue, 90c blue? We have a few beauties; some with fancy cancellations. They are cheap, condition considered, but the prices make catalog quotations for ordinary copies look like a bargain sale. Some very nice '47's also on hand.

"DISPATCH ONLY IF PREPAID."

Owing to a desire on their part to check individual cases of carelessness and provide measures that will guard against the mailing of mail matter destined for foreign countries insufficiently prepaid, it has become a practice with many business concerns to stamp or print a notation on envelopes or covers of mail articles for foreign countries, reading "Dispatch only if postage is fully prepaid" or some similar notation to indicate that mail articles not fully prepaid by postage stamps affixed be not dispatched but be returned to the senders for the affixing of the additional postage stamps required.

When mail articles are marked as indicated in the foregoing they may be at once returned, or in any case involving the retention in post offices of mail articles addressed to foreign countries because insufficiently prepaid, postmasters are hereby authorized to return the articles to the senders upon their request that the articles be returned them in order that from an examination thereof it may be determined what employee is responsible for the mailing of the short-paid matter.

The postage stamps originally affixed to mail matter so returned will, when it is again presented for mailing, be accepted in payment of postage to the amount of their face value.

OTTO PRAEGER,
2nd Asst. Postmaster General.

JAMAICA PICTORIAL.

The new Pictorial 1sh, 2sh and 3sh stamps have been placed on sale. All are printed on the old Multiple CA paper. The 1sh value is printed in orange and shows a statue of Queen Victoria in the centre with inscription "Jamaica—Postage Revenue" in two lines at the top, palm trees at each side, and, at the foot, the value in figures at either corner, and inscription "Queen Victoria—of Jamaica—Lady Supreme" in two lines. This value is issued in sheets of 60, containing five rows of 12, perf. 14, by a single-line machine. The centre is printed in a second operation.

The 2sh value is printed in brown, with blue centre, with the value in figures in each corner. Inscription "Jamaica" at top; "Postage Revenue" respectively over the values in lower corners; a sailing ship and row boat at left side; palm tree and lake or sea view at right; picture of the Rodney Memorial in centre, with inscription below "Rodney Memorial." Issued in sheets of 60, five rows of 12, perf. 14, by single-line machine.

The 3sh value is printed in orange with purple centre, inscription at top "Postage Revenue—3s Jamaica 3s," palm trees at either side, inscription at foot in three lines, "Sir Charles Metcalfe—Governor of Jamaica—1839-1842," and the value, 3s, in the corners; a statue of Sir Charles Metcalfe in the centre. This value is issued in sheets of 30, five rows of six, perf. 14, by comb machine.

Two watermark errors occur in these stamps, one showing Crown over C, the other Crown over A. I have the 1sh value with both errors, the 2sh value with Crown over C, and the 3sh value with Crown over A. It is possible that the two higher values may be found with both errors.

THE STAMPS OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Guy Commemorative Issue.

In September, 1910, a new series of eleven different values was issued with the more or less laudable intention of commemorating the 300th anniversary of the colonization of Newfoundland. In 1610 a Bristol merchant named Guy received an independent grant from King James I to colonise the "New Found Isle" discovered by Cabot; and though a small expedition consisting of one ship was sent out, we fear this venture, though a romantic incident in the history of the island, was not a conspicuous success. The first permanent settlement is generally conceded to date from the expedition of Lord Baltimore which took place some thirteen years later. At that time the value of the fisheries was beginning to be appreciated by English merchants and their vessels soon outnumbered those sailing from Norman and Breton ports. The English fishery was conducted by merchants and shipowners of the West Country ports, who found the capital and organised the annual voyages, which were in the nature of great oversea "adventures". To afford shelter and the needful premises for curing and storing the catch, rough stagings and sheds were from year to year erected at suitable points along the coast. But it early became the object of the adventurers at home to prevent permanent settlement, the growth of proprietary rights and organised administration, as being likely to restrict the free use of the shore line. Hence the early development of the colony was largely determined by the interests, British or other, which gathered around the fisheries. Due to this, the French established more or less permanent plantations, and as Lord Baltimore eventually abandoned his settlements owing to the continual harassment of his settlers by the shoremen, vague and conflicting claims to the whole island arose and these were not satisfactorily settled until the Treaty of Utrecht (1713) finally put the quietus on French territorial ambitions. It will thus be understood that as a "permanent" colonization scheme, the Guy expedition was not a success; but as an incident in the history of the Colony, it was perhaps worthy of special commemoration with this series of stamps.

The 1c shows a portrait of King James I who granted the charter to Guy, while on the 2c is a shield-shaped coat-of-arms with an inscription below reading "Arms of the London & Bristol Company for Colonising Newfoundland". This is described by Mr. George Milne in the Stamp Lover for November, 1919, as follows:—

"Description:—Gules, a cross argent, in the first and fourth quarters a lion passant guardant regally crowned or; in the second and third quarters a unicorn passant argent, armed, maned and unguled of the third, and gorged with a crown, thereto a chain affixed passing between the forelegs and reflected over the back, also or.

Crest:—On a wreath of the colors an elk trippant proper.

Explanation:—A silver cross on a red shield, in the first and fourth quarters a gold lion, walking, three paws on the ground, the dexter forepaw being elevated, looking out from the shield, the tail displayed over the back and a gold crown on the head. In the second and third quarters a silver unicorn (fabulous animal) walking, three hoofs on the ground, the dexter foreleg being raised, the animal looking forward, the tail displayed over the back and with the "teeth," "mane" and "hoofs" in gold,—the term "of the third" refers to the third mentioned "tincture" or "metal" in the heraldic description, in this instance it is "or" (gold)—and a gild crown round the neck of the unicorn to which is attached a gold chain, passing between the forelegs and reflected over the back of the animal.

Crest Explanation:—On a wreath of the colors, i. e., red and silver, an elk in easy motion and in natural coloring."

They are not the Arms of the London & Bristol Company, as stated on the stamps, for Mr. Milne tells us that they were granted to the Colony of Newfoundland by Borough Garter on January 1st, 1637. The artist responsible for the design not only managed to get his facts mixed but antedated the conception of the Arms by a small matter of 27 years!

On the 3c is a portrait of John Guy, Alderman and merchant of the city of Bristol, who obtained the charter from King James and was the moving spirit in founding the Company which financed the expedition. On the 4c is a view of the gallant Endeavor—the ship sent out by Guy—while on the 5c is a view of Cupids.

On the 6c is a portrait of Sir Francis Bacon, who was instrumental in obtaining the charter for Guy through his influence at court. This is inscribed "Lord Bacon" by the artist, whose knowledge of history must have been lamentably weak. Sir Francis never possessed such a title, for when he was raised to the peerage some years later (1618), he took the title of Lord Verulam.

The 8c shows a view of Mosquito, the 9c shows a logging camp near Indian Lake, and on the 10c is shown a view of the extensive paper mills established at Grand Falls some few years previous to the issue of this series of stamps.

The two highest values of the series, the 12c and 15c, show portraits of King Edward VII and King George V respectively.

The 4c, 5c, 8c, 9c and 10c values are oblong rectangles in shape, while the other denominations are upright rectangles.

All values were printed by lithography by Messrs. Whitehead, Morris and Co., Ltd., of London, on ordinary wove unwatermarked paper. The stamps were printed in sheets of two hundred divided into two panes of one hundred each (arranged in ten rows of ten stamps each). These panes were separated by a wide margin which was afterwards cut down the centre so that the sheets as sold to the public consisted of only one hundred stamps.

As is not unusual with stamps produced by this process innumerable minor varieties, such as uncolored flaws, dots, dashes and mis-shaped letters and numerals are found. In fact, so numerous are these in some denominations—the 1c and 3c particularly—that it would not be a difficult matter to reconstruct sheets. A transfer flaw on the 1c is so pronounced that the variety has attained catalogue rank. This transfer had a crease extending from under the 0 of 1610 almost to the oval containing the portrait which obliterated the lower arm of the "E", so that the name of the Colony is spelled "NFWFOUNDLAND". This variety occurred on the first stamp in the fifth row of the right-hand pane.

There were two printings of the 6c value, the first of which was from a stone made up from a defective transfer having the letter "Z" of "COLONIZATION" reversed. In later printings this was corrected.

The stamps were, normally, perforated 12 by a single line machine, but the 1c, 2c and 5c are also found perf. 12x14, the 1c perf. 12x11, and 11½x11, and the 2c perf. 12x11½.

AN ENTIRE PAGE OF 20th CENTURY BARGAINS

Here is an offering of fine sets and single stamps that you will probably never see duplicated. They represent months of careful combing of the European markets, under low exchange rates which have since risen considerably. Many items are offered considerably cheaper than previous quotations. They reflect the VERY BOTTOM. Exchange rates are rising and Foreign Dealers, pinched for funds, have sacrificed their holdings. Hereafter the natural trend of prices will be upward. Take advantage this opportunity, order at once all you can, then file this page for future use. So long as my stock lasts, I will continue to sell at these bargain prices.

Don't just skip over this ad, look up each item carefully. Compare my price with the Catalogue price. If that process doesn't result in the largest order your pocket ook can afford, you simply don't know value.

APPROVALS

Those who receive my approval selections of new issues and 20th Century sets find them hard to beat. Clean, desirable stamps, at very reasonable prices, they make you want to "blow yourself".

I have room for a limited number of new approval accounts. I require first class references, and the desire and ability on your part to buy a few dollars' worth from each selection—enough to make it pay both of us for our time and trouble.

Thousands of exceptional bargains in 20th Century stamps are on hand in quantities too small to advertise. Many very scarce items are among them. These are offered my special bargain lists or through my Approval Department. If you fail to keep in touch with me, your collection is the main sufferer.

MAXWELL KRAUSE, 20TH CENTURY BARGAIN MAKER LEBANON, PA.

Stamp Dealing Is A Profitable Investment

Besides being lucrative, it is an interesting, educational and beneficial hobby whereby the energetic, wide-awake collector can build up his collection by selling duplicates to other collectors.

Our EMCO stocks were formed for this purpose and has provided the "Stepping Stones to Success" in many cases. They contain a wide variety, complete supplies, and offer a live collector a golden opportunity at a comparatively small cost.

FRANKLIN ON THE POSTAGE STAMP

Albert H. Hall, well known in the ranks of Boston philatelists, writes the following communication to the Transcript of that city:—

"The New York Sun is nowhere near right in saying that 'besides a few statues and a place in the Hall of Fame, Benjamin Franklin has never been honored by the country.'

It would seem as if the man who wrote those words had never used a postage stamp, or, using it, had not known the portrait on it to be Franklin's.

For seventy-three years the country has honored Franklin continuously by printing his portrait on postage stamps, and most of the time on the stamp of lowest value and in constant daily use

The first postage stamps ever issued by the United States appeared in 1847. There [illegible] values, five cents and [illegible]en cents [illegible] e cents bore the portrait [illegible] Why? Perhaps because he was the first postmaster general of the American colonies, under George III.

These were used until 1851, when postage rates were decreased, and the one cent stamp bore the portrait of Franklin. These were used until 1861, when the outbreak of the Civil War caused new designs to be made but the one cent still showed Franklin. These were used until 1869, when a postmaster general thought that smaller stamps could be moistened more quickly, but still Franklin held the place on the one cent. These were used one year, and in 1870 the stamps were made large again, with Franklin still on the one cent. These were used until 1890, when again smaller stamps were made, still with Franklin on the one cent. With the addition in 1894 of triangular ornaments in the corners, to show that they were made no longer by private concerns, but by a Government bureau; with a change of color in 1898, to conform to International Postal Union rules, these were used until 1902, when the design was changed, but Franklin was still on the one cent. These were used until 1908, when the design was changed again—Franklin still on the one cent. These were used until 1912, when the portrait of Franklin was removed from the one cent and placed upon the 8, 9, 10, 12 (later on a 13), 15, 20, 30, 50 cent and $1, and in 1918 on the $2 and $5.

These are now in use, and most, if not all, can be had at any time at the New York City Post Office. For $9.67 the editor of the Sun may buy a set of this current issue and stick them on a card and stand it on his desk as a constant reminder of a peculiar honor rendered by our country to Franklin."

METERED MAIL.

We have received from W. P. Col- man two interesting specimens of cov- ers stamped and postmarked by a post- age meter "Stamford, Conn." Upon one of the covers is to be found this inscription under the heading: "First Class Mail":—

"The acceptance of this envelope by the post office, stamped and postmarked by a postage meter, marks an epoch in the history of the Post Office Depart- ment. It is one of the first 5000 pre- sented for mailing under the new regu- lations extending the permit privilege to first class mail on a meter basis.

The stamp is not only distinctive but may be regarded as a souvenir of the inauguration of the meter system as an adjunct to the postal service."

One of the envelopes has a 2c post- age rate and the other a 10c, the color of the former being carmine and the lat- ter, yellow. It will be noted that the col- ors follow the colors of the stamps of these denominations. The two markings are uniform outside of the values, which are placed in large figures in the middle of a rectangle of the same form of a postage stamp. The inscription in three lines reads:—"U. S. POSTAGE—PAID 2 CENTS—P. 1". The usual wavy lines accompany and at the extreme left may be found the inscription "M.1" repre- senting presumably the meter number. The postmark is made up of two circles with inscription giving city and state and date. Stamford, Conn., claims the honor of being the first to issue metered mail and the date of the postmark is 7 P. M. Jan. 27. 1921.

Chas. C. Keller of Detroit, Mich., an- swers our question as to the earliest date of permit used on first class mail by stating that he has a cover bearing date of Sept. 20, 1920, issued by the Ann Arbor, Mich., P. O. under Permit No. 1, rate 2c. There is, however, no certainty that this permit was used in connection with a meter basis.

The next discontinuance of subscrip- tions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1567 to 1571 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinu- ance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must under- stand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

A BOOMING INDUSTRY.

(Under the above caption the Detroit News prints the following editorial. It is of more than ordinary interest to the philatelist.—W. O. W.)

However other industries may have lost the impetus given them by the war, there is one industry in which we shall not soon return to "normalcy". For the kind of peace with which they are threatening each other in Europe seems only to promote this industry.

When recently 25 postage stamps commemorating the British occupation of Bagdad were sold for $1,185 at the present rate of exchange, it implies that business is booming in the philatelic or stamp collecting industry; but it does not mean that the peak has been reached. There are possibilities in this thing as yet unheard of. Week by week we are still setting up a little republic here, and a little principality there, each with an appropriate stamp of its own. Yesterday the Poles reached Umpstgoff; out comes an issue of stamps. Today the Czecho-Slovaks squat in Nigrovitch; another batch of stamps. Next week a hitherto unheard of regency somewhere in Europe may issue a couple of hundred of these philatelic momentos, as has the group which has declared the independence of Alsace-Lorraine from the safe seclusion of a place far away. A conservative estimate would place the number of different kinds of new stamps in Europe today at several thousand.

Assuredly there are enough crowned and uncrowned heads in Europe to adorn these stamps; and of significant events which they may commemorate there is no dearth. A black and blue reproduction of a French president falling out of a sleeping-car window would be a rare addition to any collection of stamps. And of profiles and full-face possibilities Europe has an abundance. A likeness of Gabriel d'Annunzio, gayly caparisoned, with flowing tie and helmet, as befits the poet-soldier, ought to bring $1,000 any day in the week. Showing him with pen in one hand and sword in the other, such a stamp would serve to remind future generations that in our day we had revised our time-honored belief in the power of the pen, for the stamp might bear the legend now popular in Europe and elsewhere—"The pen is mightier than the sword—but hang on to the sword." The picture of some other hero with a field marshal's baton, seated at a baby grand, would make an attractive stamp.

In addition to a mere money value, these things would in time acquire a high educational value, as throwing light on conditions which we do not even now understand. By all means, let us encourage the stamp making industry in Europe.

SYRACUSE EXHIBITION.

Odd cancellations add to the value of the A. A. Leve collection of postage stamps, which has been placed in the display cases on the second floor of the Syracuse Public Library. The collection includes United States postage stamps of nearly every issue, many of which were used on letters at the time when each postmaster was allowed to make up his own cancellation mark from any design which occurred to him.

Some old stamps show the figure of a kicking mule, which was used by a postmaster in the State of Washington. Another exhibit consists of two ducks. Masonic emblems were also frequently used to cancel stamps.

Mr. Leve is also a collector of rare checks and has a display case filled with them. One check was drawn by Ralph Waldo Emerson in favor of his daughter and bears his signature.

Mr. Leve's stamps are the last in a series of library exhibits made by members of the Syracuse Stamp Club. It will remain in the library one week, when it will be replaced by an exhibition of art designs from which carpet, rug and wall paper patterns are made. —(Newspaper clipping.)

AERIAL MAIL INFORMATION.

By PERCY MCGRAW MANN.

From the Chugai (Tokyo, Japan) comes the following evidence that the Orient is to the front in the ever-forward march of progress.

"Since the end of the past year (1919), the question has been pending whether the mail service by air in our country should not be conducted by the Department of Communications. Very recently the Department has arrived at the conclusion that the work must certainly be undertaken by it in the future. It has started close inquiries at its Mail Section about the condition of our aviation world; the number and training of civil airmen, aeroplane and aero-motor factories and their efficiency, landing stations, routes by air and the like. Mr. Odabe, the commissioner sent to Europe and America, is diligently investigating actual conditions in those countries. His return being expected by the end of the year (1920), it is intended that all domestic inquiries be finished before that time. After his return the Department will hold a conference of representatives of the Army and Navy, the Imperial Aviation Society and all other bodies concerned in the matter, for the purpose of discussing all matters connected with the carrying out of the air mail service and so bringing the matter to concrete form. As to routes, the trunk line between Tokyo and Osaka was pioneered by the Imperial Aviation Society in the race held last autumn (1919). Explorations in the north and northeast of the mainland are also to be intrusted to the I. A. S. In case the Department undertakes the service, the routes thus surveyed will be established, and unique design air mail stamps and special air postmarks will be used for various routes."

"New German Monoplane to Attempt Atlantic Flight."

Under this caption there recently appeared in the London Times the statement that "The Zeppelin Company is about to begin tests in Germany with a new type tractor monoplane of which only the most meagre details have reached the outer world. It is built throughout of duraluminum, fitted with four engines, and has a capacity for twenty passengers The new plane has a wing span of 90 to 100 feet, and a chord of 10 to 12 feet. In the wings, which are hollow, are located four Mayback 260 H. P. engines. The wings are so constructed that, while the plane is in flight, a mechanic may crawl through them and attend to the engine. There are only two struts in the plane, and these extend laterally from the undercarriage to the under-side of the wings."

If this plane is half as efficient as some of the former models seen by our officers in Germany, it may be said confidently that little doubt exists among aviators that the new plane would be able successfully to fly across the Atlantic with its load of twenty passengers, and large pouches of air mail with special celebration postage stamps.

Aerial passenger and express liners, carrying twenty passengers and 2,000 pounds of mail or express matter, flying from Honolulu to San Francisco in thirty-six hours, is the type of service which may be inaugurated between Hawaii and the mainland in the fall of 1921, if capacity traffic can be guaranteed locally for the air liners.

J. M. Servantie, veteran of the French aviation service, who was in Honolulu about a year ago, when he urged establishment of an inter-island air service, has made the suggestion. He is now managing director of the United States Aerial Express Company, which is operating six planes between Detroit, Toronto, Buffalo, Cleveland, Chicago and Toledo, with eighteen more liners soon to be placed in the same service. With this enterprise successfully established, Servantie has again turned his attention to Hawaii and proposes to organize a corporation to operate inter-island and Hawaii-San Francisco services.

Newspaper dispatches from Shanghai tell that General Ting Kinn, Director of the Department of Aeronautics of the Chinese Government, has outlined a big program of development in aeronautics for China.

During this year it is expected aerial mail routes will be established between

H. F. COLMAN SECOND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Shanghai and Peking and between Peking and Urga, and the machines that will supply this service will carry both freight and passengers.

The Government of China last year contracted for the purchase of 100 aeroplanes from a British concern and forty of these have been received. Others will be delivered through the summer. General Ting said a large number of Chinese fliers are being trained at Peking and other Chinese airmen who have been receiving training abroad will enter the service.

A regular air mail service was instituted between Berlin and Breslau during the Breslau Autumn Fair Week, the distance between the two cities being covered in 2½ hours. The Fair closed on September 11, but the service is likely to be maintained with a view to linking up with the projected Paris-Strassbourg-Prague-Warsaw air line. Another interesting development is contemplated in connection with the Berlin-Koenigsberg air service, continues the Aerial Age Weekly, which is intended to extend to Reval and Helsingfors, possibly with an eye to Petrograd in the near future. The German postal authorities are also in communication with the Swiss Government with a view to the early establishment of a daily air mail between Frankfort-on-the-Main and Basle. Air mails have been running daily between Berlin, Bremen and Wangeroog, and no accident has occurred.

The leading aviation companies of Germany, Austria and Denmark are reported as combining, under the direction of The North German Lloyd Co. They own a number of commercial-passenger aeroplanes, with a capacity of from four to eight passengers, and they are planning services between Berlin and Vienna and between Vienna and Milan.

Plans for trans-atlantic air service requiring three planes carrying twenty-four tons of passengers, mails and light freight, and taking fifty to sixty hours to cross the ocean, were described recently by the chief engineer of the Vickers Company.

The Scientific American for Jan. 2, 1921, publishes the following:

Announcement is made that the airplane mail and passenger service which has been operating daily between the Netherlands and Great Britain since May, 1920, has been extended so as to include a daily service to Denmark and Sweden by way of Germany. Under the new arrangement, which went into effect Sept. 15, passengers and mails can leave London either by way of Croydon at 10 A. M., or by way of Cricklewood, at 4 P. M., and reach Amsterdam that evening. From Amsterdam the journey is continued at 8.50 A. M., the next day, with stops at Bremen at 11.30 A. M., Hamburg at 1 P. M., and at Copenhagen at 3.30 P. M. A branch or supplementary service leaves Bremen in time to reach Berlin at 3.30 P.M. By this service the trip from London to Copenhagen is advertised to be made in 24 hours, as compared with 48 hours by steamer or rail and steamer. Owing to the early approach of winter in this latitude it is regarded as impracticable to attempt to make the trip in one day at the present time, but it is planned to accelerate the service next spring.

The entire service for passengers and mail between points in the Netherlands and London and elsewhere has been more or less experimental during the whole of the past season. The plans of the company operating the machines include the organization of services all over this part of Europe, and the service so far given has been more or less in the nature of an attempt to find out what routes are commercially and otherwise practicable. The service between the Netherlands and England has been carried on without a single interruption and with increasing success. The service from Holland to Great Britain carries more passengers than freight; whereas. that from England to Holland carries more freight than passengers. The mail service to Great Britain averages about 400 letters per day, letters for the service simply being marked for the air post and double postage paid.

There is a review of the air mail services in The Literary Digest for January 29, 1921, to which readers of this article are referred, because the text is too lengthy to reproduce here. Among other interesting information, the New York Times is quoted as stating that "China has established a permanent aerial mail service between Peking and Tien-Tsin." And a map of the Air Mail routes in Operation October, 1920, is also shown.

Joseph A. Steinmetz is in receipt of a dispatch from army headquarters at Cristobal, Canal Zone, under date of Jan. 18, 1921, stating that the Canal Zone-Costa Rican flight has been indefinitely postponed by order from Washington.

Ever since the first trip Key West, Florida—Havana, Cuba, Nov. 1, 1920, there have been rumors of aerial mail service from Havana to Key West, but up to the present writing there has been no official carriage of the mails from Cuba to the United States.

Unofficially, however, mail was carried on Nov 4, 1920, from Havana to Key West, due to the kindness of the captain of the seaplane making the trip that day. A correspondent in Havana requested the Havana P. O. to dispatch mail by air and prepared some covers for the flight, franking the envelopes with full first class postage and the 10c special delivery stamps, which, by the way, portray a monoplane in flight. The P. O. refused with the statement that they had no authority for dispatch of mails in that manner. The correspondent thereupon approached the captain of the seaplane, who stated that he would oblige for the occasion. The covers were taken to the P. O. and request was made that they be cancelled. The P. O. clerk stated that if he cancelled the stamps the letters would have to go forward in the usual manner. As this did not suit the purposes of the correspondent, the air mail was dispatched uncancelled as far as the stamps were concerned, but a little coaxing persuaded the P. O. clerk to put his date stamp on the envelopes, beside the stamps. This reads "SUCURSAL No. 1—Habana. NOV. 3—1920" in two lines within a rectangular frame. The seaplane captain did not carry them until the following day, however, but on the morning of Nov. 4, the first air mail from Havana to Key West, though only semi-official, was transported and was then dispatched from Key West and received the regular Key West "Nov. 4 130 PM" cancellation.

The writer acknowledges his indebtedness to Joseph A. Steinmetz, president of the Aero Club of Pennsylvania, for most of the information given above.

AUTHENTIC INFORMATION WANTED.

By L. H. BRIGHAM.

(We survived the shock that Mr. Brigham's mss. gave us and after due consideration decided to pass his query on to our readers. In a multitude of minds there is wisdom and if the response comes on the instalment plan or in a fragmentary manner we shall gladly welcome it. What can you offer?—W. O. W.)

Will you be kind enough to advise the writer where the most authentic information on the following can be obtained? Are there or have there been new stamp issuing Republics, States, Districts, etc., in Europe and Asia Minor other than the following, which may have come into existence since the beginning of the war in 1914?

Armenia	Lichtenstein
Azerbaijan	Lithuania
Batum	Mesopotamia
Cicilia	Palestine
Czeko-Slovakia	Poland
Esthonia	Syria
Hedjaz	Ukrainia
Jugo-Slavia	West Russia
Latvia	Western Silesia
Libia	Western Ukrainia

How many of these, since their birth, have either had their name changed, become extinct, or are now a part of another country?

What is or was the exact location of each? Where can accurate, medium size, loose leaf maps showing all these changes in Neurope and Asia Minor be obtained? What was each one of these countries or districts a part of previous to its separation and renaming? What is the present form of Government of each? What is the name and title or rank of the chief administrator of affairs of each? Where were or are the stamps of these various countries printed? What issues so far of each, although legitimately authorized, can be definitely classed as strictly speculative or almost entirely so?

All of this seems to be a big mouthful for one to bite off at once, but when we stop to consider how small is the actual knowledge which we have of these countries as a whole philatelically, is there not some good Samaritan who has perhaps made an unusually extensive and comprehensive study either of the countries as a whole or at least one or two of the largest individually, who can come forward and illuminate the darkness of our ignorance?

It would seem that by now the situation in Neurope and Asia Minor is of a sufficiently settled state to allow one to fairly accurately judge as to exactly what stamp issuing domains will eventually survive all the strife and turmoil and be recorded on the new maps as really permanent fixtures.

What immense value real authentic information on these countries would be to the collector today. Statements at present disagree so; coming from individuals even who have but recently been right on the ground themselves. Even the standard magazines are loath to tackle the subject with any degree of assurance as to the information with which they are supplied being actual facts.

The world manipulates its changes so rapidly nowadays that without we are in on the ground floor while the actual facts are in transition, all proofs are soon lost to sight and nothing is left to supply us with the information which we seek but tattered remnants of doubtful authenticity, and these mostly emanating from questionable sources.

Another subject which the collectors as a whole are totally ignorant on is "What does the translation into English mean of the multitude of sur-charges and over-prints which a large portion of these stamps carry, and what necessitated the sur-charge and over-printing of the stamps in the beginning?"

If the questions brought out in this letter could be discussed with some degree of certainty as to the truth of the statements contained therein through the columns of MEKEEL'S, it would certainly be a splendid work, and in the estimation of the writer, much more valuable at the present time than perhaps some of the present day articles on the stamps of this and that country which have been running in the WEEKLY now for quite some time and about which there is not so much mystery as to their origin, purpose, use, etc.

No doubt some day we shall find listed among the famous MEKEEL hand books, works which will adequately take care of these subjects, but in the meantime let us have what little authentic information that can be obtained by deriving same from whatever source possible.

A NUT TO CRACK.

Miss Amy L. Swift propounds a query that we think best to turn over to our readers. We quote from her letter:—

Here is a nut for you people to crack. The Australian Commonwealth 1½d in dark brown (chocolate) on Single Crown and A paper was in use many months before the multiple wmk came in and the red brown shade comes on that paper, too. I have quantities of both, yet neither are listed in Scott's except with the multiple wmk. I have plenty of both on this last paper also. Again, the chocolate is not a sub-variety of the red brown, nor even vice versa; the two are separate issues as distinct as if one was blue and one black. Why not list and number them properly?

ROYAL HONOUR FOR MR. D. FIELD.

We heartily congratulate that distinguished member of the stamp trade, Mr. D. Field, on a well merited honour just bestowed on him by King George. In recognition of his indefatigable labours, extending throughout a number of years, on behalf of hospitals in this country, Mr. Field has received from His Majesty the Order of Mercy. Unfortunately he was not well enough to attend at St. James' Palace to receive the Order personally, and it was therefore sent on to him. Like all the philatelic rarities that he goes in for, we understand this token of Royal appreciation is a choice item. We know that it is thoroughly well deserved, and that Mr. Field's thousands of philatelic admirers will join us in our felicitations.—Stamp Collecting.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, BALLSTON LAKE, N. Y.

By Earl E. Byrd.

Prices realized at two recent auction sales of U. S. and foreign stamps must have afforded considerable consolation to many collectors who have money invested in their albums. The prices of food, of clothes, of government bonds, of practically everything marketable have shrunk until the financial world hardly knows where it is at, but with apparently everything against them, exchange shot to pieces, factories closed in every direction, every line of business suffering, the good old postage stamps set new price records both in London and Berlin. Both sales were held during December, when business the world over was at its lowest ebb. In London, Messrs. Plumridge disposed of the collection of the late W. Patterson of Montreal, while in Berlin an amazing accumulation, said to have been contributed by dealers and collectors, was sold.

Berlin had the better of the argument in one way. The number of good things offered was so great it made possible the publication of the finest auction catalog probably ever published for any sale of any sort. Not only was it profusely illustrated on every page, but illustrated supplements showed half tones of almost every stamp offered from certain highly specialized countries. The specialist in search of plate or cancellation varieties had only to put his glass on the half tones to know exactly what he was bidding on, always excepting, of course, skillful repairs. The distribution of this mammoth catalog over the world focused on the Berlin auction more attention than any ordinary stamp sale could have secured, and as a consequence developed competition from the greatest possible number of active collectors.

Neither sale offered anything really spectacular in early U. S. stamps. There were no strips or blocks of 5c New York's or 10c '47's; not even a pair of either, unless I overlooked them. But both sales had numerous good copies of the standard varieties and the prices realized make useful comparative data. Practically not one good, sound stamp issued prior to 1861 brought less than Scott's catalog price, while for anything out of the ordinary in cancellation or condition, the figures are surprising.

Never, I think, was the difference in value between "very fine" and "superb" or "perfection" more clearly indicated. If good stamps brought full catalog, anything really fine, especially if the cancellation was out of the ordinary, brought many times catalog.

New Yorks.

It was more or less surprising to find the 3c New York Carriers appreciated in Europe Poor copies brought a small fraction of catalog, some 3 to 4 dollars; one good but creased found $14 worth of favor, while nice copies on either the blue or green glazed paper brought $19.75, $22.00 and $28.00, according to condition.

The 5c New York's always have been popular abroad, so it was not surprising to find them appreciated. In London, an unused copy, part o. g., brought over $50; a not attractive copy without gum brought $34 in Berlin; used copies mostly pen-cancelled, sold for $24 to $27 each.

Take our old friend the 5c '47: In London, average copies brought about $5 each (figuring the pound Sterling at $3.75); in Berlin, probably because of more bidders, the average price was higher, the run for nice copies being $5.30, $5.60, $8.00. (And that figures the Mark at only 1.5c, a lower figure than some buyers paid for their exchange.) A nice copy cancelled "5" in red brought in Berlin $24.75; a pair with red town cancellation cost the present owner $28.50. In London, a fairly nice pair, slightly cut into, brought only $16.00! While a really good pair, though nothing wonderful, realized $20.50.

The 10c '47 proved its world-wide popularity at both sales. London put up nine average copies of which the cheapest one, suffering from the minor drawbacks of having been broken in two and slightly cut into, fetched $18.00. The apparently sound copies averaged over $20 each, and a couple of really fine ones about $25 each. Berlin put up a not brilliant unused copy which sold for about $61.00. A beautiful used copy with pane margin made the modest figure of $49.00, while another fine copy cancelled with a red "10" nicked the bank account of the buyer something like $63.00.

Type varieties of the 1c '51 do not seem more clearly understood by foreign cataloguers but so far as may be judged from the illustrations, copies of type IIIa brought about $100 each, while types II and IV, imperf. in nice condition, brought between four and five dollars each.

Condition counted heavily in the prices realized for copies of the 5c of 1851 (?). Nice copies, close perhaps on one side or another but generally described as fine, sold in both sales for $22 to $26.00, but a truly fine copy in London brought about $30, a beauty on piece of cover in the Berlin sale sold for 2400 Marks, or net about $42, and an irreproachable copy on an equally fine cover rang the bell for M.5500, or probably a shade over $90!

Fine copies of the 10c green imperf. brought $5 each at both sales, while a strip, close both top and bottom, in Berlin cost someone more than $25.00. Perfection copies of the 12c black are so scarce little wonder that neither sale offered a really irreproachable specimen with good margins and light cancellation. The nice copies that were offered, all touched one way or another, brought $3.50 to $6.50 each, and a pair slightly clipped on one corner, $16. Another pair, on cover, touched at top and or corner, $30.

Difficulties of classification make est mates of the prices paid for 1c perf rated stamps of 1857 difficult to judg but $7 seems quite enough for a strip 3 type V used! That they were ver fine and probably from one of the scar plates goes without saying. Eleve shades of the 5c 1857 sold well, a fir though not wonderful brick-red doin better than $20, while other shade brought $10.50, $11.50, $12.50. The ord nary run in the brown shade, whe perforations cut the designs, sold fo ⅓ to ½ these figures. Pairs and strip of the 10c 1857 sold very well, $10 bein average for good strips of either typ But with covers and superb piece things were different. A very fine bloc of 5 of the 10c type II sold for M.300 or about $50, and all good covers showe gains on catalog figures.

Two covers bearing strips of three the 5c '57 emphasized the esteem i which condition is held. Superficial they were about equal, except that few pers had been touched on o stamp of one of the strips. The perfe tion piece sold for $39.00, and th slightly imperfect one for $19.00.

One could easily fill the Weekly wit an exhaustive analysis of the results these sales, but the only conclusio reached would be the one already den onstrated, that really fine U. S. or oth early stamps are one of the safest i vestments the world offers. They ha an advantage over other art object such as books, pictures, ceramics, i that they are easily stored or tran ported, and the market usually is abo par.

STAMPS OF SARAWAK.

(Informal address before the Manchester Philatelic Society, Manchester, Eng., by Major R. H. D. Lockhart.)

Major R. H. D. Lockhart gave a display of his collection of the stamps of Sarawak, and, almost ignoring his written notes, told in an easy conversational manner which could only have been accomplished by having the closest intimacy with the subject in hand, the principal facts, firstly about their method of production and secondly the "make-up" of the sheets.

He stated that there were two plates for each value of the first three issues, i. e., 3 cents of 1869, 3 cents of 1871, and all values of 1875.

The first issue, 3 cents of 1869, was lithographed in sheets of 200, made up of two panes of 100 (10 rows of 10). Many flaws were duplicated on the panes, notably the malformed "S" in cents on No. 53, and a dot between the letters "A" and "W" of Sarawak on No. 59, this being shown on the illustration of the type in Gibbons' Catalogue. Quite 60 per cent. of the stamps differ in minor flaws. No. 22 has a large brown dot between the letters "R" and "E" in the left pane, and on No. 44 there are many flaws in the word cents on the left pane only. These flaws Major Lockhart proved to be constant by means of his complete panes and large blocks, and as it had been questioned previously as to whether there were two printings or one printing of two panes he gave his opinion that the latter was the correct solution, by reason of the stamp being a posthumous one (issued after the decease of Sir James Brooke, whose head appears on the stamp) and only lasting two years and, further, that as the country was so remote, very few were used and the later issues were undoubtedly printed in sheets of 200. The stamps were lithographed by Messrs. Maclure and Macdonald, perforated 11 by two machines, and without watermark. There were two distinct perforations, both gauging 11, viz., large and small holes, and another rough perforation gauging 11 with small holes. He invited from the meeting an expression of opinion as regards these perforations, and from the number of examples shown in large blocks and otherwise. In the discussion which followed, the President gave his opinion that two single-line machines had been used, one with large and the other with small holes, and these were often used in conjunction, one for the vertical perforations and vice-versa, compounds of the product of these two machines being common.

The rough small holes might be the result of blunt knives or coming from the lower layers of the sheets if they were perforated several at a time; the slight variation in the gauge was possibly due, in Mr. Duerst's opinion, to the wear of the needles.

An engraved variety is known, but its status is doubtful, possibly they were engraved proofs from the original die, sent out to the Sarawak Government and used either erroneously or by favour of the local post office officials.

In the monograph on these stamps recently published by Major Lockhart, each of the 100 stamps forming the panes, right and left, is separately described, and in 18 cases only is it recorded that there are "no flaws."

Upon the death of Rajah Sir James Brooke, in June, 1868, he was succeeded by his nephew, Mr. Charles Johnson, taking the name Charles Johnson Brooke, and afterwards receiving the honour of knighthood. The stamp bearing the portrait of the new Rajah did not appear until 1871 and was of the same value, 3 cents. It was printed in sheets of four panes of 100 stamps each, which, like the previous issue, can all be plated. Many flaws are common to all the four panes such as the long-tailed R on No. 90. Several large flaws appear on panes 1 and 2 only, such as No. 17, narrow "A", and No. 97, a stop between the words of value, but they are corrected on 3 and 4.

Engraved copies are also known of this stamp. The varieties on the 100 stamps of each pane are: The paper bears a watermark L.N.L. in double-lined capitals, and a block of six stamps, three rows of two, is requisite to show it fully.

In the case of the 1875 issue of 2, 4, 6, 8, and 12 cents, which were all constructed from the 1871 die by alteration of the value tablets, the lithographic stone was prepared by the transfer of a strip of five stamps, repeated twenty times to form the printing stone, possibly the two panes were placed side by side upon the stone and the stamps printed in sheets of 200 in two panes (right and left) of 100 each. These five primary types were repeated in sequence throughout both panes, but certain errors occurred: in the 4c there were two errors on the left pane, namely 99 and 100, which are types "A" and "B," instead of "D" and "E." In the 12 cents there were five such errors, two on the left pane and three on the right; these occurred respectively in units numbered 99 and 100 on the left, being types "A" and "B," instead of "D" and "E," and on units 4, 5, and 30 on the right pane, being types "A" and "C," instead of "D" and "E" respectively.

The 3 cents of 1871, overprinted TWO CENTS in tall thin sans-serif capitals, about 3 mm. high is now generally considered a bogus variety; one copy used is in the Tapling Collection. In 1877 the Straits Settlements joined the Postal Union, automatically cancelling the existing agreement with Sarawak and, to suit the altered rates, Sarawak issued a new set of stamps, 10 values, from 1 to 25c, printed by Messrs. De la Rue on paper without watermark. perf. 14. The stamps and value tablets were separately printed in different colours in sheets of 60, 10 rows of 6.

From 1889 to 1892 a shortage of 2c and 5c stamps gave rise to a crop of provisionals, and in 1892 the value of the 3 cents was barred out by a line and overprinted ONE CENT in two operations.

The issue of 1895 was the result of a clerical error, the stamps being ordered from Messrs. Perkins Bacon & Co. (who printed the currency notes for Sarawak), instead of Messrs. De la Rue and Co. The perforation of the 2 cents was 12½, all the other values 12 by a single-lined machine. A variety of the 2c deserves mention: This is a colour in green, perforated 12½, often misnamed an "error of colour," but this is hardly probable as used copies are unknown. Proofs and colour trials have been found surcharged with a new value in pence, but they are explained by the fact that shortly after printing the Sarawak stamps, the printers, Messrs. Perkins Bacon, were producing the British South African stamps, with figures in each corner and pence at the bottom. These were to be printed on sheets of about the same size as the Sarawak stamps, and, in order to test the stretch of the paper with a view to the registration of the two colours, some spoilt sheets of Sarawak were taken and overprinted by a frame composed of several sets of figures and pence values by way of experiment, there being no intention of introducing pence values. In July, 1897, Sarawak joined the Postal Union and discontinued the use of the Straits Settlements stamps, thus creating a demand for higher valued stamps. Messrs. De la Rue were therefore commissioned to print stamps of 16, 32, 50 cents and 1 dollar from the head plate of 1888 issues; 2, 5, and 10 dollars were ordered, but not issued for postal usage; in 1898 these higher values were overprinted with the letter "R" and "Revenue Only" and a new printing of the 2 and 8 cents values took place.

In July, 1897, all the old lithographed stamps of 1871-75 and the provisionals of 1889-92 were demonetized, although the former could be bought unused or cancelled to order at the post office.

In 1899 Sarawak joined the Imperial Penny Postage Agreement, causing a greatly increased demand for the 2c stamp; overprinting was again resorted to, and Major Lockhart dissented from the views of a monograph on these stamps previously published, that odd scraps were overprinted, and pointed out that he could find no evidence at all of such being done. The overprints were applied in whole sheets and sheets divided in halves vertically, beyond this he was quite satisfied that no surcharging was done.

The varieties of pairs, one stamp having the surcharge and the other without, he pointed out, were not errors at all, but arose from the sheets which were surcharged having remained piled upon one another for years in the post office at Sarawak, the gum having come off the back of some of the sheets and become deposited on the face of the sheets of stamps immediately underneath, thereupon when some stamps had a great deal of gum on the face, it was the gum which received the surcharge and not the face of the stamp itself, consequently the surcharge came off when the gum was removed, but evidences of the impression could be detected, minute specks often showing on such stamps and even in the entire absence of specks an albino impression of the surcharge could be more or less distinctly seen. The much-exalted status attempted to be given by the writer of a monograph before referred to, some years ago, received a huge shock when Major Lockhart dealt with the engraved 3 cents of the 1869 and 1871 issues. He considered them (and in the opinion of the President, correctly) as simply die proofs, and as to the stamp of 1869, perforated after that date, probably in 1871 or still later, the fact that these engraved die proofs are perforated 12, whereas the 1869 lithographed stamps are all perf. 11, is strong evidence of this.

In the 1875 issue Major Lockhart invited the opinion of experts as to whether the 12 cents upon so-called laid paper was in reality laid paper. He showed an entire sheet, which, in parts, showed the lines most distinctly, in other parts faintly, and sometimes not at all. The texture of the paper, however, taken as a whole, by no means satisfied him that it was truly laid paper, and he inclined to think that the lines which were prominent on parts of it were produced after making, possibly by pressure on the blanket or some such means. He quoted the 3 cents as existing on similar paper "so-called laid."

All the De la Rue series in panes, blocks and singles, the engraved series of 1895, in the same manner. The proofs of the latter series, which appear with the value surcharge in pence would seem to be proofs or essay-trials for the stamps of British South Africa, however. Major Lockhart, perhaps very wisely, included them in his wonderful collection of Sarawak.

A vote of thanks to Major Lockhart was proposed by Mr. Higgins, seconded by Mr. Schill, supported by the President, who warmly congratulated him upon the excellence of the first paper he had given before the Society and the infinite amount of pains taken by him t make everything intelligible. He referre to the danger of handbooks written b those who do not possess collections o the country upon which they write.

Major Lockhart, in his reply, state that one of the handbooks referred t had so seriously led him astray that desire to correct the erroneous state ments contained in it led him to make s careful a detailed list and publish it fo the benefit of all who take interest i this country's stamps.—Phil. Jour. G Britain.

SURCHARGED U. S. POST CARDS.

March 5, we are promised a timel article by William W. Randall, of Ne York, on the surcharged provisional U.S post cards, that have been in use fo the past year. Mr. Randall tells us tha up to date about 40 different 1c on 2c re Jefferson cards have been made by th post offices in different parts of th country, from Portland, Me., to Lo Angeles, Cal., and from St. Paul, Minn to New Orleans, La. There is no gain saying the fact, that this economy pos card stunt of Uncle Sam, has been th means of stimulating a greater interes in U. S. post cards, than at any othe time. Collectors of U. S. cards will b in possession of all the facts, and see published list of all the local issuin post offices. Mr. Randall would like al the help he can, and he will be obliged to any collector, who will loan him thei 1c on 2c provisional cards, for examina tion, and comparison. Address him a Times Square P. O. Station, New York City. He is not a dealer in U. S. post cards, but an ardent collector for over 2 years, having almost a complete collec tion of some 250 varieties.

FROM "VAGABONDING DOWN THE ANDES."

By HARRY A. FRANCK.

(Reprinted from Harry A. Franck's "Vagabonding Down the Andes," by special permission from the Century Company, New York City, publishers, to the editor.)

"If my knowledge of Cartageno (Colombia) is meager, it is because I spent most of my days there mailing a note-book. The post office was the lower story of a compressed-mud building cornering on the plaza. When I first made my appearance, its heavy wooden doors, studded with immense spike-heads, were securely bolted.

'Is the correo closed today?' I asked a lounger-by.

'Si, senor, the mails only came in yesterday. But you can knock and perhaps——'

Knocking brought no result. An hour or more later I tried again, with no better luck. Early the next afternoon, however, I found my way in by an inner door of the patio, though the place was still officially closed.

The two rooms looked much like a garret of long standing, but by no means like a post office. Scattered everywhere, over floor and baked-mud window seats, on decrepit chairs and crippled tables, lay fat mail bags from the chief countries of the globe. The outgoing Colombian correspondence was already packed in aged grain sacks. Pieces of mail of all sizes lay tumbled and littered over the entire two rooms. Fully half of it was from the United States, particularly pamphlets and packages from patent medicine houses.

Four middle aged men, dressed in great dignity and in Cartago's most correct attire, with gloves and canes on chairs beside them, were seated around a table smoking cigarettes. I handed one of them the wrapped note-book. It passed slowly from hand to hand, each feeling it over, not so much out of curiosity, though that was by no means lacking, as absently-minded striving to bring his attention down to it.

Then all four fell to perusing a Postal Union rate-sheet, but found everything except the information needed. Finally one arose and referred the matter respectfully to a man, evidently a superior, seated in state at a corner table. The rate was found to be one Peso for each fifty grams. The official turned back and wandered for some time at random about the two rooms, fingering the parcel over and over and scratching his head in a vain effort to recall what he had set out to find.

He discovered it at last,—an ancient postal scales,—tried it, found it too small, tried another, and spent an ample five minutes juggling with the odds and ends that served as weights before he computed the balance. Then he drifted languidly back to his companions in inefficiency, opened his mouth to speak, closed it again, and rambled once more across the room to the scales. He had forgotten the weight! This time he took no chances, but announced the figures aloud and wrote them on the parcel—"320 grams".

Those who do not know the South American will have difficulty in believing that the division of this by fifty, without troubling for fractions, presented a real problem. All four began pencilling long lines of figures on as many sheets of paper. Several minutes passed before one of them ventured to show his results. The others compared, and amid a sage shaking of heads, one announced solemnly, 'Seven cents, senor', while the rest gazed dreamily at me out the tops of their eyes, as if wondering whether I should weather the shock of so great an expense.

'And registered, seventeen cents?' I added, for I did not care to have the parcel lie a month or two about the earth floor of Cartago's post office, or find its final resting place in the backyard. When the suggestion had penetrated, one of the quartet sat down to enter the grave transaction in a large ledger. I still needed a two peso stamp. The oldest of the four shuffled to the opposite side of the table, sat down, adjusted his legs, and slowly pulled out a drawer stuffed with every manner of rubbish,—tobacco, rolled cigarettes, half-empty phials of patent medicines, everything that may come by mail,—and finally dug up a battered pasteboard box that had once held No. 60 American thread.

From this he fished out a small sheet of two peso stamps, carefully tore one off at the perforation, first on one side, then on the other, put the sheet back in the thread box, the thread box back in the drawer, carefully closed the latter, and handed me the stamp. I tossed before him a silver ten cent piece. He opened the drawer again, clawed out of a far corner a wad of those ragged, germ-infested one cent bills indigenous to Colombia, laid out eight of them, counted them a second time, sat staring at them a long minute while his attention went on furlough, asked one of his colleagues to count them, which the latter did twice at the same vertiginous speed, and finally pushed them toward me with a hesitative movement, as if he were sure he was losing something in the transaction, but could not exactly figure out where.

Meanwhile he of the ledger rose from dotting the last 'i' of an entry that stretched in nicely shaded copy-book letters entirely across the double page, begged me to do him the honor to be seated, dipped the clumsy steel pen into the dusty ink-well, and, with a wealth of politeness, requested me to sign. When I had done so, he gazed long and dreamily at the signature, longer still at space in general, and finally put the parcel carefully away in a drawer with neither stamp nor mark of identification upon it.

'But', I protested, 'do you give no receipt for registered mail?'

Great excitement arose among the officials and the half dozen persons waiting ostensibly to buy a one cent stamp. A long conference ensued.

'It is, senor,' said the postmaster himself, rising and turning to me with regal courtesy, 'that no blank receipts have been sent from Bogota yet this year. However, if ——'

He called aside the custodian of the precious ledger and gave him long whispered instructions. The latter hunted up a sheet of fools-cap, stamped it carefully with the office seal, and wrote out with long legal flourishes—for penmanship is still an art in Colombia—a receipt for the parcel. This he tore off and carried across to the postmaster who, carefully preparing another pen, signed it with his full name, not forgetting the elaborate rubrica beneath it. Then he read it carefully over once more, seemed dissatisfied with something, and finally called the attention of the writer to the rough edge he had left in tearing off the paper, instructing him to lay it under a ruler and trim it with a sharp knife. The subordinate did so and at last delivered to me a memento I still have in my possession.

To one unacquainted with Latin-American ways the episode may seem over-drawn. I have told it, however, without exaggeration. From the moment I handed over the parcel until I emerged, receipt in hand, there had elapsed one hour and twenty minutes!" (pp. 66-69).

* * * * *

"My residence in Quito, Ecuador, was all but nipped in the bud by a mere matter of red tape. Again the shock was administered in the post office. When I presented the registry slips for the package of notes on which my proposed volume depended, they were all there, sure enough, with seals still unbroken. But as I opened them for customs inspection, the startled employees cried out in horrified chorus:

'Senor, it is against the law to send manuscript by mail in Ecuador!'

'These were mailed in the United States, where it is not against the law.'

'No importa! It is illegal for them to ride in the Ecuadorian mails. They will have to be confiscated by the government.'

'What can the government do with them?' I asked innocently.

'Burn them, of course,' replied the clerk.

Luckily the laws of Ecuador are not so inexorable and incorruptible as those of some other lands, but I passed a far from pleasant hour before I discovered that saving fact. Just where the line is drawn between manuscrito and mere letters, I was never able to learn. At any rate, the sender of the offending notes is still 'wanted', I believe, to serve a year in the penitentiary of Quito." (pp. 129, 130).

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Certified—We have received a letter from Mr. W. G. Jerrems, Jr., Kansas City, Mo., who says: "In the WEEKLY for January 22nd, you say: 'Ingermanland is a country about which we should like some genuine information,' etc. The Russian province of Ingrie or Ingermanland is situated between the Narva and the Finnish frontier. In 1920, the Bolsheviks who occupied that territory were chased out by Finnish troops and the occupants of the country established a provisional government with the capital at Kirjasalo." Mr. Jerrems sends for inspection a letter franked with four Ingerman stamps, postmarked Kirjasalo on the face, and Helsingfors on the reverse; and he says further that in Arthur Maury's Collectionneur de Timbres-Poste for June, 1920, there is an account of the stamps, credited to the postal service in Finland and Pohjois (Ingrie).

Fraud—A reader brings up the past in the following inquiry: "Can you give me any information regarding the Cosmopolitan Stamp Co., alias the Philadelphia Stamp Co., of Philadelphia, alias Giovanni Patroni of Camden, New Jersey, cited as "fraud" in an order of the U. S. post office department, dated October 22, 1875?" This is a bit before our time, and though we have a dim recollection of having seen the name Patroni associated with stamp counterfeiting in some way, we are not able to give any particulars.

Jews—In the Yale Review for January, 1921, there is an article by Israel Zangwell, "Zionism Today," from which Mr. Lowell J. Ragatz sends the paragraph: "En attendant that far-off consummation" (of a national home for the Jews in Palestine)—"and there is abundant opportunity for the same pious procrastination with which the orthodox mouthers of the Thirteenth Article of Maimonides await the Messiah—the Jews must content themselves with being allowed to sing their national hymn, the Hatikvah, behind closed doors. They must nourish their immemorial dream on that minimum of nationalism involved in Hebrew being in the more Jewish regions (of Palestine) one of the three official languages and appearing equally with Arabic and English on the stamps."

Incidental—A variety shop happened to get a stamp collection in stock, in a two volume album. The second-books with their stamps were espied by a casual caller who wanted them. "How much will you give for them?" asked the salesperson. "Four dollars," said the canny collector. "They are worth much more," answered the clerk. "I only want the books," said he. "Then, I'll take out the stamps," she rejoined. "That will spoil the books," he demurred. The scene closed when the custodian of the collection, who had been advised beforehand of the value of the books, said that they were worth about two hundred dollars.

Rap—An old collector writes: "At a recent society meeting, the spokesman for one of the big dealers in exulting over the fact that the demand for the cheaper stamps was so great, reiterated the bromidic statement that everything should be done to encourage the young collector in his stamp progress. I am sending you a packet of stamps for which a boy acquaintance paid fifty cents. Of all the messes that I ever saw, the contents of this packet is the worst; and of course, the boy whose half-dollars do not grow on every bush is mightily 'encouraged.' Fair words and foul deeds sometimes come in unhappy juxtaposition." We believe that this packet was sent by mistake and not intentionally, as the stamps in it really were worthless. Even a non-advertiser in our paper would not foist such trash on the unsuspecting boy; and we think that the return of the stamps with an explanatory letter would clear the atmosphere. If we are to continue the publicity push that has now gained momentum, we shall have to make things pleasant for the young collectors. A percentage of the boys and girls will continue to collect despite all obstacles, but there are others who will not withstand imposition and unfriendliness.

Preparing—Advices have been received from both Milwaukee and Minneapolis to the effect that the collecting interests in these enterprising cities are in the midst of plans for the entertainment of visitors to the conventions of the American Philatelic Society and the Philatelic Sons of America, respectively. The dates of these two annual meetings will not conflict; and if assurances already received count for anything, the welcome banners will be hung high on the outer walls.

Righted—Mr. Herman Toaspern has two reasons for correcting a recent "howler." He is president of the Truart Pictures Corporation and his habitat is Richmond, Virginia. He writes: "I note an astonishing piece of historical misinformation on page 57 of the January 22nd issue. In the article 'A Philatelic Portrait Gallery,' I find. '. . . Captain John Smith and his gentle if brave Indian wife, Pocohontas.' Give poor old Rolfe a little credit and why the qualification, 'gentle if brave?' Can't one possess both virtues? Present the gentleman with a pair of fur stamp tweezers." This reminds us of the boy who described the cougar as "fierce but friendly," and who probably had the "cootie" in mind. 'Tenny rate, Rolfe has had a cigar named after him.

Early—This is a swift age and in explanation, we cite the following example of philatelic precocity. McKee Gifford, Chicago, aged nine months, grabbed a bright red stamp that fell to the floor and before his mother could retrieve it, performed the act of deglutination, short for swallowed it. We suppose that the stamp was one of the Interior Department. Thus does the visible supply of rarities shrink. Young Gifford was none the worse for his philatelic feast, even though he was in the condition of the young lady who ecstatically described herself as "just full of stamps."

Cheap—A dealer who leans to the classic issues essays the role of satirist. He says: "The lack of enthusiasm that some of my customers show for some of those colorful issues that are coming from Europe is beyond understanding. When you can get the brilliant creations at the prices that certain of them have descended to, we'll say that they are bargains. Have you ever tried to get labels of similar kind made for advertising or other purposes? If so, you will appreciate the force of my statement that the price of the ready-made article is much lower than that quoted for a special issue of your own. We owe a debt of gratitude to Europe for placing within the reach of the humblest collector these artistic samples of the art. At present prices, I figure that every time a set of stamps is bought the buyer makes a bit of money. That is, if the purchaser keeps them."

GOLDEN GENIE STOCK

You can search the wholesale market the world over and not find such an all around BARGAIN in world-wide variety for so few dollars. Largest money-making possibilities of all salable rapid-fire selling items. Not "loaded" with SEEBECK reprints or other similar trash. Only clean POSTAGE stamps and not padded with low value, cheap unused Portugal Colonies.

Sold at COST plus one reasonable profit DIRECT TO YOU. As we have been in this business for nearly FIFTY years, we not only have an immense stock and the best sources of direct supply, but know HOW and WHERE to buy RIGHT and all this is to your own benefit and enables you to make DOUBLE profits on the amount invested.

CONTAINS 4,000 postage stamps with some 1800 DIFFERENT of such a high grade that they are worth the price asked ALONE. NOT OVER 4 OF ANY ONE VARIETY. Plenty of choice kinds, higher values and scarce postally used provisionals from the British Colonials, Latin-Americans, and Neuropeans especially throughout. Arranged in easy-to-get-at-sections making the lot a TIME & MONEY SAVER.

You buy these stamps cheaper pro ratio than wholesalers ask by the 1000 and you get nearly 1000 kinds they don't offer or list, as a general rule. Those kinds they don't get enough to supply their own retail trade.

You get wide variety and few of a kind and VARIETY is the key to success in the stamp business, enabling you to compete with those using a large capital and that "holds" your customers. Utmost of VALUE given in REAL quality goods. Many hundreds of per cent. profit can be made by local resellers. Fine for exchangers and the BEST BUY in all Stampdom. Selling FAST and pleasing EVERY TIME — order yours today and you'll also be delighted.

JUST COMMON COURTESY.

Whenever we write a letter asking for information we make it a practice to enclose an addressed stamped envelope for reply. It is simply a common everyday courtesy that should not be neglected. Why should we expect anyone to trouble themselves with a request we have made upon them when we do not even pay the postage upon the reply? The ethics of correspondence require that this little detail be given proper consideration.

We are still sending our Bargain List for collectors to all those who apply for it. If you spend ten cents or ten dollars on a stamp order, you can save money by buying from our list.

INTERNATIONAL WHOLESALE STAMP CORP.

404½ CONGRESS STREET, PORTLAND, MAINE.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The Canadian Government is evidently trying to make the use of fish popular, as shown by a cancellation recently in use. Specimens have been sent us by E. Harris and others. The cancellation has the inscription in three lines:—"Remember the—National Fish Day—Feb. 9."

—Alfred Lechner, formerly dealing upon Nassau St., has sold his stock and good-will to Stanley R. Massman. Mr. Lechner will continue the wholesale business from his home at Astoria, L. I., N. Y.

—The Marks Stamp Co. recently issued a large wholesale and retail price-list to which we called the attention of our readers in a very favorable notice It reflects the enterprise of this firm. A copy of the list is now at hand in a stiff binding, making it much more durable and convenient for reference. No stamp dealer can keep shop without this very useful book.

—We have just formed a fine stamp club here in Waterbury, Conn., the first meeting being held Jan. 17, and these officers elected:—Pres., W. D. Pierson; Vice Pres, C. E. Webster; Sec., A. F. Hitchcock; Treas., F. L. White. We are to meet every other Monday at 8 P. M. and would welcome visitors.—A. F. Hitchcock.

—W. T. Wilson, Birmingham, Eng., has a very attractive list of novelties and special bargains in his February bimonthly publication just at hand.

—The Manitoba Free Press of Winnipeg under date of Jan. 29 states that George Greed, raw fur dealer of that city, has sold his collection of postage stamps for $6,000 to a New York dealer. It numbered 26,000 varieties and covered many countries, especially Canada. The columns of the Weekly will no doubt shortly reflect the New York end of the transaction.

—Editor Rotnem of the Precancel Gazette, St. Anthony Falls Sta., Minneapolis, Minn., admires our good judgment in clipping some precancel notes from his magazine, but rebukes us mildly for not otherwise boosting the Gazette in our columns. The very best compliment we can pay this publication is to reprint some of its contents, and lovers of precancels should follow up our lead with requests for sample copies of this excellent publication.

—Knowing that your readers have always made a splendid response to any appeals for stamps to be sent to shut-ins, perhaps you can manage to give space to this appeal in behalf of Miss M. A. Ware, 428 No. 16 St., San Jose, Cal., as I know she would appreciate anything of the kind very much. And possibly some of your readers—collectors or dealers—have some work in the philatelic line—mounting or sorting—that they would be glad to have some one of this kind do, and as she is a mature woman of intelligence, they may rely upon it being done in a creditable manner.—Alfred Rasmussen.

—We are informed by N. E. Carter of Elkhorn, Wis., that it is his intention to close out his large stock of curios and relics and devote his entire time to stamps and coins. Mr. Carter has been dealing in curios for some twenty years and this decision upon his part is an indication of the success that he has made of the stamp business since using the Weekly. We wish him continued success.

—E. T. Goodwin informs us that the 16c and 24c aeroplane stamps are on sale at the Fort Worth, Tex., Post Office.

—The Plainfield (N. J.) Stamp Club held its first annual banquet Saturday evening, February 5, at the Club Rooms. There were members present from many philatelic organizations. Speeches were made by the president, Frank E. Hadley, and by the secretary, Edward Tomson. The Plainfield Stamp Club was organized one year ago January 24, 1920. It was the object of the club to try and get 25 on our membership the first year, but when the year came to a close we found our membership list had reached 57! We have the honor of having among our members Hon. E. R. Ackerman of this city, one of the greatest collectors of the day.—Edward Tomson.

THE CHALKED-SURFACED COOK ISLANDS

By E. D. E. van Weenen.

As my name appears in "Philatelia's" letter on "Pacific Island Stamps" in the issue of Stamp Collecting for August 28th, and he asks for information, I will tell him what I know of the matter of the chalk-surfaced paper stamps of the Cook Islands. At the same time I can refer him also to Mr. J. R. G. Collin's valuable articles on the New Zealand Protectorate Islands in the New Zealand Stamp Collector, which are a true history of the stamps, except in their distribution in one or two instances.

For many years my efforts have been directed to obtaining as complete a collection of postally-cancelled stamps of the islands in the Pacific Ocean (Philippines excepted). For this purpose I opened up a corresondence with the postmasters, and, as a rule, had funds at the various offices to meet my requirements. Hence my knowledge of what has appeared. As regards the 2d Cook Islands on chalky paper, some evidently reached Raratonga, as, to my astonishment, the postmaster there sent me a block of four on an envelope, nicely cancelled, but rather too lightly, as the month (in 1919) is illegible. I received these before the unused, but I could get no more.

The chalk-surfaced stamps embrace some interesting varieties, and I want to set to rights the stereotyped recorded 14, 14 by 14½, and 14 by 15 perforations, in the interest of the advanced collector. There are two cutters of the 14 perf.: one is true, the other gauges 14¼, while the 14½ does not gauge this, and is, practically, 14⅜. The 14 by 15 is 14 by 15⅛. I have a gauge that measures the quarters, and surveyor's measure that goes up to 1/96 of an inch; and, although it takes time, it is not difficult to arrive at the true gauge of a perforation.

The ½d of the series shows a number of shades, and the figures in the corners are printed in a deeper shade than the rest of the design (except in the deep green). This occurs in all the other denominations of the "chalks". The 1d of 1917 exists in two papers, one thinner and harder than the other. The 2d of 1919 is perf. 14 by 14, as against the 14 by 15 of the 10d and 1s of 1918. Mr. Collins does not give these perforations.

GEORGE T. MOON, JR., 89 St. James Pl., Brooklyn, N. Y.

To the collector who loves varieties, the Makea and Torea series presents quite an avalanche of them, when the size of the country is taken into consideration. One prominent variety not mentioned is where the foot of the "1" in 1d (late issues) is cut off level with the right-hand down stroke, and shows a dot before "d." Another shows the end of the bottom line of the neck of the bird cut and trailing downwards. This is on the 2d.

Only a small supply of the 10d and 1s on chalky paper were sent to the island, and barely lasted to the arrival of the overprinted "Rarotongas." And, for "Philatelia's" information, I may mention that only one sheet, or portion of the sheet, of the 1d and 3d Niue, with native surcharge, were used in Niue, the balance being returned to Wellington, there to be destroyed. I was fortunate to get a pair of each sent to me by the Government agent, who goes in (mildly) for philately. As I also managed to get a half-sheet of each value, both showing the no-stop variety (only once in the whole sheet), I may be called lucky.

The most interesting—and, to me, most valuable—postal cancellations are those used before local stamps were issued.—Stamp Collecting.

HERE'S A BARGAIN

—a real bargain! Collection of about 4,500 varieties, practically all 19th Century (before 1901), that will catalog around $500—(perhaps $600). Average condition runs very good and there are some fine stamps not usually found in a collection of this size. I note Canada Jubilee ½c to 50c unused o. g, superb; Netherlands 1899. ½c to 5 gulden unused o. g.; Newfoundland 1866, 10c, 12c, 24c, and many other good stamps from nearly every country that issued stamps up to that time.

There are about 475 good stamps cat. 25c to $4 each that total about $275 catalog and these alone are worth the price for the whole collection. Take these out and there still remains a collection of 4,000 varieties that will catalog about $300. The best stamp in the book is a really fine U. S. 90c 1869 for which I will gladly pay $15 cash.

First check for $110 gets the collection. Other checks will be returned.

I have U. S. stamps no other dealer in the world can supply and foreign that you see about once in a life-time. Whatever you want, this is the place to get it!

U. S. 2c on 3c Provisional Envelopes

Scott has already listed six types of overprint on these envelopes, the first four being from dies furnished by the government and the other two were from local stamps prepared in the two towns of Duncan and Frederick, Okla. Now along comes Daytona Beach with another provisional in a seventh type. These varieties will be in the next Scott catalogue and without doubt a place for them in the album will be made.

Obtain the rare local types while obtainable. Of the three types, there are possibly not more than a thousand in all existence.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

WE PETITION.

We humbly petition the patrons of the WEEKLY not to send notes about new issues or varieties to either Portland or Beverly. This is plainly written in understandable English. Such matter should go to either Mr. Ward or Mr. Smith. as per notice at the head of this department.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

UNITED STATES.—Talking about double prints, one of the Philadelphia collectors has about the finest example of such a variety that it has ever been my good fortune to examine. The stamp is the 3c green, National print, issue of 1870 and used on the entire cover. It shows plainly that when the sheet first went through the press the upper portion of the stamp was printed very clearly in the normal strength of color, while the lower part of the stamp printed but lightly. It was again run through the press, but this time the sheet did not register so that the second impression which is strong is about a half inch too low, resulting in a second top of the stamp being printed where the bottom should be. On first glance it looks as if a top of a second stamp had been stuck over the bottom, but close examination clearly shows what it is. Such varieties in the older issues are most uncommon.

Another cover of unusual interest was recently seen, namely the 5c 1847 on the letter, postmarked "Millbury, Mass.", the home of the famous Postmaster Provisional. Several covers, showing this stamp postmarked "Brattleboro, Vt." are known, but I believe this Millbury to be unique. The stamp has the well known red gridiron cancellation covering both stamp and cover, while the postmark in red is on the cover only.

A great number of collectors have been examining their surface-printed stamps most carefully and have sent for inspection quite a number of varieties showing dots, dashes and breaks in places where they should not be. Mr. F. R. Demmerly sends in the neighborhood of fifty copies, Rev. H. Stave sends a strip and many other kind readers are equally as thoughtful in remembering the Chronicle. When it is recalled how these stamps are produced, however, it will be understood that such occurrences are most common and that under the circumstances it is not advisable to chronicle every such variety, for a close examination of any sheet will show some defect. Where the break or defect is very unusual and covers a great portion of the stamp, or else alters the letters or figures, giving them the appearance of something else, then we feel the item worthy of special mention. Such varieties in the case of an engraved stamp are quite different and are unusual but in stamps printed by the offset method it keeps the Bureau awake at night trying to prevent such defects.

Mr. Emile Jost sends for inspection another plate block of the 2c surface print, type II, showing etched initials. This time the initials are "TOP" and are to be found near one of the right plate numbers from sheet 11639. I am unable to say if this is from the upper or lower pane.

This week brings to hand quite a few varieties of the provisional 2c on 3c envelopes overprinted in Louisville. As yet they have only surcharged a part of their stock, so more varieties may be expected very shortly. Rev. C. L. Young adds another to our list of the second St. Louis type, while Mr. Harry B. Agard sends us a new variety on blue from Boston, unknown heretofore, with a Salem, Mass., card in the corner.

The daily newspapers in the East have been carrying news items regarding the locating of so-called "whiskey" properly bottled with counterfeit labels and "tax paid bottled-in-bond" stamps. Mr. Philip L. Garrett calls attention to the fact that recently in his part of the country large quantities of alcohol, water, caramel and glycerine have been bottled and sold as whiskey. In a recent raid, about twenty gallons of raw alcohol were captured, together with a lot of counterfeit labels for Overholt Whiskey. and several hundred counterfeit tax paid bottled-in-bond stamps. Mr. Garrett kindly sends one of these stamps which will prove of interest to all "tax paid" collectors. The stamp is lithographed in green, overprinted in red and shows the word "distillery" mis-spelled. A counterfeit cigar stamp was discovered some years ago on cigars turned out by a Lancaster, Pa., factory, but with this exception I do not recall any others in the "tax paid" line.

Many collectors of today are possibly not aware of the fact that a number of years ago the 2c carmine postage stamp of 1894 was counterfeited to defraud the government but the counterfeiters were soon caught, and the stamp, which is somewhat rare, is much sought after today by U. S. specialists. Every once in a while an auction catalogue will come out describing these stamps as the "Buffalo print" or the "Chicago print" and it is the counterfeit to which they refer.

A number of our readers are still sending their notes regarding United States varieties direct to Boston or Beverly. Will they please be sure and read the paragraph at the head of this column and see that anything relating to United States stamps is mailed to Mr. Ward in Philadelphia, and foreign varieties should be sent to Mr. Smith in West Somerville.

We wish to thank Messrs. P. F. Robertson, Ernest Cook, S. W. Hacke Simon Haas, J. R. Sutton and R. Sar uels for notes of interest.

BARBADOS.—Mr. Wm. R. Harris calls attention to the Victory set which advises is watermarked with the norm multiple CA except the shilling valu which all have the watermark sideway

CANADA.—The writer recently r across the one cent rose of 1859 (Scot No. 14) with what appears to be doub perforations along the left side and t bottom. The perforations are in abo one-sixteenth inch from both side a bottom, and while no paper is remove their impression is fairly distinct. Co respondence is desired with anyone w has similar varieties.

A 10c blue has been added to the Cu toms Duty set.

I have just learned that an aerial m service was inaugurated yesterday (Ja 3rd) between Toronto and Camp Bo den. The pilot, Lieut. A. F. McLeri made the trip of 60 miles from Can Borden in less than 40 minutes. It expected that under normal weather co ditions the journey can be made in minutes. I am informed that this se vice will run for a month as an exper ment for the benefit of the Postmast General at Ottawa. Although I ha not learned for a fact, it is quite possib that some special stamp or cancellatio is being employed.—Canadian Stan Collector.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—New series whi we forecasted November 6th, head King George, now being recess-print in London. Should arrive in Gra Cayman about five weeks' time. 1½ 3d, 1s and 5s already printed; other va ues requisitioned as stock in hand e hausts.—Stamp Collecting.

JAMAICA.—According to Harry Huber. another denomination in the ne series appeared on the 21st January— green and brown. It is printed fro engraved plates, and on the old wate marked paper. "4d" appears in all fo corners of the upright rectangular d sign—across the top is "Postage Rev nue—Jamaica" in two lines, and at t bottom "Spanish Town Cathedral which is the subject of the vignett To the right and left of the design a bunches of oranges.

THE WASHINGTON SOCIETY.

The Washington Philatelic Society has taken a new lease of life this season and most interesting and inspiring meetings are now the rule. The members have had the pleasure of listening to a vivid account of the philatelic experiences in foreign lands of Mr. J. E. Dye, of the United States Diplomatic Service, who is home on a furlough after fifteen years spent in Germany, Italy, Asia Minor, Congo and South Africa. Mr. Dye was one of the founders of the Society and was associated with Mr. H. F. Colman, the well-known dealer. The story of his encounters with the fakirs and counterfeiters of Italy, Greece and Smyrna; of the acquirement in Sicily of Bomba Heads galore at nominal prices; of rare Greek and Cretan issues obtained at face; and of his associations with Jan Smuts and other South African collectors, were of absorbing interest.

Other recent entertainers have been Mr. Hernando De Soto, a descendant from the discoverer of the Mississippi, who recounted the postal history of the German occupation of Warsaw, at which city he was then the American consul; Mr. Paul Dominian, also of the Consular Service, who displayed his early Straits and Persians and described them learnedly; Mr. J. B. Leavy, who exhibited his collection of forgeries and explained their origin and how to differentiate them from the genuine; Messrs. Du Hamel, Loomis, etc. The competitive exhibitions which feature the first meeting of each month and the frequent auctions held serve to sustain the interest of the members and compel a large and enthusiastic attendance. Visiting collectors will be assured of a hearty welcome on the second and fourth Wednesdays in each month at the headquarters, Room 300, 1413 G Street, N. W.—C. H. MCBRIDE.

NEW ISSUE NOTES.

ALBANIA.—Appropos of the Posthorn overprint on the Paris printed stamps, we quote as follows from L'Exchangiste Universal:

"These stamps have not yet been put in circulation despite their mention in the catalogue, at any rate for postal purposes. It seems that they were ordered from the French Government by General Bardi di Fortu, commandant of the Allied troops at Scutari, and, as shewn in the catalogue illustration, bore the word 'Shkoder' which signifies 'Scutari,' since they were destined for use only in that zone. But, on account of pressure of work at our ateliers on the Boulevard Brune, which suffered from a shortage of material, they could not be delivered in time. Thus it was that they overprinted, as shewn in the catalogue, Nos. 93 to 101, the stamps with the likeness of the Prince of Weid. Meanwhile Scutari and the surrounding districts had been united with the rest of Albania. The stamps printed at the Boulevard Brune could not therefore be issued as they were, without some modification. The Albanian postal administration therefore obliterated the legend 'Shkoder' by means of an overprint of a posthorn. The postage due stamps, of which no mention is made, have been used as indicated in the catalogue. But the numbers printed—8,000 sets—have already made them somewhat scarce."

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.—A commemorative stamp of the face value 5 centavos, printed in grey-blue, with a portrait of General Urquiza, was issued on November 11th, the anniversary of his victory over General Mitre at Cepada in 1859. The occasion was the unveiling of the national monument erected to his memory. The stamp is in large format and inscribed with the dates "11 de Novembre, 1859-1920," printed at Beunos Ayres Mint on Honeycomb watermarked paper, and perforated 13. It is valid for domestic purposes only.

Captain-General Justo-Jose de Urquiza was born at Entre-Rios in 1800, and fifty-three years later became President of the Argentine Confederation.

He retired from office in 1860 and was assassinated by one of his aides-de-camp at San Jose in 1870.

CHINA.—The Collectionneur de Timbres-Poste is our authority for stating that the current 20 cents postage stamp of the Republic is now printed in two colours, viz., yellow and black, instead of carmine as heretofore. It is probable that the change may be extended to other values of the stamps produced by the Pekin Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

DANTZIG.—The two provisional stamps noted in our last chronicle were issued on November 20th, and are intended to tide over the Dantzig post office until the advent of the new definite Free State issue, which is momentarily expected to make its debut.

DON COSSACKS REPUBLIC.—A curious currency stamp, which was also used for postage at Rostov on Don some time in 1918 has been shown us by Messrs. D. Field. It is lithographed with the head of Ermak, prince of Siberia, and Hetman of the Cossacks of the Don in the XVI century, who is one of the legendary heroes of Russian folk lore. On the reverse side is a vernacular inscription reading "Currency stamp issued by the Rostov on Don branch of State Bank." The colour is green, the face value 20 kopecs.

IUME.—The remainders of the so- ed "Legionnaire" stamps commemo- ng the triumphal entry of D'Annun- into Fiume as its Dictator on tember 12th, have been re-issued for inary postage with the addition of overprint in four lines reading "Reg- za Italiana del Carnaro" and in cer- instances bearing new values in harge, according to L'Echo de la ibrologie.

ERMANY.—The use of pictorial types the mark values has apparently been ndoned, and these are now printed the pfennig denominations, in the iliar Germania design but in two ours. The following have already eared:—

1½ mks, violet and red.
2 mks, blue and carmine.
4 mks, carmine and black.

A provisional 2.50 mks stamp has also been created by printing off a supply from the old line-engraved plates of this value in red, and surcharging them with the new value in black.

HONDURAS.—A commemorative issue in honour of Francisco Morazan, first President of the Republic, who led the insurrection of 1821, which resulted in the liberation of Honduras from Spanish rule, is reported by the Berliner Briefmarken Zeitung. It embraces seven values, all shewing a portrait vignette of Morazan in an oval.

HUNGARY.—We gather from our Dutch contemporary, the Wereldpost, that it is proposed to issue special postage stamps next year, bearing the dates 1871-1921 to mark the jubilee of the introduction of adhesive postage stamps into Hungary.

LITHUANIA.—Messrs. D. Field have shewn us a full series of ten picturesque and historically interesting stamps issued by this government on the occasion of the inauguration of the National Assembly last month. All are lithographically printed by the Bank of Lithuania and perforated 11½. The total issue is said to have comprised 62,000 sets, out of which we understand a large portion have been sold direct to the stamp trade. The low values up to and including 30 skatiku depict the customary White Knight of Lithuania, whilst those of 1 and 5 auksinai represent an expiatory fire burning upon an altar. On the subject of the designs of the middle values we quote from The Times:

"The portrait on the 40 and 80sk is that of King Gedeminas, who ruled from 1316 to 1341. He it was who conquered Volhynia and Kieff, and checked the advance of the Teutonic Knights in the West. He was the founder of the Lithuanian power, not alone by his military successes, but by his internal organisation. On the 20, 50 and 60 skatiku is seen the counterfeit presentment of Vytautas the Great, who rendered signal service to Western Europe by stemming the incursions of the Tartars and other barbarians from the East. During his reign, Lithuania reached the zenith of its might; its frontiers extended to Novogorod on the North; Moscow and the Don on the East; and to the Dniester and Black Sea on the Southwest."

ROUMANIA.—In the Wereldpost for November, we find mention of a special charity overprint applied to the current stamps with the head of King Ferdinand on the occasion of a journalistic congress at Sevenburgen, consisting of the words "Ziaresti 1920 Ujsagirok," which we are unable to translate:

5 bani, green.
10 bani, red.
15 bani, brown.
50 bani, blue.
40 bani, dull brown.
50 bani, vermilion.
1 leu, bright green.
2 lei, orange.

SCHLESWIG.—It is reported that the Danish Government has offered the unsold remainders of the Schleswig Plebiscite stamps to Germany for the sum of 6 million marks. The statement that they are to be re-issued in the German zone of Schleswig, however, is as yet unconfirmed.

SERBIA.—We quote from the Times: "Serbia was to have introduced on December 1st a set of three special postage stamps, commemorating the founding of the Yugo-Slav Union, which were to be sold at a premium upon their postal values in aid of the national fund for disabled soldiers. Printed by a New York firm to the order of the Serbian minister of Posts (Dr. Drinkovic) the three designs are to represent respectively, the heroine of Amselfeld, the historic retreat of the Serbian army through Albania, and the united Arms of Yugo-Slavia surmounted by the Royal Crown. By the sale of these stamps it is hoped to raise several million dinars for the relief of war victims."

SWITZERLAND.—A new air post stamp has been created in connection with the aerial mail from Basle to Frankfort in the form of the current 30 centimes postage stamp overprinted with the device of a winged propeller in red, like the former 50 centimes.

In accordance with annual custom, Christmas charity stamps were placed on sale at Swiss post offices on December 1st in aid of child-welfare organizations. They are in three denominations, each of which is sold at a premium of 5 centimes. The designs continue the series of Arms of the Cantons inaugurated by Rudolf Munger in 1918, depicting on the 7½c, silver-grey and red (Arms of Schweiz), 10c, red and blue (Arms of Zurich), and 15c, violet, red and blue (Arms of Tessin). The stamps are surface printed by the Bern Mint upon granite paper with the customary Cross watermark and are perforated 11½. Two and a half million sets have been printed, and they will remain valid for domestic postage until March 31st, 1921, although they will not be sold by post offices after the end of December.

15c, violet, red and blue.

UKRAINE.—We are indebted to Messrs. Bright and Son for particulars of a hitherto unrecorded overprint of a small red Trident on the former Russian stamps, which was applied solely to stamps used by the military field post offices of the Ukraine Hetman's Corps. This corps, named after the ruler of the province, was formed in the districts of Kieff and Poltava as a last resource to try and stem the serious Bolshevik advance from the North. This formation hardly existed except upon paper, as very few soldiers were enrolled before December, 1918, when internal risings overwhelmed the "Hetman" and all his institutions, especially the military. Staffs and departments had, however, been formed and everything was very official and formal, as always in the new and proud Ukraine Republic, so of course the Army Corps must needs have its own Trident for use on the reserves in hand of Russian stamps. The staff post offices were chiefly found on the military trains, and for them a carefully made Trident hand-stamp was prepared at Kieff. For the reasons stated, these stamps were only in use for a brief period, and very few were used on letters; the remainders being bought up by Russian officers.—Philatelic Magazine.

SOUTH AMERICAN POSTAGE CUT.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. — Domestic postage rates. including the two cent letter charge, are now applicable to first and second class matter between the United States and Bolivia, Colombia, Honduras, Nicaragua and Peru, the post office department announced.

The weight limit on newspapers and other printed matter will be eight pounds twelve ounces, with a maximum weight for single volumes eleven pounds and maximum dimensions of rolled papers, forty inches in length by six inches in diameter. The weight regulations apply to Cuba also.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1572 to 1575 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

JOHNNY WENDEL'S FRIENDS.

By ROLAND S. ST. PIERRE.

Old Johnny Wendel was breathing pretty fast as he limped up the last few steps of the grade and turned in at his shanty that was perched so precariously on the edge of the bluff, overlooking the sound. It was a three-room shanty, with a kitchen where Johnny prepared and ate his scanty meals, a bedroom, and—but none of the inhabitants of the "Hill" knew just what was in that third room. It remained a mystery, for the door to it was always closed on the rare occasions when Johnny had a visitor. And the "Hill" folks did not like mystery. For that matter they did not like Johnny Wendel, either.

The "Hill" was a high promontory on the south side of town, beyond the factory district and straggling along the coast of the sound for perhaps a mile. At one time it had been prosperous, but time in passing had not been kind, and slowly its ramshackle houses and shanties were being deserted in favor of the new and rapidly growing north side.

Johnny Wendel had come to the "Hill" a dozen years before, moved his few belongings into the shanty, and quietly taken his place in the life of the "Hill". He made no friends and was seldom seen to go out except on an occasional trip to the grocery store for supplies. Rumor had it that he was an old sailor, but since he discouraged all advances and made none himself, no one ever knew for certain.

The "Hill" folk regarded him as a lonely, friendless old man, who lacked even the desire to make friends, and who was perhaps a little demented. As the years rolled on, his familiar stooped figure with its slight limp, became a part of the "Hill", and people shook their heads pityingly as he went by.

Old man Hicks of the corner grocery store said (and he was expressing pretty well the general public feeling):

"Poor old fellow, I wish we could do something for him. What a dreary life he must lead—no friends, no amusements—he never even gets any mail."

* * * * *

From his bedroom window Johnny Wendel could look out over the sound, where the ships were passing to and fro in a never ending procession, and here he was often to be found with a far-away, dreamy look in his eyes, seeing, not only the water before him, but the past that had been his. For Johnny Wendel had not always been old, and crippled, and friendless . . . .

It was early afternoon, and as he sat in the old rocker with its faded cushions, looking as ever out over the sound and the ships that came and went, he was dreaming of younger days—better days. He saw himself again, a fine young fellow, and Nancy—Nancy had been his sweetheart—as they strolled together that last evening before he was to embark on a year's cruise. He remembered how she had clung to him, and at the last moment had slipped him a little packet "To help you remember me on the long days, Johnny". And how, many days at sea, he had enjoyed sorting the stamps—for they had both been ardent collectors—that the packet contained. He remembered the quaint London shop where he had bought for a few pennies those now priceless Cape Triangles and P. O. Mauritius. . . . .

He must look at those again. And rousing himself from his reverie, old Johnny left his chair by the window and walked to the door of the third room—the "Mystery room" of the "Hill" folk. Inside, he shut the door carefully, and seated himself at the table which, with its accompanying chair, were the only pieces of furniture in the room. From the drawer of the table he took a big blue book, evidently home-made, and began to turn its pages slowly. . . .

There were the U. S. that he and Nancy had collected together. That block of 10c 1847 had been her birthday present from him back in '51. And here were whole pages of Confederate locals that he had gathered when as a Union spy he travelled the South over. His old eyes lighted up as he studied some of the gems.

With the aid of a glass he again let his eyes wander over every inch of the original cover bearing an 1861 5c—not a rare stamp—but the memories it held! It had been in his pocket that misty April morning when the foe had almost got him. A wild ride had carried him to safety, and the four small tintypes in that envelope had stopped the bullet that would have ended his life.

A few pages farther on he came to the Cape Triangles—the very ones she had given him that night. A lump came in his throat as he remembered that last farewell. She had died while he was a thousand miles at sea, and shattered his dream of the home that was to be. Then his resolve to carry on the little collection for her sake. Wherever he had gone after that, following the call of adventure on sea and land, he had gathered others. Pages of early British Colonials—every one with a memory dear—met his eyes as he dreamed his life over, bent above the album pages.

It had been a hard life and a rough one, but it had won him these friends—for to him they were friends—and it had been well worth it, thought the old man. Those fools on the Hill who thought him alone and old and friendless—was he not young in memories, and where could one find better friends or truer company than these bits of paper?

From all the world he had garnered—here were New Foundland, Saxony, Spain, Hawaiians and Egyptians rubbing shoulders almost on the same page.

It was growing dark in the little room, but still old Johnny Wendel dreamed on, and the pages fluttered under his trembly old hands as he feasted his eyes on treasure after treasure. Outside the dim lights at the street corners sprang into being, and the smell of more than one hungry man's supper drifted on the evening breeze. The old man's head is nodding a little now, as if in sleep, but if you lean very close you can hear the words he is mumbling—"For you, Nancy, I kept—them all for—you. And his head sank forward on the still open book, for Johnny Wendel had left bits of paper friends, and gone to Na

When they found him they said never had been a face more in re or a smile more peaceful and sweet his. At the coroner's inquest they nounced it death by slow starvatio and the home made blue album given to the local museum, who appra its value at over $70,000. It is case glass, now, and marked "In Memor Nancy", in accordance with the wil old Johnny, found in the drawer of table in the room where he died.

PHILATELIC POVERTY.

DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG.

Poverty, we are told, marks the dition of being poor. Couple it things Philatelic, and we have a and concise description of the pre position in this country. There is hobby which claims more devotees t stamp collecting, none has a wider sc it has built up a substantial industry cater for its needs, and support is gi to a host of periodicals and publicati all bearing on the pursuit; but the p tion achieved in other lands would pear to reflect no great credit on th islands. To be quite candid, Great B tain does not appear to advantage now in the world Philatelic.

There are many collectors, socie and clubs abound throughout the co try, but from the point of view of Ph telic research and the pursuit of us knowledge on the subject, we are v much behind. Statistics show that th is a greater proportion of collectors than in any other country, but vict is not given to the big battalions in instance. Other countries have stripped us in the race, and there pears to be no attempt being made recover lost ground from any quar It was not always so. Time was w we led the way as pioneers of Philat discovery. The hardy explorer abroad, our scribes were active powerful, and there were always ent siastic collectors ever ready to brea lance in the lists of controversy—t type of argument which, although may expose the failings and shortco ings of the combatants, does much elicit the truth and stimulate ot students in the field of research. Ti have changed, and no better proof this can be had than a glance at prese day Philatelic literature. Here we sandwiched between trade annou ments, a strange mixture of feeble g sip and flagrant plagiarism, and v poor plagiarism at that. On the ot hand, take one of the continental jo nals. Here are interesting and instr tive articles and notes, on old and r issues, the writers invariably displa a keenness and love of stamps, ability to carry out work of resea for the mutual benefit of themselves their fellow-men. If proof were wa ing of the value of these writings will readily be found by the fact t we are assiduously translating them every opportunity.

Is there no remedy for this? Is not possible to compete with our nim contemporaries, and in competing, j them in the good work of enlight ment? What is wanted is fresh bl in the writing world; the best h gone, and the few that remain co very well be spared to devote th energies to the instruction (sic.) juveniles. Too long have we suffe by the ministrations of these self-sty experts, and it is no exaggeration say that some of these gentlemen quite incapable of carrying on a c versation about stamps in an intelli manner. Seated at ease and surroun by the works of those who have go it is different, however, but even t the results are apt to prove tireso Sweep them out and make way better men. Again, much depends the wielders of the blue pencil, and these gentlemen will only give sc encouragement to those serious lectors who are capable of putting th knowledge and discoveries into wo a great boon would be conferred o long-suffering reading public, and general tone of Philately would materially benefit. Philatelic journals must rise to the fact that what is wanted is good reading matter based on sound lines, and above all direct from the man who knows. No opportunities should be missed; there is plenty of talent about, and it is there for the asking. Now a word to the collectors themselves. There are far too many of these who will not part with their knowledge under any circumstances whatever, and it is to be deplored that this class has greatly increased during the past few years. It cannot be said that these beings were a product of the war. The species was known prior to 1914, and as they invariably took no active part during the years which followed, we cannot blame the Armageddon for either their origin or increase. How exactly they would lose by helping to unravel some Philatelic tangle is not quite clear, but the fact remains that this apparently useless and unsociable creature abounds, and he is usually a member of a number of Philatelic societies, a fact which makes his attitude all the more difficult to understand. One might say why trouble about him. There are a number of reasonable collectors who would help on the good work, and quite right, but all must help. There must be no passengers in the boat, everyone must be a worker to the best of his ability.

The societies too would do much towards attaining our end if, instead of asking their members to listen to the platitudes of so-called authorities, they gave some encouragement to the great unknown. More than one society has degenerated to lionising people who are totally unconnected with stamps, even inviting them to hold forth on subjects quite irrelevant to the objects for which the society was instituted.

Just now we are inclined to look back upon the passing year in something of the mood judicative, and risking the denunciation of being dubbed pessimestic, we say that the past twelve months has marked little or no advance, and it remains for the coming year to bring some rays of light to our sadly withered Philatelic laurels. It is even hoped that the spirit which the season of the year is supposed to be capable of engendering in the hearts of men may help towards the happier state of things. This especially applies to those gentlemen whose peculiarities have been referred to. In conclusion, it might even be said that the magic spell has already begun its work, and as proof of the assertion let it be noted that the columns of the S.C.M.C. are ready to welcome all who are prepared to help in the recovery of our lost prestige and place the country once more in the front rank of Philatelic research.—Stamp Collectors' Monthly Circular.

CALCUTTA NEWS.

By E. M. GILBERT-LODGE.

It has often been a matter of conjecture to me as to the reason for the comparative scarcity of the 1854 issues of India in Bombay and other Indian cities. I had often suspected that they were being hoarded.

Here in Calcutta, where I am on a short visit, I found an Indian collector the proud possessor of some four thousand of the half-anna blue, three thousand of the one anna red, and no less than nine hundred of the 4 annas red and blue.

This collector informed me that he had bought many of them at a low rate, but that he had given full catalogue prices and over for a large proportion of his accumulation. I suspect the existence of many such hoards.

Many Indian Collectors are prepared to give full catalogue price for the 1854 issues of India.

I have heard of an accumulation of early Indian stamps at Karachi in the possession of a man whom I am assured will not part with a single stamp.

I am informed, by a collector who has seen them, that there are between two thousand and two thousand five hundred "Scinde Dawks" —one's eyes literally bulge at the thought of such a treasure house.

The first type of Portuguese India seem to be coming into their own again —the native dealers tell me that they can readily sell all they get, and at a price closely approaching catalogue rates.

There is a huge field of research in these stamps—I have several interesting things which I hope to describe in a future letter.

The death of Mr. E. Sassoon Gubbay leaves a sad blank in the ranks of Indian philatelists. A philatelist of the old school, Mr. Gubbay had a quite good collection of the stamps of India and the Convention States. The latter portion of his collection was sold by him to a Calcutta collector shortly before his death. Mr. Gubbay also had a fair collection of War stamps, including about 60 Baghdad.

Mr. Pudumjee, of Bombay, has an extremely fine collection of Baghdad and Bushire issues numbering many hundreds in all.

Two interesting pairs of Convention States were shown me recently—a pair of the 12 anna Jhind, Queen's Heads, and a pair of the 1 rupee Chamba of the same issue. Both pairs are mint and are distinctly "double surcharge," one being "albino."

I recently advertised in an Indian daily paper for stamps and among my replies was one rich in humour.

I cannot refrain from giving the epistle in full.

"Sir,—I love the stamps and I will surely do so always because I am but the little boy in school and get two annas each week the stamps do not come to me. Kind sir, if you sent stamps I would be glad for ever to think of you and the stamps. I pray, kind sir, that the master does not know from you that I write. Surely would trouble come to me and I would be sorry, so I pray you be good to me and perhaps send stamps and I am your always kind friend. I could send one anna every week surely."

My correspondent shall remain anonymous in his school up in the Hills. He got his stamps and I did not disturb his treasure chest.

The postal employees' strike in Bombay is causing the gravest inconvenience.

In Calcutta I have been trying for a week past to dispatch a registered parcel to Bombay, but the post office refuse to accept it. Letters are commonly taking six to eight days between Calcutta and Bombay—a train journey of forty-eight hours. Willing volunteers are doing their best to cope with the vast accumulation of postal matter in Bombay. The strike has now been in progress for a month past, and at the time of writing a settlement seems as far off as ever. One just has to exercise patience and hope for the best.—Stamp Lover.

NOTABLE 1920 STAMPS.

Victory Commemorations, Plebiscitic and Mandate Issues.

The new varieties of postage stamps issued during the last twelve months have been appreciably fewer in number than in 1919, which established a high record. But if the output has been small, the quality has been, on the whole, commensurately high, and 1920 has enriched the pages of the stamp album by many beautiful and noteworthy examples of the printer's and engraver's arts, as well as countless specimens fraught with curious and historical interest.

From the Bahamas in March came a handsome series of five line engraved stamps, inscribed "Peace" and showing besides the King's profile, the Colonial badge with the motto "Expulsis Piratis —Commercia Restituta." Shortly afterward the Leeward Islands presidency of St. Kitts Nevis put forth a new and elaborate stamp issue incorporating the designs of the official seals of both islands. That of St. Christopher perpetuates Columbus sighting land through a telescope.

A remarkable feature of a 10s, postage stamp introduced into the colony of Jamaica was the reproduction upon it of the personal title of the Sovereign peculiar to this portion of his dominions, "Of Jamaica Supreme Lord." The inspiration of the design of this stamp, which shows the head of the King supported by two cherubim, is commonly attributed to Sir Leslie Probyn, the Governor.

The island dependencies of New Zealand in the south Pacific were provided in October with a striking set of pictorial postage stamps, one for each island, with characteristic scenes and subjects, including the landing of Captain Cook and a portrait of the famous navigator from an old engraving. Two stamps of a series commemorating the tercentenary of the establishment of representative institutions in the colony were issued by Bermuda on November 11 of the face values of 1d and 2½d. Increases in the postal tariff necessitated the addition of stamps of the face values 1½d and 1s 3d to the current series of the Union of South Africa, and the creation of a new 2d stamp bearing the King's head by the Australian Commonwealth on October 10, 1920.

Unique historical interest surrounds the various special issues arising out of plebiscites and mandates decreed by the Treaty of Versailles. The first emblazoned with the arms of Jutland, appeared in Schleswig on January 25, and on the restoration of Northern Schleswig to Denmark in May were reissued with values in Danish currency and the distinguishing imprint "1" Zone. Similar issues took place under control of the International Commissions in Eastern and Upper Silesia, Marienwerder, Allenstein and Carinthia. French occupation of the Saar Valley was marked by the overprinting of contemporary stamps of Germany and Bavaria at first with the single word "Sarre," but subsequently, in view of the protest lodged by the German Government with the League of Nations, this was amended to "Saargebiet." In a like manner overprinted Belgian stamps were utilized for the first six months of Belgium's tenure of Eupen and Malmedy.

Other outstanding political events recorded were D'Annunzio's reentry in Fiume as Regent of Carnaro, h stamps adorned with a portrait bu the poet appeared, and General Zel ski's seizure of Vilna, the Lithu capital, the subsequent issue of s for Central Lithuania showing the escutcheons of Poland and Lith During the year there have app are first distinctive postage stamps o menia, Castellorizo, Ingria, C Palestine, Trans-Jordania, White R Syria (Arab Government) and R Turkestan.—London Times.

NEWFOUNDLAND —1920— PROVISIONALS.

Appeared in M.W.S.N. for Dec. 4, 1920, No. 1562. Revised for Poole's handbook on Newfoundland.

HARRY E. HUBER.

Irregular direct steamer communication with England, and inability of Whitehead, Morris & Co., Ltd., of London, to care for requisitions sent them by the Newfoundland Department of Posts and Telegraphs, combined to make necessary the provisionals of September, 1920.

From the beginning of the year considerable difficulty had been experienced in caring for the local demand for 1c, 2c, and 3c stamps. Cabot remainders exist for the higher denominations and these are reissued as those in the Caribou series exhaust, but there is no remainder stock of values below 6c.

At the beginning of April, 1920, the stock of 2c Caribou was down to 100,000, and to conserve these, requisitions from the outport offices for this value were not filled. By April 30th stock had exhausted. A new lot was received in the early days of May, and placed on sale on May 12th. Two weeks later a small consignment of the 3c arrived, followed by 1c and 2c in June. In July a quarter million 3c reached St. John's, a like quantity on August 9th, and later on the month, 70,000 2c.

By September 1st the 2c had exhausted, the 1c was down to 800,000, and the 3c so low that it was reserved for foreign postage. In the outport offices there were very few of the lower value stamps, for with limited quantity in the G. P. O. vaults from the first of the year, requisitions from the outports were curtailed, and only sufficient sent out from time to time, to care for immediate needs—seldom more than two weeks' supply.

To understand better the embarrassing position of the Department at the beginning of September, it is necessary to consider the demand for these three lower values, and the varied uses to which they are put.

Inland circulars are 1c for 2 ounces, and this rate applies to newspapers leaving the island. Newspapers, magazines and books within the Dominion are 2c per pound, save when under four ounces, they pass free. It is estimated that 5 million newspapers, pamphlets and books pass through the G. P. O. in the course of a year.

The 2c stamp is in great demand fiscally, for receipts, checks, notes, bills of lading, shipping receipts, etc. Town letters are 2 cents, while those "for any place in Newfoundland and the Labrador" not exceeding 1 ounce are 3 cents. "This rate (3c) is applicable to letters posted in one settlement for delivery in another a mile or more distant." The 3c rate applies also to letters to Great Britain, the Dominions and Colonies, and the United States of America.

Previous to October, 1914, when check and receipt taxation was introduced, the sale of stamps was a fair indication of the number of letters mailed, but now the use of postage stamps is not confined to letters or other articles passing through the post. Letters at the G. P. O., St. John's, are postmarked by an electric cancelling machine, and records show an average of 11,000 daily, including Sundays, totaling close on 4 million a year. Adding another million for the outports, and including newspapers, books, etc., 10 million articles are accounted for,—to this must be added another 50,000 for parcels and registered articles.

The Department estimates that 400,000 odd letters alone are handled by the G. P. O. monthly. This figure, of course, includes those passing locally at the 2c rate, and those for abroad at the 5c rate, but not letters from abroad. A monthly minimum of 300,000 3c stamps is required by the 575 Post Offices in the Dominion, serving 250,000 people. Official records show that in the 20 months following the issue of the Caribou series, 5 million 1c, 4½ million 2c, and 6½ million 3c stamps were used.

Postage stamps, post cards, stamped envelopes, and wrappers to the value of $257,798.26 were issued for the year ending June 30, 1919, being an increase of $80,882.09 over the previous year. The Caribou series is very popular, and orders from collectors and dealers abroad

SPRING BACK BINDERS

In purchasing collections, I get many spring back binders that are almost as good as new. Just now I have five 12x12 black binders (Ne Plus Ultra and Krassa makes) that, although second handed, show practically no wear. These binders new now cost $4.00 each, plus forwarding charges. Those I have I will sell at $2.50 Each Postpaid.

Other recent purchases give me the following albums:—

One second handed Carter Revenue Album in brown cloth, good condition, price postpaid $1.00

One second handed Scott's National Album 1914 edition, hardly used at all, with extra pages and tabs for adding pages, it can easily be made to serve to date, morocco or heavy leather bound, price postpaid $2.00 have contributed many thousands of dollars to the revenue of the Department.

H. F. COLMAN

With the exhaustion of the 2c and reservation of the 3c for foreign letters, commencing September 4th, town letters (2c) and inland letters (3c) were taken by the P. O. clerks, with cash, and rubber stamped in carmine,—

G. P. O.
St. John's, Newf'l'd.

The postmark was then applied as usual. Letters from the outports were forwarded with cash to St. John's, and there rubber stamped. A second rubber stamp usually found on letters from the outports, applied in green, had the letters in larger type and read—

St. John's, N. F.

With the 1c down to 800,000, and the 3c Caribou exhausted during the following week, surcharging could not be avoided. Fortunately, large remainders of the higher denomination stamps of the Cabot series were available. These had been in the vaults for over 23 years, coming into use from time to time as corresponding values in subsequent series exhausted.

2000 sheets of the 15c scarlet, Cabot series, showing a group of seals, had been printed in 1897, and a quarter of these still remained in stock. So it was that 500 sheets of these stamps were sent to J. W. Withers, the Government Printer, with instructions to reduce by overprint to 3 cents.

The first lot of overprinted stamps was delivered to the G. P. O. at 5.30 on the afternoon of Saturday, September 11th, and consisted of 21,000 stamps. Just previous to the closing hour a local stationer, who also retails postage stamps, sent up for 500 3c stamps. Not desiring to inconvenience those with letters for Sunday's mail, 500 overprinted stamps were handed out. At 6 p. m. the G. P. O. closed for the day. Hundreds of requisitions from the outports had accumulated, running into thousands of stamps, and a clerk in the wholesale Dept. worked until quite late that night, and all day Monday, filling and dispatching. Full quantity was not supplied, only sufficient for immediate needs, as a further lot of 3c was expected by the S. S. Sachem, due in ten days.

At 8.30 on the morning of Monday, September 13th, the 3c on 15c was available at the G. P. O., but limited from the start to five copies to a person; during the morning this was reduced to two, and one, and by noon, as the demand continued, the clerks were instructed to sell none at all. Letters requiring this rate were to be handed in with cash, and the stamps attached by the clerks, providing the letters were for abroad. Inland mail was to be rubber stamped.

The setting, THREE CENTS, in two lines of Roman caps, with a horizontal bar above and below, was of 25 subjects (5x5), necessitating quartering the sheets of 100, for overprinting.

As first set up, the horizontal bars (above and below THREE CENTS) were spaced 11 mm. apart. These were intended to cancel the figures of value on the stamp (appearing twice in the upper part, and twice in the lower). The upper bar was correctly positioned, but the lower bar did not cancel the numerals in the lower part of the design. About 3000 stamps were overprinted from this setting, and then the spacing of the bars was changed to 14 mm. The balance of the 21,000 stamps in the first delivery was overprinted from the changed setting, as were also subsequent deliveries on Monday, on account of the 50,000.

Requisitions from the outports and local demands quickly exhausted the 3c on 15c, and with 50,000 of the 15c Cabot overprinted, the remainder stock of this value was exhausted. Recourse was then had to the 35c red, Cabot series, showing an iceberg off St. John's. A like number of sheets (500) was sent to J. W. Withers, and overprinted from the second setting of the THREE CENTS overprint. The lower bar was not necessary for this stamp, as the numerals are not repeated in the lower corners.

The 3c on 15c wide spacing, was available at the G. P. O. from 8.30 a. m., September 13th, until 3 p. m the following day, the 14th, when the 3c on 35c appeared. This, like the 3c on 15c, was not sold to the public, and letters of this rate leaving the island were taken with cash, and the stamps attached by the P. O. clerks.

One block of 25 of the 3c on 15c narrow spacing is known with inverted overprint. A copy of the 3c on 35c has been seen with THREE omitted. The 15th stamp (5th stamp, 3rd row) in some blocks of 25 of the 3c on 35c is without the lower bar, and on the 14th stamp the bar is partially missing. This is not caused by insufficient inking, for the upper bars of these two stamps, as well as those immediately under, are quite heavily inked. The bar probably became depressed in the course of printing.

Meanwhile, the 800,000 1c stamps were fast disappearing, being used for fiscal purposes, and postal as well, where the public insisted upon stamping its own mail. To relieve the strain, 500 sheets of the 30c deep indigo, Cabot series, Seal of the Colony, were reduced by overprinting to TWO CENTS, and were available at 8.30 a. m. September 23rd.

Town letters were still rubber-stamped but the 2c on 30c was sold to the public for receipts, etc. Five could be secured at a time; when 100 were required, it was necessary to secure a permit from the Deputy Minister of Posts and Telegraphs. There was, however, no restriction against the use of the 2c on 30c for local or foreign letters, and the writer has a block of four and several single copies used in combination with the THREE CENTS surcharges, on registered letters from St. John's to Pittsburgh; also single copies used on letters passing within St. John's.

The setting of the TWO CENTS was of 25 subjects, as for the THREE CENTS overprintings, but the arrangement changed, the 30c having its design in an upright rectangle instead of an oblong, as for the 15c and 35c. TWO CENTS is in two lines of Roman caps,—a horizontal bar above cancels the original value. The bar is not separate for each stamp, as for the THREE CENTS surcharges, but continuous (106 mm.) for the horizontal row of 5 stamps. Normally, the "O" of "TWO" is over the "T" of "CENTS", but on stamps 2, 7, 12 and 17 (of the block of 25), it is over the "S" of "CENTS".

Two blocks of 25 of the 2c on 30c are known with inverted overprint, and one block with a diagonal overprint, due to improper feeding to press.

The S. S. Sachem arrived on Saturday, September 25th, with a consignment of the 3c Caribou. The new printing went on sale on the 28th and the 3c on 35c was withdrawn.

The 2c Caribou reached St. John's on the 29th by the S. S. Digby, and was placed on sale October 4th. The 2c on 30c was withdrawn, and rubber-stamping of town and inland mail ceased.

The remainders of the surcharged stock consisted of 8,000 2c on 30c, and between 3000 and 4000 of the 3c. These were taken in charge by the Deputy Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, and apportioned among orders received through the post, but due to limited quantity, no order was filled completely.

SUMMARY.

Sept. 4 to Oct. 4, 1920.—Town and inland mail rubber-stamped (2 types) "Postage Paid—G. P. O.—St. John's, Newf'l'd."

b. Diagonal surcharge (25).
c. "O" of "TWO" over "S" of "CENTS," Nos. 2, 7, 12, 17.

NOTES ON THE SANITARY FAIRS.

By PERCY MCGRAW MANN.

The Sanitary Fairs held during the Civil War have always been of considerable interest to the philatelist, due entirely, I believe, to the fact that little labels, called stamps by some, were issued at them for the purpose of franking would-be mail matter supplied from "post offices" to patrons who were willing to contribute liberally for letters or billets doux, just for the fun of the thing, although they were contributing to one of the grandest causes that had ever been brought before them.

The editor of the WEEKLY, Charles E. Severn, has immortalized The Sanitary Fairs to stamp collectors through his book published some years ago. From time to time, one finds some article in stamp journals telling of the Sanitary Fair stamps. And while the literature on the subject is not voluminous, there have been many misstatements about the numerous labels and to correct these. I understand, Elliott Perry will some day give us a work that will clear the subject for all time. All collectors interested echo "hasten the day."

In the meanwhile, I have recently come into the possession of a very valuable little volume bound in cloth and boards, picked up locally and disposed of to me by the finder for a mere song. It is lettered in gold: "OUR DAILY FARE 1864." Upon opening it there is found a complete file of twelve numbers, dated June 8 to June 21, 1864, of Our Daily Fare, published in connection with The Great Central Fair held in Philadelphia during that period.

This work has a varied contents, but there is much therein that is interesting to the collector, the historian, or, preferably, to the philatelic historian who is ever interested in anything even remotely connected with philately. Be it remembered that at one time the stamp albums contained spaces for the Sanitary Fair labels, and even the venerated John Walter Scott ascribed the Great Central Fair Stamps, which were donated to and sold at The Great Central Fair held in Philadelphia, to his home city of New York. By far these were the handsomest of the Sanitary Fair labels, although the un-issued blue eagles of Albany have a beauty difficult to compare.

It would be possible for me to continue for some length about the stamp issues of The Sanitary Fairs, but my article is for the purpose of giving a few notes gleaned from Our Daily Fare, and as the heading above indicates, it is about the Fairs and not the stamps that I am to write.

The most valuable information contained therein is the dates of the opening and closing of the several Fairs, and that contributed by correspondents from contemporary Fairs. As the philatelist is most interested in the former, the following information is first given and if I do not trespass upon space that may be allowed for the purpose I will give several articles which may interest the readers of the WEEKLY.

All of the following dates are given in Our Daily Fare:

The Great Northwestern Fair was opened in Bryan Hall, Chicago, on October 27 1863.

The Great Western Sanitary Fair, held in Mozart Hall, Mechanics' Institute, Industrial Palace and a temporary building for the restaurant on Market Square, Cincinnati, was opened on December 14, 1863.

The Boston "Ladies' Fair", held by the New England Women's Auxiliary Association, opened on Monday, December 14, 1863.

The Brooklyn and Long Island Fair, opened February 22, 1864, and was held in the Academy of Music (also two temporary structures adjoining).

The Washington Fair opened in February, 1864.

The Poughkeepsie Fair opened March 15 and closed March 19, 1864.

The Baltimore Fair was opened in March, 1864.

The Metropolitan Fair was opened in the 22nd Regiment Armory, New York, April 4, 1864.

The Albany Fair was opened in April, 1864.

The St. Louis Fair was opened in May, 1864.

The Pittsburgh Sanitary Fair opened June 1, and closed June 18, 1864.

THE 5 CENTS NEW ORLEANS WITH INVERTED IMPRINT.

By E. S. KNAPP.

In some articles appearing in the Philatelic Gazette in 1918, I gave Mr. August Dietz' opinions of how the plate for the 5c New Orleans (Confederate States Provisional) stamp was made. These opinions are upheld in every particular by a variety of this stamp, which I have lately added to my collection, which shows the imprint at the top, upside down.

Mr. Dietz said, substantially, as follows:—

"The stereotypes were mounted side-by-side in strips of eight, then separated by printer's brass-rule, and above the top brass-rule and below the bottom brass-rule, the inscription, or imprint, was set in printer's type."

This copy proves that when the plate was first made, the inscription or imprint at the top was "set" upside down, by mistake.

It is reasonable to assume that the error was discovered at once and rectified by "resetting" the type, and, as only this single copy (which is clearly a "First Impression", and No. 4 in the plate) has been found, it seems distinctly possible that only one sheet was printed with the error.

I would be interested to hear of another copy similar to the one illustrated.

RAGATZ REPLIES.

DEAR MR. SEVERN:

I note that Karl Hennig of Weimar, Germany, takes exception to my statement, recently published in the WEEKLY, that German dealers are charging American collectors much more than they are German collectors for the same things. I know from personal experience covering many months that this is the case, for a friend in Germany is buying things for me from dealers who send me the same things direct at several times the price. But I don't ask anyone to take my word for it—if anyone doubts the truth of my statement, let him read the translation of an article in the current issue of the Chicagoer Briefmarken-Zeitung, which I enclose:

"To our friends in Germany,

During the past few weeks we have received many complaints from collectors and dealers in regard to the high prices of stamps sent to them from Germany. Furthermore, every ship coming from Germany bringing consignments of stamps to us on approval, the prices of which were unanimously agreed to by German dealers, has convinced us that these prices are abnormal.

In view of this fact we have decided, in order to protect the interests of German stamp dealers as well as those of collectors, to give a few suggestions and some friendly advice.

Apparently the common opinion among German manufacturers and dealers is that the American people live in a land of milk and honey, a land where money pours into their laps. Although America is a country blessed with great natural resources, it is a fact that the enormous demands which are made upon the ordinary citizen use up his earnings, and because he must meet these unusually heavy demands, he is not inclined to pay without question any price asked for imported stamps, toys, or other articles without knowing clearly that he is receiving a fair equivalent.

With our own eyes we have seen approval selections sent from Germany for which the senders ask four, and in a few cases, five, times the prices asked at retail here. Here is a sample of several offers of German dealers.

PRICELIST OF STAMPS.

(An item is offered) for sale in Germany at 18 marks, which equals 30c U. S. A.

(The same item is offered) for sale in England at 3 shillings, which equals 60c U. S. A.

(The same item is offered) for sale in the U. S. at 1 dollar, which equals 100c U. S. A.

If the German dealer and collector wishes to continue in this course, he will soon discover that as far as his American customers are concerned, the ground will disappear from under his feet.

What we have just said is not meant as a threat, but as a friendly hint, for the sole purpose of making the whole inexhaustible field of philately acc to the public. Nevertheless, we close with the statement that 'fac facts', and should anyone feel hit b we are sorry; we cannot retract a it and must insist upon the gr good for the greatest number.—Ch er Briefmarken-Zeitung, January, (Nr.4, Bd.1), p. 68."

METERED MAIL.

By PERCY MCGRAW MANN.

An interesting philatelic field opens up for the collector by the appearance of Metered Mail.

Some years back we were greeted with a new invention for the counting, sealing, stamping and cancelling of mail, but the invention did not meet all the requirements needed from it. Today, a new era arises and The Pitney-Bowes Postage Meter has been so perfected that it is authorized by the Post Office Department for stamping and postmarking of all classes of mail in lieu of adhesive stamps.

The use of this invention gives the philatelic collector something new to think about—the pleasure derived from the collecting of metered mail are akin to the collecting of adhesive stamps, stamped envelopes, precancelled stamps, postmarks, entires, etc., combining as it does all of these subjects.

The time to begin the collecting of metered mail is NOW. The laggard in the collecting field misses all the good things which afterward become valuable when collectors awake to the interest to be found in collecting them. This happened when collectors at first ignored the aeroplane mail covers—later they were hot-foot after them at any old price.

What is metered mail?

The manufacturers of the Postage Meter tell us:

"Persistent efforts on the part of the large mailers throughout the Country to induce the Post Office Department to authorize a substitute of some kind for the adhesive stamp as evidence of prepayment of postage on first-class mail, finally culminated in the proposal of a system, early in 1920, which would in one sweep reduce by 50 per cent the work of handling outgoing mails in the Post Offices. This so aroused the interest of the Post Office Department that the Postmaster-General asked for and obtained from Congress, legislation extending the so-called 'permit' privilege to First Class Mail, under such rules and regulations as might be prescribed by his Department.

"The Post Office Department has accordingly issued a series of regulations governing the acceptance of mail matter without stamps affixed, but imprinted in the upper right-hand corner with a standardized form, representing a combination of the indicia of an adhesive stamp and postmark. In connection with printing this mark, these regulations provide for the use of a device having a detachable printing and recording mechanism to be set by the Postmaster and which automatically locks when impressions paid for are exhausted. The Pitney-Bowes Postage Meter is the first device of the type described, approved and authorized by the Department.

"In lieu of the adhesive stamp the Postage Meter prints on envelopes and cards of all ordinary sizes, the indicia herwith described:

Having a general form of the usual machine canceller and postmark the indicia used by the Postage Meter Company, which is a sample of that used in its Postage Meter, consists of a square frame containing "U. S. POSTAGE—PAID 2 CENTS—P.1" in three lines, the frame is flanked by seven horizontal wavy lines, twice as long on the left as on the right, and vertically at the left of the wavy lines is the mark "M.1." To the left of this "canceller" is the usual circular postmark, a double line circle containing "STAMFORD" at top and "CONN." at bottom, with the date "FEB 11—7 PM—1921" in three lines in the center.

"P.1" stands for Permit No. 1, and these permits are numbered from 1 up for each city. "M.1" stands for Meter No. 1, and these will be, it is understood, consecutive throughout. "P.1" for Philadelphia has been seen, it being used by John Wanamaker on January 2, 1920, for mailing charge account bills, and again on February 1, for the same purpose, although it may have been used at other times and probably was. The writer failed to note the meter number when shown one of these.

Now, the collector must not throw the suggestion to collect these metered mail covers aside, because they have more to them than the old printed matter permits, although these latter have their place in collections. The metered mail is dated and the indicia is in the color of the stamp it represents, i. e., the writer has a sample 1c in green, a 2c in red and a 10c in yellow, and any other value would be the same color as the adhesive stamp of the same value.

The sample 1c seen contains the following information on the envelope: "On Third and Fourth Class Mail the date of mailing is omitted in the postmark as this is a privilege accorded only to First Class Matter. Postage Meters print in colors conforming to the denomination of adhesive stamp represented." For use on post cards, the 1c green indicia would presumably contain the date of mailing.

For collecting purposes it is advisable to retain the entire cover if this is of a handy size, or if the envelope or other container is too large for mounting purposes cut the indicia out with suitable margins, but in this case retain the return card of the firm or individual using the postage meter and mount this with the indicia.

The writer will be pleased to see and chronicle any Metered Mail covers. The following are those so far seen:

JOS. GALLANT, HEMPSTEAD, N. Y.

TWO NEW BAHAMAS SETS.

Two separate issues of stamps to commemorate the same event are something new, writes Douglas B. Armstrong, in The London Daily Express. Yet that is what is taking place in the Crown Colony of Bermuda, where a difference of opinion between the Governor and the Colonial Assembly has given rise to a situation that would have intrigued the fancy of the late W. S. Gilbert.

This year is the tercentenary of the establishment of representative institutions in the island. The local assembly decided that the occasion might be fittingly celebrated by a special issue of postage stamps, and a copy of the resolution was forwarded to the Governor for approval. He replied that the same idea had occurred to him, and that a commemorative stamp had been prepared.

The Colonials, however, declined to accept the Governor's copy, proposing to substitute one by a local artist. It was pointed out, however, that this would involve considerable loss, as printing plates had actually been prepared, and it was agreed to utilize both designs for two distinct series of commemorative stamps.

Postage stamps of red and blue are now to hand printed in the first of the twin designs, duly inscribed "Bermuda Commemoration Stamp," with dates 1620-1920 and legend "Tercentenary of Establishment of Representative Institutions." Oval panels in the center contain in the right hand the King's head, and in the left a vignette of the seventeenth century sailing ship Sea Venture, in which Sir George Somers and the early colonists were cast away on the Bermudas in 1609.

The design of the second series is the work of J. W. Dale, of St. George.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Engraved "Guy" Stamps.

The 1c, 2c, 3c, 4c and 5c values of the Guy commemorative series were only printed from lithographic stones, but in January, 1911, the other values were issued printed from engraved plates. The designs are the same though the engraved process gives them a much more attractive appearance. Presumably it was the original intention to print all denominations from engraved plates for such plates were made as is proved by the existence of proof impressions from them in black.

CHAPTER XX.

The Coronation Stamps.

In June, 1911, a special series of eleven values was issued to commemorate the Coronation of His Majesty King George V. On the 15c the seal of the Colony is shown—"Fishermen bringing gifts to Brittania", similar to the design of the 30c Cabot stamp, while on the other ten denominations are portraits of various members of the Royal family, viz.:—1c, Queen Mary; 2c, King George V.; 3c, the Prince of Wales; 4c, Prince Albert; 5c, Princess Mary; 6c, Prince Henry; 8c, Prince George; 9c, the late Prince John; 10c, Queen Alexandra; and 12c, H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught.

There is a distinctive border for each stamp, the whole forming a very attractive series. The stamps were printed from line-engraved plates in sheets of 100, and, according to Gibbons' catalogue, they were engraved and printed by Messrs. De La Rue and Co., of London. We think, however, that this statement can hardly be correct, for the work bears none of the earmarks characteristic of this famous firm and the perforation of some of the values is quite unlike any issued for other stamps from this establishment. Possibly, like the preceding series, and the one which followed in 1919, they were manufactured by Whitehead, Morris & Co.

The perforation for the 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 10 cents values was the work of a comb machine gauging 13½x14, while for the other denominations a single line machine with an exact 14 gauge was used.

With the exception of the 1c, 2c and 8c, these stamps show little variation in shade. The most important variety occurs in the 8c. A number of sheets—possibly a separate printing—were printed with aniline ink so that the color shows through the paper very strongly. It is a distinct variety, and while it was long considered much rarer than the same value on white paper (indeed, in the current Gibbons' catalogue it is still priced five times as much), our own observation leads us to think that both are about the same value.

The 15c value is known entirely imperforate, though we doubt that any were ever sold for postage in this condition. Gibbons' lists the 2c of this type as having been issued in 1917 from a lithographic stone. We have been unable to trace any record of such a variety having been issued nor have we seen a copy, and we therefore list it with reserve.

CHAPTER XXI.

The Caribou Stamps.

The last of Newfoundland's postal issues appeared in 1919 and is a handsome series of twelve denominations commemorating the service of the Colony's brave sons in the great world war. The major portion of the design is the same for all values and shows a fine caribou head with enormous antlers, this being the emblem of the Newfoundland troops. On a scroll below on the 1c, 3c, 4c, 6c, 10c, 15c, 24c and 36c values is "Trail of the Caribou", and below this inscription is the name of some action in which Newfoundland troops took part. These form a glorious record of the part played in the war by Britain's oldest colony, viz.:—1c, Suvla Bay; 3c, Gueudecourt; 4c, Beaumont Hamel; 6c, Monchy; 10c, Steinbeck; 15c, Langemarck; 24c, Cabrai, and 36c, Combles.

The other values of the series commemorate the part taken by the Colonial sailor sons. Below the head is "Royal Naval Reserve" and under this is the proud motto "Ubique"—literally "Everywhere"—a fitting testimony to the ubiquity of the gallant seamen.

These stamps were engraved and printed by Whitehead, Morris & Co. on white wove paper, perforated 14.

The under-mentioned figures are said to represent the total printing of the series:—

1c	5,000,000	8c	50

CHAPTER XXII.

Air Post Stamps.

Newfoundland was much in the limelight in the early months of 1919 on account of the preparations being made by several intrepid airmen to fly across the Atlantic. The first to make the attempt were Messrs. Hawker and Grieve, and though their wonderful effort was abortive as they had to descend in the sea, the mail bag they carried was rescued and the letters delivered in England. All the letters were franked with a special stamp consisting of the 3c Caribou issue overprinted "First Trans-Atlantic—Airpost—April 1919" in four lines. Only 200 of these special stamps were issued and how many were carried on the airplane is not known, but as soon as it was certain that Hawker and Grieve had been rescued the Postmaster General of Newfoundland offered the balance for sale. As Secretary of the Permanent Marine Disasters Fund he bought these stamps at face value and then offered them for public sale at $25.00 each. The stamps were quickly sold and the transaction showed a handsome profit to the charitable fund. To authenticate the stamps the Postmaster marked them on the gummed side with his initials, "J.A."

In June, the Atlantic was successfully crossed by Captain John Alcock and Lieut. A. Whitten Brown in a Vickers Vimy machine and the gallant pair carried with him a Royal Mail bag containing a number of letters franked with a special $1 stamp in addition to the fee demanded for ordinary postage. These special stamps were made by overprinting some of the 15c stamps of the Caribou series with "Trans-Atlantic—Air Post—1919—One Dollar" in four lines in black. Varieties are known with comma after "Air Post" omitted.

ncy was changed and the decimal mps were issued, there was quite a g stock of the pence stamps on hand. r. King tells us that as late as April, 89, the following quantities were still stock:—

3d,	1,029 stamps
4d,	18,141 stamps
5d,	17,205 stamps
6d,	29,937 stamps
6½d,	4,776 stamps
8d,	4,165 stamps
1s,	14,076 stamps

Considering the quantities that had en sold to collectors and dealers since ey were withdrawn from use, the orig-al remainders must have been very rge.

Similarly with every change made ere were always a number of stamps ft over and usually these were sold anyone asking for them, and as there as usually a brisk demand, it is safe assume that Newfoundland lost very tle money on its remainders.

In 1899 it was decided to have a earance of all obsolete issues and the llowing public notice was made of is intention:—

"POST OFFICE NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that on 2nd y of January, 1900, all obsolete POST-E STAMPS will be destroyed, and that ter that date the only stamps that will on sale by the Postal Department will the ½, 1, 2, 3, and 5 cent of the yal issues, and the 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 15, , 30, 35, and 60 cent of the Cabot sue.

J. O. FRASER,
Postmaster-General.

ENERAL POST OFFICE
T. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, 7th November, 1899."

While this notice undoubtedly led to eavy buying on the part of local specu-tors, there were still a large number f stamps left and a total of 433,000 amps of all denominations were burned 1 Jan. 3rd and 4th, 1900.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Destruction of Plates.

The plates, dies, etc., used in the pro-uction of the Cabot series were de-royed in 1897, as explained in Chap-r XIV, and in 1898 the plates in the ands of the British-American Bank ote Company were ordered to be de-royed. The following notice was pub-shed to show that this was done:—

"OTTAWA, May 27th, 1898.

I hereby certify that I was present ith the Auditor-General of Newfound-nd (Mr. Berteau) and did see the llowing plates of Newfoundland Post-ge Stamps destroyed this day:—One late, ½ cent postage; one plate, 1 cent ostage; two plates, 3 cent postage; one plate, 5 cent postage; one plate, 10 cent postage.

(Signed) G. B. BURLAND,
President, British American Bank Note Co., Ottawa.
(Countersigned) F. C. BERTEAU."

Finally in December of the same year instructions were given to the American Bank Note Company, of New York, to destroy the dies and plates of all Newfoundland issues in their possession with the exception of those of the Royal portrait series of 1897-98 then current. This was accordingly done in January, 1899, and a certificate to this effect issued by the Company, viz.:—

"AMERICAN BANK NOTE COMPANY.
NEW YORK, Jan. 23rd, 1899.

It is hereby certified that, in accordance with instructions, dated the 24th of December, 1898, from J. Alexander Robinson, Esq., Colonial Secretary of Newfoundland, there have this day been destroyed in our presence, the following plates, dies and rolls used in the preparation of Postage Stamps for Newfoundland, viz.:—

1 plate 110 1 cent stamps.
1 plate 100 2 cent stamps.
1 plate 100 3 cent stamps.
1 plate 100 5 cent stamps.
1 plate 100 6 cent stamps.
1 plate 100 10 cent stamps.
1 plate 100 12 cent stamps.
1 plate 100 13 cent stamps.
1 plate 100 24 cent stamps.
9 original dies of above stamps.
5 rolls containing same.

Which comprises the entire quantity of plates, dies and rolls engraved by this Company or its predecessors for Newfoundland, excepting only those of the current issue of Postage Stamps.

For Bowring and Archibald,
CHAS. W. BOWRING,
Member of Firm.
For American Bank Note Company,
T. H. FREELAND,
Secretary and Manager."

An official notice informing the public of this destruction of the plates, etc., was published in the Newfoundland papers in February, 1899.

Thus all the plates for the decimal stamps issued between 1866 and 1896 as well as the Cabot series of 1897 have been destroyed as well as the dies used in producing those plates. It is highly probable that the plates for the pence series have also been destroyed, though we can find no official record of this having been done. The dies, or some of them at any rate, were in the possession of Messrs. Perkins, Bacon and Co. some few years ago.

SURCH. 1c ON 2c U. S. POST CARDS.

Mr. William W. Randall's article on the surcharged. or as the Post Office Department calls them—"revalued"—2c red Jefferson cards will not be printed until the issue of March 19. He is sparing no end of work on the manuscript to make it as complete and authentic as possible. He is in touch with the authorities in Washington. the postmasters who have surcharged the locally issued provisional cards, collectors, dealers, and in fact everybody who knows anything about this issue of U. S. post cards. Up to date Mr. Randall states that there are known to him 74 varieties of this provisional issue, from 49 different localities, mainly the large metropolitan cities, of course. When his exclusive list appears in this paper, it will be correct and authentic in every way. The Post Card Society, through Mr. S. Schachne, the veteran dealer in post cards, has obtained permission to copy Mr. Randall's article in their Bulletin. The interest in these cards is now nation-wide, and these Government provisional cards are being the means of reviving an interest in this much neglected branch of U. S. philately. Mr. Randall, while a dealer in U. S. stamps, does not handle post cards, but is a collector of more than 20 years' standing. He will appreciate any help that collectors of the "revalued" cards can give him. His address is Times Sq. P. O., New York.

DO YOU KNOW YOUR STAMPS?

Here are seventeen questions propounded by George A. Hunt of Woburn, Mass. He informs us that they can all be very easily answered, and to ascertain whether his statement is true we offer ten copies of our new booklet soon to be issued, "The Stamps of Nova Scotia," to the ten contestants sending in the best solutions. Correspondence may be addressed to Mr. Severn at his Chicago office. Closing date Mar. 15.

(1) What stamp has the word Trinidad on it in no way connected with a British Colony?

(2) What stamp has the word "wharf" on it?

(3) You'll see them on logs and in the water, if your eyes are quite sharp you'll find them in stamps?

(4) What U. S. stamp has a famous Count's picture on it?

(5) What stamp has a large garter upon it and at the same time has no watermark?

(6) What foreign stamp has George Washington's portrait on it?

(7) Ships are found on stamps galore, some have two sails and some have more, yet one little stamp pictures a ship with sails that count up to over a score?

(8) One fish is normal and one fish is upside down and strange to say you'll find the two fishes on a little gray stamp?

(9) What So. American stamp has a word on it of five letters that reads the same backwards as forwards?

(10) Birds and bugs, fishes and ships, houses and temples, mosques and towers, most everything known is depicted on stamps. You'll even find "mosquito" on one little 8 center, and its funny too the color of a real mosquito is the color of this stamp too?

(11) What is the oldest known object depicted on postage stamps?

(12) What stamp catalogs more in normal condition than it does with its numerals inverted?

(13) What stamp has the word "feet" on it?

(14) What stamp has a picture of Cupids on it?

(15) What postage stamp has the word Railway repeated on it twice?

(16) A certain stamp would have a value of 14 cents if its original value and surcharged values were added together. What is it?

(17) A certain green stamp, face value 1 cent, has the value reversed at the east but it's O. K. at the west?

These are all unused, and if you know of a collector go after him. This offer stands by itself.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Early—Some weeks ago we asked for information regarding the earlier dates of use of "first-class mail" permits and the letters of a half-dozen correspondents are before us as a consequence. The earliest date, except one, submitted comes from Mr. Allen Henry Wright of San Diego, California, whose cover "was mailed by the American Smelting & Refining Co. of New York on Aug. 31st, 1920, under Permit No. 1, First-Class Mail, Postage 2c Paid." Mr. H. C. Barr sends a photostat reproduction of an envelope that was used by the Kennecott Copper Co., in mailing its September 30th dividend checks; and the Permit is No. 1, New York. Speaking of the Kennecott Company's enterprise, Mr. Allen F. Hane, Bradford, Pa., says: "I am in the local post office here and this was the first that any one in the 'force' had noticed." Henry M. Walter writes: "I have two copies. Both are used in Washington by Lonsburgh & Bros.; one is dated Sept. 30th, 1920, and the other June 30, 1920. The permit issued in June is number 134 and the one in September is number 1. Can you tell me cause for a change in number?" We are puzzled by the June 30th date mentioned by Mr. Walter in connection with its high Permit No. 134; and we are hopeful that some explanation will be forthcoming to account for the seeming inconsistency. Mr. Fred Fisher has a Number 1 Permit of Los Angeles, dated September 30th, 1920, and used by Barker Brothers.

Heavy—"Why, O why, are dollar values of recent U. S. issues so comparatively common?" asks little Rollo, among others, and to him and them we make reply. The Federal Reserve Bank at Chicago, for instance, receives thousands of packages of old and mutilated currency from member banks, in the course of a week, the postage on each ranging from well under a dollar to much over $10. The mutilated currency is cut in half by machine, after the bills are assembled and the count verified; and one-half is sent to the Treasury Department at Washington by parcel post registered mail in specially sealed bags; and postage to the amount of $8 or $9 usually is paid. When word comes from Washington that the bag with the first half of the bills has been received, the second half follows. So while the individual banks receive their new bills in due time, it follows that when it comes to "quantity" mail, with the dollar values, the Treasury Department at Washington and the Federal Reserve Banks are the scenes of "stamp scatteration"; and lest some one asks if the stamps go to waste, we hasten to assure the questioner that they do not. They are used temporarily for checking purposes and counting the number of packages; and then, through some channel or other, they come into the hands of dealers and collectors. Everything must be done in an approved and regular way, of course.

"Sir"—Here is a modern instance. Mr. J. Rausch of San Francisco writes: "I have been trying to get the Pilgrim stamps here in San Francisco, but it seems that our city is not to have them on sale. I wrote to the postmaster at Washington, enclosing fifty cents for the stamps, and instead of the expected stamps I received the following reply. Evidently, Washington does not want to be bothered with small orders for stamps." Here is what the postmaster of Washington writes: "Receipt is acknowledged of your commission dated January 25, 1921, enclosing $0.50 in payment of postage stamps of the Pilgrim issue. In reply you are informed that the number of mail orders for postage stamped paper has increased to such an extent requiring so much time and labor, that it has become necessary for this office to discontinue the practice of filling them. Your remittance is accordingly returned herewith." We do not suppose that this state of affairs requires the appointing of a senatorial investigating committee, but it would appear that it would be easier to fill an order for the stamps in question than to write the explanatory letter. However, the reference to "postage stamped paper" mystifies us, used in its relation to the Pilgrim stamps; and it is not easy to follow the processes of the official mind, in this connection.

Irony—We are informed by Mr. Lowell J. Ragatz that in the January number of Current History, Louise Majerius De Larochette, in the course of her article, "A Grand Duchess Who Lost Her Crown," says: "All these different questions were stirred up once more when the startling news came that ex-Grand Duchess Marie Adelaide was entering a Carmelite convent in Italy. So this was to be the life-goal of the girl whom everybody was calling 'the spoiled child of Europe' only seven years ago. She has run away from the noise and glare of publicity but her picture is still on all the stamps and her stamps are sent every day to all the five parts of the world. Such is sometimes the irony of destiny." It only is to be added that the stamps in question are those of Luxemburg bearing the attractive features of Marie Adelaide.

Unjust—Here is a letter that calls for comment: "Your remarks about the 'stampless' meeting of the philatelic society were deserved. I think that the meetings of several societies that I have been in touch with are not on a plane to attract collectors whose evenings are well occupied ordinarily. I have never found any inspiration in attending meetings, and I wish that the 'powers that be' would get their heads together and try to remedy conditions." The expressions were not our own but those of a correspondent who relieved his criticism by a whimsical touch. The letter of our present correspondent is not an agreeable one and moreover it is unfair. He is too hoity-toity. If he would help to attain the desired improvement in "tone" by doing some of the work necessary to keep a stamp society on the proper elevation, he would have some basis for his statements. We have attended meetings of local philatelic societies almost without a break since 1888 and while at times, they degenerated into dreary affairs, yet on the average, they have been worth while. Too many members are apt to assume an attitude of waiting to be served instead of pitching in and doing some of the carrying themselves. There usually are a few chaps who take a working interest in society conduct; and if they are given practical encouragement, meetings will not drag. Let the man who stands critically aloof come forth with helpful suggestions and see how eagerly the entertainment committee will hear and heed him. The first thing he knows he will be impressed into service and then, what a pleasing cadence comments of the kind voiced by our correspondent will have for his ears. Since the advent of the entertainment committee, the philatelic societies are giving a better account of themselves; and if this committee is backed up, it will be on its mettle.

TRIALS OF A PHILATELIST FROM "NO MAN'S LAND".

By Clinton L. Chalfant.

When after a service of a year and a half in the good old U. S. A. the writer went "across"; he had visions of securing some specimens for his small collection, provided he was not killed by Fritz.

The regiment was billeted at one of the numerous little French villages before going to the front. Much to his surprise, there was no post office nor stores. The mail for the natives was delivered by a carrier. As luck would have it the armistice was signed by the time the regiment reached Verdun and vicinity where it was detailed on road work for nearly nine months.

After a few months the writer secured a three-day pass to Toul, and knowing only "A. E. F. French", finally, with much labor, secured at the post office in that city a set of the current French stamps, including charity issues. Having to make a number of other purchases, the high prices charged the Americans in Europe were just being experienced by this "stamp fiend". No effort was made to hunt for a stamp shop for fears of profiteering. The Scott Stamp Catalogue had been left at home, and francs were running short at that time.

The next venture was when he took "French leave" and went to Luxembourg. A full mint set and some extras were secured from the postal clerk. When looking around, a gentleman was seen making signs to us which, in these Prohibition days, would lead one to think he had something on his hip or in the cellar. It developed, however, that he was accommodating the man from No Man's Land and secured for him at face, a set of the Luxembourg "officials."

Time was getting short for remaining in the city without proper leave, so the writer hurried on and saw a stamp shop. Scott catalogue or no catalogue, or profiteering, a true collector could not pass this by, so in we went to buy and a little purchase of Luxemburgers, not natives, was made. Back to camp and No Man's Land, when luckily we got on the A. E. F. Press trip. Of course, in Paris for only a day, even the most ardent collector forgot stamps. Arriving in Coblentz, Germany, as soon as the lectures were over, Ehrenbreitstein visited and other places of interest seen, a bee-line was taken for the post office and the current issue secured. After much persuasion with the stamp clerk a ten and fifteen pfennig with a surcharge which struck the eye was sold to the writer. The hesitancy of the clerk was understood about parting with these stamps to an American soldier as they were for the relief of German wounded, in other words, the Red Cross stamps. It is quite likely the writer was taken for a member of the American Intelligence Department and feared he would get in trouble for selling these stamps. Our time being exhausted at Coblentz, we went down the Rhine to Cologne, the British bridge head. After going into various shops, the stamp shop was cached. Just as the clerk had laid out a supply of German occupation stamps, a cry was made, "Hurry, we must catch the train for Paris." Thus ended that stamp hunt.

So far on the hunt we had escaped being stung as all of the small purchases had, with one exception, been at the post offices, but before leaving Brest for good old America we saw some great rarities, and you should hear the shop keeper talk.

According to the story, a widow of a French officer, killed in Russia by the Revolutionists had sent the stamps to her. This officer was close to the Grand Duke Michel in whose interest these very rare stamps were issued. Those in question were the Romanoff issue from 1k to 50k inclusive (1917) surcharged on blocks of four with crossed swords, Liberty cap and an inscription. The entire lot for 150 francs. This looked good. When asked what he would take if one purchased the entire set, the reply was he "could make no reduction as he was selling them for the widow". This was not a stamp shop as these were the only stamps he had. The queer thing was each block of four was the same price. We risked a 50k and were pleased to find by a Yvert & Tellier catalogue the set listed, but imagine our surprise to find the lower values catalogued at only ten and fifteen centimes for which 15 francs were asked. We were "delighted" as T. R. would say to find the 50k catalogued at 20fr, but alas, when we reached home we find Scott saying the issue was not legitimate, despite the fact that this gallant French officer (said the shop keeper), was the author of the following lines which appear on the cover of my block of four. 'Timbres Russes ; surcharge revolutionnaire (rarete)."

While the war stamps are interesting I begin to value more and more British North America, U. S. A. and colonies. "America First", appeals to the writer.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—H. E. Harris & Co., 56 Cummings Rd., Boston, Mass., would like to hear from anyone who has had unsatisfactory dealings with the Hiordan-Warner-Mego combination down in Argentine Republic. Mr Harris wants all the information possible and will go the limit so far as expense is concerned in putting these parties out of business.

—Would you like a sample copy of a new stamp paper? If so, write the Collectors' Gazette, 4715 Live Oak St., Dallas, Tex., and enclose stamp for postage.

—A recent number of the Outlook contained an article by Charles Lathrop Pack illustrated and entitled "America's Forests—A Heritage and Hope."

—T. H. Ames sends us a clipping from a local paper giving the particulars of the season's tenth meeting of the Montclair (N. J.) Philatelic Society There were some nineteen members and visitors present. Collectors nearby who are interested should communicate with Mr. Ames.

—We have received the catalog of Kelton & Sloan's fourth auction sale. Some 200 lots of U. S. are listed and there is also a fine variety of foreign, comprising a thousand lots. The dates of the sale are March 4 and 5, at 2 P. M. each day at R. 811, 116 Nassau St., N. Y. City.

—"I have long been a reader of Mekeel's but I have hesitated about advertising because I felt that my stock was not large enough to appeal to most of your readers. Mr. Roessler however says any kind of a stamp ad pays in the Weekly and there are dealers advertising now, whose ads seem to indicate that their business is no larger than mine. Therefore I am going to break into adlets.—Chas. F. Schell.

—Once in a while a little joke is made about the postage stamp that does not have a philatelic origin. The following verse is one of several that appear in "Sylvie and Bruno" published about 1890. "Sylvie and Bruno" by Lewis Carroll (the Author of "Alice in Wonderland,"etc.) is a book, part of which is a dream in which quite unusual things happen. This verse is taken from the dream:—

He thought he saw an Albatross
That fluttered round the lamp:
He looked again, and found it was A Penny-Postage-Stamp.
"You'd best be getting home," he said;
"The nights are very damp!"

—John G. Jewett.

NEWFOUNDLAND 2c MAP.

By Percy McGraw Mann.

On page 85, Feb. 5 edition of the Weekly, in Mr. Poole's capable article on "The Stamps of Newfoundland," the author states that the wherefore of the issue of the 2c Map stamp is a mystery.

It seems that there was a very good reason for the issuance of the map stamp. A consignment of the 2c vermilion King Edward VII stamps were on board of a vessel that was wrecked off the coast of Maine. These were washed ashore and became not only water soaked but public property of anyone who filched them. News of the loss and the possibility of the stamps being used without having been bought from the government necessitated not only the ordering of new stamps or a duplication of the order and consignment, but also a change of design to render the old design invalid. The first design considered in the haste with which they were ordered and prepared was a map of Newfoundland.

If I may be permitted, I will tell a little tale about some of the lost vermilion stamps. They came on the stamp market in large blocks and sheets, but minus gum and with a washy appearance. When first sold at the Philadelphia Stamp Club auction, the capable autioneer, Mr. Whiteside, in order to enhance their sale told a tale about having purchased a nice fresh cod for his Friday meal of the previous week, and, lo and behold! when the cod was opened he found the stamps!

—a real bargain! Collection of about 4,500 varieties, practically all 19th Century (before 1901), that will catalog around $500—(perhaps $600). Average condition runs very good and there are some fine stamps not usually found in a collection of this size. I note Canada Jubilee ½c to 50c unused o. g. superb; Netherlands 1899, ½c to 5 gulden unused o. g.; Newfoundland 1866. 10c, 12c, 24c, and many other good stamps from nearly every country that issued stamps up to that time.

There are about 475 good stamps cat. 25c to $4 each that total about $275 catalog and these alone are worth the price for the whole collection. Take these out and there still remains a collection of 4,000 varieties that will catalog about $300. The best stamp in the book is a really fine U. S. 90c 1869 for which I will gladly pay $15 cash.

First check for $110 gets the collection. Other checks will be returned.

I have U. S. stamps no other dealer in the world can supply and foreign that you see about once in a life-time. Whatever you want, this is the place to get it!

ELLIOTT PERRY
Box 323, WESTFIELD, NEW JERSEY.

COULD YOU USE SOME MONEY?

If so, I have the ready cash for anything fine in U. S. I desire choice pieces or entire collections and will pay top notch prices for good things. I also want choice early Canada such as a superb 12d black, choice pieces from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick or other British North America, as well as early unusual things from the British Possessions in the West Indies. I cater only to that class of trade that desires the best the market has to offer, and handling stamps as a pleasure instead of a business means no overhead—hence, can pay top notch prices and still sell at fair figures. My success in doing this is one of the reasons for the howls from the Anvil Chorus.

Others have sent me their collections after offering them elsewhere and have found this is the place to sell. Why waste time offering them elsewhere?

Also want to buy blocks in mint condition of U. S. 1894-1916 inclusive. All denominations except the commoner 1c and 2c. What have you to offer? No Parcel Post or Dues wanted.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

WE PETITION.

We humbly petition the patrons of the WEEKLY not to send notes about new issues or varieties to either Portland or Beverly. This is plainly written in understandable English. Such matter should go to either Mr. Ward or Mr. Smith. as per notice at the head of this department.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

UNITED STATES.—The Pilgrim stamps are beginning to run to shades and many of our readers are advising us of this fact. Some of them have also located minor plate varieties, Mr. Paul Biglow calling our attention especially to sheet number 12190 of the 1c. He states that several stamps in the upper panes show an "0" in "1920" so defective that it resembles a "6". This variety he writes is particularly noticeable throughout the ninth horizontal row. We have as yet to learn of any major varieties of the issue such as part perforates, imperforates, double prints, etc. Some plates show slight shifts, but those that I have seen are of very minor importance.

Mr. Harry Robson calls our attention to the fact that he has seen a 25c strip Narcotic stamp. We mentioned this fact some months ago but the Bureau failed to confirm the information. The matter is again being taken up with them and if it is learned that such a series exists our readers will be fully advised.

There has been quite a few remarks in the philatelic press here of late regarding the use of a permit to cover first class mail. From the remarks one would be led to believe that this was a new innovation but as a matter of fact there was reported such a use of the permit through this chronicle some months back. I do not happen to have a postal guide handy but if my memory serves me correctly the post office granted such permission through an order dated May, 1919. John Wanamaker used permit number 1 in Philadelphia to send out his monthly statements, the Pennsylvania state automobile licenses were sent out from Harrisburg by permit number 1 of that city, but the first seen came from a small New York town and was chronicled at the time. Mr. J. M. Spense calls our attention to one used in Baltimore, dated January 3, 1921, and Mr. S. A. Glassell to one used in Los Angeles on July 30, 1920. There is so much red tape connected with the sending of letters under such a permit that there will have to be some changes in the regulations before it becomes popular, besides postal clerks being used to permits on second class mail only are likely to fail to give such letters the attention usually given first class mail.

This week I have received quite a few new 2c and 3c envelopes overprinted in Louisville and have official advice that they have completed their work and returned the die to Washington. We anxiously await the using of this die in some other city. Our very active correspondent Mr. R. H. Mason sends us two more window envelopes, one overprinted in Boston for a firm located in Laconia, N. H., and a second overprinted in Oklahoma City for use in McAlester. This last envelope, by the way, is the first window that we have had the pleasure of chronicling from Oklahoma City. Mr. Mason also sends a new provisional from Portland. Through the courtesy of the Hilton Stamp Company I am enabled to chronicle a San Francisco over print on buff.

Mr. W. W. Randall calls attention to the fact that New York is using two different dies for overprinting their postals, differing in the size of the serif to the figure "1" and the size of "CENT". Both types of overprint have been applied to both types of postal card.

Our readers are still locating minor varieties in the sheets of the offset prints of the 2c stamps and we desire to thank Mr. Otto Henker for calling our attention to a very strong gash in Washington's cheek on the 96th stamp in sheet 12190. Mr. Henker, however, does not advise as to which pane.

We wish to thank Messrs. Julius Kurtz, W. A. Sisson, Tolbert Wells, J. H. Foster, G. W. Lord and J. Rausch for notes of interest.

BARBADOS.—Stamp Collecting notes that the design for the new issue of postage stamps has been approved and the die and plate are in the engraver's hands. The values will be the same as in the last issue and the stamps will be produced in one operation from copper plates. The colors will be in accordance with the copperplate color scheme.

BELGIUM.—Mr. Henry Hooreman advises that we may expect a new stamp with the King's head in a more reduced size than the former issue and which will show progress in the betterment of engraving. The work this time will be done by Montenner. Mr. Hooreman adds that the new stamp will show the King's head or effigy in a medallion and will be put on sale the beginning of March.

SUDDEN SERVICE
Announces the Purchase of the entire stock of stamps and good will of the business formerly conducted by Mr. Paul P. Murray of St. Louis. Mr. Murray has accepted a position with our firm and will devote his time to the classification of "rare stamps for critical collectors."

If you are an advanced collector and are in search of the "very fine" and "unusual"—better slip a memo to St. Louis for sudden service.

By Chas. S. Thompson.

United States.—The $1 Stock Transfer with red schg. comes with overprint reading down as well as up. A recent lot of about 200 copies yielded one specimen with overprint down, as indicated.

Albania.—Nos. 62 to 68, in addition to other peculiarities, have the "R" of the word "SHQIPETARE" produced by breaking the bottom out of a "B". In some copies most of the letter remains, apparently making an error of spelling. Only in a very few cases was a regular "R" used, the proportion being about 10 per cent or less.

Australia.—The 2d George, brown-orange, has been added to the current set to pay increased postage rate on letters.

Belgium.—The current Albert set has been augmented by the addition of a 3c stamp, dark slate. They are evidently printed in sheets of 400, separated into four panes by gutters the width of one stamp, with a broad colored line surrounding each pane.

Fiume.—The writer's suspicions, expressed in a recent number, are abundantly justified. The "Reggenza Italiana Del Carnaro" set of surcharges runs to no less than 35 varieties, not counting the usual crop of inverts, etc., which are also said to exist.

In addition to the 19 varieties for Quarnero, there are eight each for Arbe and Veglia, making the above total of 35. Arbe and Veglia are a couple of half-horse power, one cylinder islands of the former Austro-Hungarian "Küstenland", occupied by the tatterdemalion troops of Annunzio, and the two special series were produced for the "use" of the troops while on the islands.

It has been stated that the only income of Fiume during the "regime d'Annunzio" has been derived from the sale of postage(?) stamps, and considering the ad-infinitum-ad-nauseam number of these, the income must have been considerable.

The complete evidence of this latest crime is as follows: Quarnero, 1 on 5, 2 on 25, 5, 10, 15 on 10, 15 on 20, 15 on 25, 20, 25, 25 on 10, 50 on 20, 55 on 5, 1L on 10c, 1L on 25c, 2L on 5c, 5L on 10c, 10L on 20c, Special Deliveries, 30 on 20, 50 on 5, made by adding ESPRESSO to the rest of it: Arbe, 5, 10, 20, 25, 50 on 20, 55 on 5, and the two Specials: same for Veglia. It is a fortunate thing that Gabriel never heard of the joyous custom of making precancels, and it is equal ground for rejoicing that he didn't capture the Thousand Islands.

The news was previously given out that the plates from which the "Legion" issue was made had been destroyed: then it was said that they were not, and that the present printing was made in order to get stamps for the purpose stated. Now it is again stated that the plates have been destroyed, by which is probably meant that the cliches have been taken apart and cleaned up ready for the next experiment.

Both small and large type were used in making some of the surcharges, probably all of them, as there are some specimens which show type ½ mm. higher, with the overprint 1 mm. longer than in others.

Italian dealers offer the Arbe and Veglia sets of 8 stamps at 40l, or about $1.50 at present exchange rates. For the Legion set of four, without surcharge, they demand 80l=$3, and for the Quarnero set of 18 (lacking the 1l on 25c), 125l=$3.70. As Omar says, "Well, let them keep it!"

Lombardy Venice.—Examination of several hundred copies of No. 4 yielded one copy on ribbed paper which has K. F. POST. instead of the usual K. K.

Roman States.—A cover posted Nov. 14, 1856, and addressed to Benj. F. Angel, Genesee, New York, which bears an unlisted variety, has just come into my possession. There are two pairs of 8 baj., and a single 6 baj., the latter on very noticeably ribbed paper. This variety is not listed in any catalog. In addition to several French postmarks, the cover bears a U. S. obliteration, "5 Dec. 12, N. York R. R. Pkt.," the last word of which falls on the unlisted stamp.

Somali Coast.—A lot of blocks with inverted centres, recently purchased from a New York auction firm, yielded a block of 4 of the 50c green and orange, 1902 issue, imperforate between, vertically. So that it may be noticed that even in New York they occasionally overlook something.

In this connection, it may be pertinent to say that there is ample evidence that the inverted centres of Somali were sold in the colony, and many of them carried letters to Europe. At least two eminent authorities admit this, and two European catalogers list them. Therefore it is hard to understand why they should not be listed here, the argument that most of them emanated from Paris being utterly beside the question. On this ground all French Colonial issues would have to be excluded from catalogs, as every one knows that 99 per cent of every dealer's supply comes direct from Paris! The prices asked for these stamps in that same Paris does not lead one to believe that they are unappreciated by the French even though Champion ignores them in his catalog. An order for the stamps will always be filled—at a good stiff price.

HIS SPECIALTY.

There are specialists in most things from brass to foreign stamps,
From Hepplewhite and Adam right down to Roman lamps.
But philately's shining genius is a man whose name I know,
Who dwells aloft where golden Strand
This joyful wight owns frantic love for one chaste stamp alone,
And albums numb'ring ninety-four he's reached—in bright marone.
Mahogany shelves do house his tomes;
each tome boasts lock and key.
Steam heat pervades the chamber's length; electric light shines free.

He's got the thing imperf. and perf., in sheet, roll, block, and pair.
Entires are there in solid yards, with cancellations rare.
He has the stamp in violet, in shades
hot, luke, and cold—
That wondrous hue in every tone he'll to your eyes unfold.
And then by easy gradients he'll dazzle
you with mauve,
Till what with that and purples you're nearly blind, by Jove!
And all the day they roll "as thick as leaves in Vallambrosa," Great vans of brimming, bursting sacks
—some even from Formosa!

He's got the thing on wove galore, on laid, rag paper too,
On soft, pelure, hard, and Cowan—this last might seem Napoo!
There's perf. by pin, there's roulette wide, and comb in all its glory.
You'll gather he's a Croesus—but that's another story.
But the gem of all's a rotary, a sheet
in violet-blue;
It made a modiste's fortune, so tells me Sister Sue.
Yet the only thing that's wanting, his happy cup to fill,
Is that elusive, daring shade, blue-violet
—come it will!

He has a staff of experts 'way in an Army hut—
Pick of philately's basket, none of your common rut.
They hunt the snark—the watermark I mean—'tis all the same;
They tell it by its bubble, for benzine is much too tame.
And yet this stamp's no rarity, you'll meet it without end;
In fact, it has a well known name—is called "The Dealer's Friend"!
You'll meet it in War Packets cheap,
and in Neuropes as well,
And it turns up by the hundred in sacks
they make to sell.

Our friend has now a catalogue—a guinea is the price;
Two hundred deckle pages, and of paper known as "rice."
There are thousands of varieties, with illustrations shown,
Depicting every brain wave to which a comp. is prone.

* * * * * *

The B. P.'s not admitted yet. Perhaps it's better so,
For ills that end in -itis still an upward trend do show.
No doubt the wily reader, keen, has fathomed now this lay
Of the glorious Three Cent label in current U. S. A.

By FRED. J. MELVILLE.

The stamp album is the world parvo, and no small part of the fascin tion and charm collectors find in pursuit of their hobby is aroused by panorama of people and countries wh are brought to our ken in turning o the variegated pages of our albu The war has greatly increased the terest we find in the pursuit of stam and among the most notable features the influence of the world-war on stamp album is the more detailed g graphical and political interest wh the stamp album of to-day denotes.

A large number of countries ha gained their independence, or at le their liberation from hostile and pressive tyrant races. These ne freed countries in many cases had ne been represented in our stamp albu as they had not hitherto enjoyed in pendence in postal organisation any m than in political government. Now stamp album is enlarged and the pa rama of stamp issues gives us a clo and more intimate survey of the nati of the world.

The Holy Land of Palestine is of the countries which under the l tyranny of the Turk had no separ postal organisation until the war, a the dweller in Lebanon or Nazareth any of the places whose names are cred and historic memories, was un the necessity of committing his lett to the insecure and inefficient postal s vice of the Turks, and frank them w the Moslem symbols of the crescent a the thoughra. In the larger cities Jerusalem, Jaffa, Haifa and Beirut t had the option of using the posts stamps of the various post offices of Great Powers in the Levant, whi being more dependable and trustwort were crushing competitors with the c rupt Turkish postal administration.

Early in the war, in 1915, the Tu issued special overprinted stamps for use of their troops in Palestine, on Sinai front. The overprint reads "T Sina" (Mount Sinai) in Turkish ch acters, and occurs on five stamps of resuscitated issues, the 5 and 10 p (interior) of 1901, the 20 paras an piastre of 1909-10, and the 5 piastres 1913.

The Turks were pushed back out Palestine by the British forces, w gained the complete mastery of country in 1917 and have occupied until July 1st of the present year. Ea in the course of our occupation a pos organisation was developed by the m tary administration in order to stir late the revival of trade, and on Dece ber 9th, 1917, the preparation of spe postage stamps was authorised.

The stamps, known as the E. E. (Egyptian Expeditionary Force) stam were used throughout the territory Palestine in British occupation, co prising an area of 9000 square m (about 5,000 square miles less than Palestine of Turkish domination) lying west of the Jordan. From 1 until the present year this territory officially styled "Occupied Enemy Ter tory Administration (South)" and headquarters were in Palestine.

The severely simple design of the E. F. stamps was prepared, and the f stamps were printed at Cairo by Typographical Department of the S vey of Egypt. The design is n too familiar to call for any descript save to point out that the English scription and value are repeated in Arabic.

The stamps are surface-printed sheets of 120 (ten horizontal rows twelve stamps) just like a pane of English stamps, and the printi throughout have been on the Brit stamp paper, watermarked Royal Cyp "in column," or, as it used to be cal "repeated." The plates were construc much in the same manner as the pres English stamps. From the "Palest News" of August 1, 1918, we learn th

For these stamps, also, the British stem of contract letters and figures "controls") was used, and a "jubilee" ne extends round the entire group of amps to protect the outer edges of ie stamp clichés.

The first stamp, the 1 piastre deep ue, was rouletted, as was its succesr, the 1 piastre blue, the roulette gaugg approximately 20.

* * * * * *

The stamps printed in Egypt at the urvey Office are summed up in the llowing table:—

ONE PIASTRE.

irst issue, February 10th, 1918. Colour, very deep blue. Ungummed paper. Rouletted 20. Control A18. Printing 175 sheets=21,000 stamps.

econd issue, March 5, 1918. Colour, ultramarine. Gummed paper. Rouletted 20. Control C18. Printing 2824 sheets=338,880 stamps.

PROVISIONAL 5 MILLIEMES.

Surcharged in black from electrotype verprint plate of 120 set, on the 1 piastre stamps, as above.

irst issue, February 16, 1918. Colour, blue. Ungummed paper. Rouletted. Control B18A. Printing 50 sheets=6000 stamps.

econd issue, March 5, 1918. Colour, blue. Gummed paper. Rouletted. Control C18B. Printing 463 sheets=55,560 stamps.

hird issue, May 13, 1918. As last, but Control D18C. Printing 451 sheets=54.120 stamps.

There are a number of minor defects the overprint, but only one important ror, occurring in the first printing on ngummed paper, reading "MILLIME" or "MILLIEME," in the tenth stamp the top row.

* * * * * *

The lack of proper facilities for perorating the stamps, together with the opular demand for a British occupation sue, led to the placing of the printing ontract for subsequent issues of the E. E. F. stamps with Messrs. Harrison Sons, Ltd., of London, in the spring f 1918. The London-printed stamps ere printed in sheets of 240 and are s follows:—

1 milliemе, brown. Issued July 16.
2 milliemes, blue-grn. (shades). July 16.
3 milliemes, brown. December 17.
4 milliemes, scarlet. July 16.
5 milliemes, orange. September 25.
1 piastre, indigo. November 9.
2 piastres, sage green. July 16.
5 piastres, reddish purple. July 16.
9 piastres, ochre. December 17.
0 piastres, ultramarine. December 17.
0 piastres, grey. December 27.

A large number of minor varieties ay be found, in which dots have failed o print, or in some cases dots appear here they should not. For the most art these varieties are unimportant, as ey are more frequently due to inequalies of make-ready, and are not necesarily all flaws on the plates. The nteresting watermark error, no "crown" o the Royal Cypher, occurs on the 1 iastre indigo, and the 9 piastres ochre, nd possibly on other values yet to be iscovered.

During the present year the political tatus of Palestine has been established on a new basis. The Supreme Council of the Allied Powers at the historic meeting at San Remo on April 25, 1920, gave a Mandate for Palestine to Great Britain with the object of setting up in the land which God promised to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, a National Home for the Jewish People. This was the outcome of the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour's memorable declaration of November 2nd, 1917, and is embodied in the Treaty of Peace with the Ottoman Empire.

The purport of the Balfour declaration was that:—

"His Majesty's Government view with favour the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavours to facilitate the achievement of that object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country."

The Right Hon. Herbert L. Samuel was appointed to be High Commissioner for Palestine on July 1, 1920, and took up his duties at Jerusalem shortly afterwards. The country under the British mandate is divided into ten districts of

Beersheba	Tulkeram
Gaza	Nablus
Hebron	Jenin
Jaffa	Galilee
Jerusalem	Haifa

and had a population of 647,850 (in 1919) of whom 515,000 were Moslems, 65,300 Jews, 62,500 Christians, 150 Samaritans, and 4,900 of other creeds.

* * * * * *

There are about forty Jewish colonies in Judea, Samaria, Lower and Upper Galilee, and it is interesting to recall that at one of these Petach Tikvah—the Door of Hope—(in Judea) the Jewish Agricultural Colony was said to have had sanction granted to it a few years ago to issue its own postage stamps for local use.

The meaning of the Hebrew at the top is "Door of Hope," and the stamp is said to have had a local value of 14 paras.

* * * * * *

Palestine under the British High Commissioner is to have its own distinctive issue of postage stamps, which are at present in course of preparation. In anticipation of the regular issue, the late E. E. F. stamps have been provisionally overprinted with the name of the country, and these provisionals are the first strictly Palestinean stamps. They were issued on September 1st, at Jerusalem.

The overprint is in three lines, the first line being "Phalesteen" in Arabic, the second "Palestine" in English, and the third an abbreviation of "Erez Israel" (Land of Israel) in Hebrew.

In preparing for this provisional issue the authorities tried to arrange for the overprinting in Egypt, but there were only limited facilities for such work in Egypt or Palestine. In the end they entrusted the printing to the small printing establishment of the Greek Orthodox Convent at Jerusalem, and it is curious to reflect that the first Jewish stamps for Palestine were produced by Christians in Jerusalem. The monastic printers set up the trilingual overprint in type, and from a group of overprints so set up they made stereotypes of 240 set, to overprint an entire sheet of 240 of the London-printed E. E. F. stamps at one operation. They experienced a good deal of difficulty with the work of overprinting as the original sheets were variously trimmed and each sheet had to be adjusted separately to get the requisite register. They were also in some trouble over the ink, but were well advised to keep to black for all values (except the 1 piastre indigo), although on several of the other values, owing to the solid colour of the design the overprint does not show very clearly.

For the one piastre, which is in a deep indigo colour, the black overprint was useless, as it would not show up on the very dark colour. So for this denomination, after a good deal of experimenting, the use of a silver-dusted overprint was decided upon. To produce this silver overprint, the stereotype plate is printed in a light coloured ink, and while the overprint is still wet, the sheet is dusted over with silver powder which adheres to the wet ink of the overprint; the surplus silver powder is dusted off the sheet, leaving the overprint shewing in bright silver. Copies of such stamps will not be easy to get and keep in their pristine mint condition, for the silver will easily rub, and will have to be carefully handled. It will also be necessary to use special care in removing used copies from the envelopes.—Stamp Lover.

Dealer's Stock

Owing to pressure of other business I am forced to dispose of my stock of stamps—an accumulation of several years—and at a sacrifice for an immediate sale. The following description speaks for itself, but I wish to state that this is no "made to order" lot but my own personal stock which I am forced by unfortunate circumstances to realize on at once.

The wholesale stock covers about 1,800 varieties cataloguing from 5c to $2.00 each, in quantities of 5 to 50 of each according to rarity, with a few cheaper items (1c to 4c) suitable for the boy trade, in lots of 100 or slightly more. There are no European stamps in this lot, either old or new, and no stamps of any kind issued later than 1914. Old U. S. (prior to 1870 and cataloguing up to $1.50) are represented to the extent of several hundred dollars. Total catalogue value is between $8,000.00 and $9,000.00.

Included with the above is a general collection of 10,000 or more varieties (no duplicates), catalogue value of which is estimated at $1,750.00 additional, and several hundred made-up packets by countries to retail up to 50c each.

Above will be an excellent buy for anyone wishing to deal in stamps or will form an invaluable addition to the stock of any dealer handling medium-grade stock.

Will sacrifice at Thirteen Hundred Seventy-five Dollars ($1375.00) for immediate sale.

WHAT HAVE YOU?

trying to keep a complete stock of old U. S. postage and revenue and B. N. A. postage stamps on hand these days. If anyone thinks differently let him try it.

With a few hundred dollars to invest, the average novice thinks he can run a stamp business, maybe he can, but I find with 20 to 30 selections out at once, with an average valuation of $100, means about $2000 to $3000, not counting the reserve stock.

Now that I have given you some inside information, let me know what I can do for you along the line of rare U. S. and B. N. A. stamps, either in fine, ordinary or damaged condition.

THE JOY OF THE HUNT.

Take twenty-five years of Philately, mix with caution, add experience, and flavour with the unexpected, and the result is—a Philatelist.

In that hour of evening when the contented man pulls with lazy satisfaction at his favourite pipe, his mind casts back over the fields of Philately where he has wandered as fancy and an absorbing hobby took him. To the first days when grubby fingers joyously handled a much-desired "swop." To the joys of Labuan with exotic birds, cannibal savages and strange beasts to take one, a bold adventurer, to wonderful shores. To the unexpected gift of treasures from an unexpected donor.

Then passing on through the stages of innocent credulity, followed by the pangs of bitter experience, the illustrated album discarded for the more serious tome, and then to reach the blank-leaf adjustable stage, and talk learnedly of retouches, re-entries and all that goes to make the specialist.

Man was ever a hunter. In ages a little time since, a stone club and a quick eye; in the present enlightened days the quick eye without the lethal weapon.

I like to set out on a hunt. I pick my district and I stalk it as carefully in my philatelic hunger as my primitive ancestors did when spurred by material and painful hunger.

The antique shop in the quiet suburban road fascinates me. They're all the same—a few pieces of china of doubtful age and history, a Staffordshire group of rustic swains with damaged flutes and fiddles surrounding a lady who is smiling and composed, strange jugs and mugs bearing rude script extolling rustic toil and rustic joys, glass ornaments of weird and painful colouring, sombre pottery once strictly utilitarian but now raised to giddy heights of distinction that its aforetime humble users never dreamed of. The proprietor stares when stamps are mentioned. No, he never took no account of stamps, his son had a fine collection, offered a lot of money for it. No, his son isn't here, went to the Colonies years ago he did, don't know what he did with his stamps, except they're knockin' about somewheres. Wait a minute though, he did get some stamps in an odd auction lot, looked pretty old, they did, don't know what he did with 'em, he'll try and find 'em. Suspense, covered by an airily assumed manner of indifference—and he brings the stamps. Sometimes ten pfennig Germans and sometimes a find.

One such find I remember. He brought the stamps in a cigar box from some dark recess in the rear of the shop

SALVADOR

We have undoubtedly the largest stock of Salvador in the world. In one of the last large lots which we purchased there are a few ERRORS and oddities of various issues, which are highly interesting to the specialist. Three of these errors seem to be rather scarce, inasmuch as we received only a few copies of each in the entire, rather large lot!—of the 1915 issue, we find a number of varieties with double 1915 surcharge, some with palace omitted, some with palace double or triple, some values of 1915 imperforated, one sheet of 20 of the 12c value, with "1915" printed in blue, instead of black. The "S" issue imperforate (except the 12c value, which does not exist this way) of 1917 issue, Corriente, we have nearly all Nos. listed in Catalog, like 443a, 444a, all minor varieties of 445 to 455, double, inverted and triple surcharges, etc., etc.

If you are interested in these and wish to complete your SALVADOR Collection, write us and we will sell you some of these very reasonably. Remember, some of these errors are really rare, for instance of No. 446 we got only 5 copies in all, of No. 447a only 7 copies, of 452c there are only 12 copies, and so on.

NO OTHER DEALER HAS THESE MINOR VARIETIES

as we bought the entire lot. So, if you are interested, let us quote you a price, or we will send you a Selection on Approval marked at our Rock bottom NET PRICES. [74

AN OPEN LETTER TO RING W. LARDNER.

By BILL BLOSS.

Mr. Ring W. Lardner, N. Y. City,

Dear Ring:—I read with a great deal of interest the letter you wrote in Charley's paper to mister Harding asking would he let you be the P. M. gen. and sit in the new cabinet he is ordering for the white house.

I am glad you ast him for the job of P. M. gen. because I have felt for a long time that somebody ought to have ast for the job long ago. I thought maybe I would do it myself but wood rather see you do it, because if I had the job the stamp collectors I know would run me ragged asking me to get cancelled special covers and try to pick out for them well-centered blocks of four which is a hard thing even for a P. M. gen. to do, as you will find out.

Well, Ring, I hope that mister Harding will make you the P. M. gen. because at least you used to live in Chi. and maybe you can fix it so we get our mail sooner than two o'clock P. M. like we do now. And maybe you can tell the colored fellow who brings our mail not to leave my packets of war stamps on the floor of the wet vesterb—entry way where folks walk on them and stick them together.

But, lissen, Ring, I don't think your scheme will work out like you gave it. Suppose you can't get a picture of Charlie Chaplin to put on the funny letter, then you have to re-write it and introduce pathos so you can use a picture of Clara K. Young. Or maybe the fellow you send it to thinks it isn't funny, and then he thinks you deceived him by putting on the wrong stamp. Suppose I send you a bill and put one of those Charlie Chaplin stamps on it by mistake. Then you would think I was fooling and wouldn't pay it.

And another thing, if you had a picture of Mary Pitchfork on the stamps for love letters, and I ever got a letter from some jane asking for a approval selection and she happened to get the stamps mixed and put the wrong one on my letter and Edna saw it, I would have to pay for a divorse which costs Beaucoup's jack these days.

Now I got here an idea which I think is a good one. I agree with you that the U. S. States should issue more stamps and better looking ones, or the folks in Latvia, Esthonia, Massachusetts and the other foreign countries will think we are behind the times.

When you get the job one of the first things you will find out is that the post office hasnt no money account the high salaries paid the letter carriers and the cost of post offices built at Three Rivers, Michigan, and other places.

There is several ways you can raise money. First, you can issue a new set of stamps, or several new sets, like the other countries, and make the stamp collectors pay for running the p. o. If you select the designs carefully, you can sell lots for other things besides carrying mail.

Frinstance, make it a pictorial set of Historical, civic, and human interest. On the one cent, put instead of Franklin, a picture of a quart of Three  Hennesy. This would be a big seller, because all the prohibitioners would buy the stamps to put them out of business, and all the thirsty ones would buy them for Memorial purposes, and for the sake of old Lang's Sign.

2c—Civic Scene, emblematical of New York. Have the stamp all black, and put the words on the back. This would be to signify a view in the Tube when the lights go out.

3c—Industrial Scene. Picture a hog in the stock-yards. You can make money on this value by selling the entire printing to Armour & Co. who will buy it to keep Swift's from using it.

4c—Civic Scene, emblematical of Chicago. Show picture of crowded elevated train heads and arms protruding out of the windows.

5c—Famous Stamp Dealer. I hate to tell you whose picture to put on the 5c because some folks would say I wasn't modest but I think a stamp with the picture of this party would prove a paying investment as all stamp collectors would buy it to see what he looks like. Then they would be sore and would throw it away without using it.

7c—Industrial Scene. Being 7c, it would be appropituous to show a picture of a galloping domino match. This would sell well in the South.

8c—Famous Humorist. Choose the subject to adorn this value.

9c—Historical Scene. Landing of the Pilgrims at Ellis Island. More of 'em landed there than at Plymouth Rocks and they should have a stamp.

10c—Famous Merchant. Picture of F. W. Woolworth. He did more to make the dime notorious than anybody else.

25c—Famous Boxfighter. Picture of Jack Dempsey. Many a man will pay the p. o. 25c for a chance to lick Dempsey.

On the $ one value, I have a unicue scheme. Print a good recipe for home-made hootch, in such a way that only one word will come on each stamp. Thus, to get the recipe, a man will have to buy a hundred stamps for $100. This will also please the stamp dealers, who will like the increased volume of business, of the poor fellows who have to get 'em used, and besides they can corner certain words in the set and command fancy prices for them.

There are lots of other ways I know of to make money for the p. o. which I will tell you after you get the job if you want me to.

ATHERTON

A GOOD INVESTMENT

The 3c 1851 stamp has jumped 150% the 1920 Catalog.—4c to 10c. Is it too hig now? Here is a very fine collection of th 3c 1851-'57 stamps for sale. The actu number of specimens is comparative small, each copy being selected for son peculiarity. There is a beautiful Mi Block with the wide cracked plate, of th 1857 Type II—a great rarity; a used bloc from plate No. 3, two stamps having th three extra lines; a cover with four stam of the 1857 issue showing shifts while th rest do not; a horizontal strip of nine '51 with blue Wells-Fargo postmark; an items too numerous to mention. The co lection shows practically all the recut cracked plates, and shifts. The cancell tions are rich and varied. The covers a well worth seeing, and the collection wa years in the making. It is mounted three Oriel Albums. Can be seen at an time, price on application.

THE COMPLETE COLLECTION.

By H. L. SARGENT.

Completeness is the aim of practically all stamp collectors, even those who go in for everything, though they must realise that it is an ideal only to be attained by the wealthy and influential few. The specialist has a better chance, and frequently does obtain the complete issues of his favourite country or group. How often is seen in an auctioneer's catalogue the words "practically complete" referring to a country or issue which forms a "lot." In buying new sets, especially the recent war issues, "Is it complete?" is nearly always asked by the purchaser, and what hunts we have all had through auction catalogues, dealers' stocks and exchange sheets for one particular stamp to complete the set.

Everyone who has had a printed and spaced album has marked with regret the blanks which, alas, spoil the appearance of many a fair page and, though such albums have their advantages, I fancy a good many collectors, young and otherwise, must get very discouraged at the almost impossible task of filling these spaces and give up their hobby; this may be one of the causes of the large number of collections in albums which find their way to the auction rooms.

Frequently sets are composed of stamps of the same design the colours and values only varying. The low priced specimens are easy to obtain but, when it comes to the 5s, 10s and £1 values, either used or unused, copies become expensive, and to my mind their cost is out of all proportion to the value received. One might almost as well mount a low priced specimen in the album and add a list of the values and colours.

Most collectors have a favourite group or country; some collect Great Britain only, others add the Colonies, then there are the European specialists, now the various War, Armistice and Peace stamps are eagerly sought after, and last of all we read of philatelic menageries, aviaries, aerodromes and other arrangements, according to the individual fancies of collectors. Many groupings readily suggest themselves, and what a fine field there would be in a portrait gallery. All these methods are open to the same objection—the difficulty and cost of completing.

And now the suggestion. Why not form a collection in which every page is complete in itself? How often do we see an interesting, artistic or even atrocious variety which pleases or amuses us and pass it by because we do not collect that country? This experience has happened to me many times, but latterly I have secured such stamps and the problem what to do with them presented itself; there is a possibility that others may be in the same position, so I am passing on my solution. I mount each specimen, pair, block or set on a page of a blank album. This seems very bare, I admit, but the interest both to one's self and others, who may examine the book, comes in, in the writing up. In addition to the usual, date, paper, watermarks and perforation, particulars of interest only to philatelists, a deal of instructive and interesting information, historical, geographical and otherwise, can be obtained from the various stamp journals, such as details of the design, artist's name, and whether the design was obtained by public competition; it is surprising what can be gathered in this way. I would mention Mr. Fred. J. Melville's articles in the Daily Telegraph as a source; they usually contain information which is well worth preserving. Many stamps have a history or a story in connection with their issue, for instance the "Air," "Peace" and various commemorative issues, and as a curio the "Chamber of Horrors" of the Bela Kun regime in Hungary should have a prominent place.

Each and every arrangement has its charm to its followers, and I claim that my suggestion is at least worthy of consideration. A collection formed on these lines need not be costly, is not difficult to form, and it avoids the bogey of those heart-breaking empty spaces, inasmuch as it is always complete though never finished, and lastly it gives pleasure and interest to those of our friends who have not the gift of the philatelic mind.—The Stamp Lover.

JUST COMMON COURTESY.

Whenever we write a letter asking for information we make it a practice to enclose an addressed stamped envelope for reply. It is simply a common everyday courtesy that should not be neglected. Why should we expect anyone to trouble themselves with a request we have made upon them when we do not even pay the postage upon the reply? The ethics of correspondence require that this little detail be given proper consideration.

POST CARD NEWS.

(These items of post card news are taken from the "Post Card Bulletin", edited by S. Schachne of Chillicothe, O. The subscription price is 50c per year, but it is free to all members of the Postal Card Society of America, the yearly dues of which are 85c.—W. O. W.)

The domestic surcharged U. S. cards continue to be the center of interest in the card collecting community. New issues are found almost every week, and it is a difficult task to keep track of all the newly announced issues. I subjoin the list as I have it at the time of writing this paragraph, but I want to impress it upon our members that it is by no means complete: Atlanta, Boston, Butte, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Denver, Des Moines, Indianapolis, Jacksonville, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Milkaukee, Minneapolis, New York, Philadelphia, Portland, Me., St. Paul, St. Louis, San Antonio, San Francisco (single and double cards), Seattle, Washington (surcharges in one line and in two lines). No doubt most of our members have come across some of the errors of the surcharges. The most common one is the surcharge inverted on the lower left corner and the stamp without any surcharge. Rarer errors are double surcharges on the stamp; double surcharges, one on the stamp and one at the lower left corner, inverted; normal surcharge on stamp and another on the reverse.

In reference to the grayish green re-engraved die card mentioned in the November Bulletin, a specialist in U. S. cards informs me that said die was used for a short period by the Government about two years ago and finally discontinued, the first, original die succeeding it. Another specialist writes that these cards were Government issues without a doubt and that the strange shade of cardboard is a result of the war conditions; also that our Government never printed cards to order.

Of course, we all know that the additional stamp on Heligoland card, Scott No. 62 and Senf No. 1, is a reprint, which fact makes the card almost worthless, in the opinion of most collectors. An entirely different state of conditions prevails on the Austrian cards with the additional impressed stamp. The added impression on the latter is genuine, and from the original die. What difference does it make that it was added at the 1908 Prague Exposition? That both stamps on each card were accepted at their face value by the then Imperial and Royal Austrian Government, is proven by the fact that I have at least 25 different two-stamp used cards in my collection, mailed from Austria to foreign countries, on which no additional postage was exacted. By the way, all of these cards are rare, and doubly so in used condition. A complete set of the unused cards is positively not obtainable. For more than twelve years I have an order standing with a Vienna dealer, and I have offered him as much as $25.00 for each kind of card now lacking in my collection, but I have not received even one of the lacking numbers. These cards are in part catalogued by Bright, Nos. 922 to 925. The Senf people do not mention them, another proof that their catalog is incomplete.

To judge by the numerous communications received concerning the Netherlands article in the preceding Bulletin, the paragraph in question caused quite some comment. The situation in reference to the new issues of Holland has cleared up to some extent. All surcharged cards without the dividing line are rare, while cards bearing both surcharges, black and red, without dividing line, are positively not obtainable, and command almost any price in the little kingdom. Therefore, should you possess any of the cards just described, hold onto them, and do not part with them at any price.

Notwithstanding the assurance that Messrs. Bright & Son did not contemplate the publication of a new postal card catalog, they now announce that the book is in preparation, and they ask the assistance of all collectors to correct any errors existing in their 1914 issue. Now, whoever owns a copy of said book will easily convince himself that the volume is simply laden with misstatements, not only in reference to valuations, but also regarding the issues of the cards. You can find postal cards and letter cards listed there which have never been issued, while some really important issues are entirely ignored. As all of our members have the welfare of the card collecting world at heart, it is clearly their duty to do everything possible to assist the Messrs. Bright to publish a correct and up-to-date work. Those who have information or corrections to offer may either send them to me or communicate directly with Messrs. Bright & Son, whose address is 162 Strand, London, W. C. 2.

In addition to the supplementary Senf and the Bright 1921 catalogs, a third book of reference, dealing exclusively with the cards of Holland, will be published in the near future, in Amsterdam. That work will be a welcome addition to our at-present rather deficient library, as it will enable us to classify properly the numerous recent issues of The Netherlands. When you examine the contents of that catalog, I predict one thing: "You'll be surprised." In order to make our happiness complete in the matter of reference works, our worthy president, Mr. Mann, should publish his long-promised list of U. S. postal cards in the near future. We would then have no further reasons for complaint.

Mr. S. P. Shull, superintendent of the schools of Grover Hill, O., has made the study of U. S. postal cards a part of the High School curriculum. That is a step in the right direction, for what other method of instruction could be as fascinating and entertaining and at the same time efficient in the study of History, Geography and Biography, as is the study of postal cards?

AT MIDNIGHT.

"Clara will be surprised to have me home tonight!" mused Gabriel Squibbs as he mounted the veranda steps toward midnight. He stepped into the shadow of a pillar as a muffled footfall sounded suddenly on the gravel path.

After an instant's waiting a dark form bounded up the steps, fumbled for a pause at the door-lock, and then entered the silent, dark Squibb mansion.

Gabriel Squibbs drew a large handkerchief from his pocket and mopped his moist forehead, then an expression of anger replaced the fright in his eyes and with balled fists he quickly followed.

In the hall he stopped to take his revolver from a cabinet, then hurried on into the darkness, an unreasoning, blind rage suffocating him.

"I'll kill him," he muttered, as he stalked his prey through the darkn "He evidently didn't expect my ret tonight."

Close ahead the intruder stumb over some piece of furniture and cur as he picked himself up.

Instantly the door of his wife's b doir opened, and she stood, clad i becoming negligee, upon the threshol "Oh, is that you, darling?" swe his wife addressed the strange man. sent you word as soon as I learned t Gabriel was to be out of the city other night." She circled his neck w both of her soft arms and drew him her.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF DENMARK.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

CHAPTER I.

Introduction.

Denmark, the smallest of the three Scandinavian kingdoms, consists of the peninsula of Jutland and a group of islands in the Baltic, and is bounded by the Skager-Rak, the Cattegat, the Sound, the Baltic, the Little Belt. Schleswig, and the North Sea. The chief islands are Zealand, Fünen, Laaland, Falster, Möen and Langeland, which lie between the Baltic and the Cattegat, and Bornholm in the Baltic. The total area of the kingdom is 14,848 square miles and it has a population slightly in excess of three millions.

Since the early part of 1920 the area of the kingdom and its population have been increased by the addition of parts of Schleswig. One of the principles of the Peace Treaty was self-determination by plebiscite and a poll was held to decide whether parts of Schleswig should remain German or become Danish once more. It was provided that the vote should be taken for the northern portion as a whole, and for the central part of the province by communes. The people of North Schleswig by an overwhelming vote of more than three to one expressed their desire to join the kingdom of Denmark and a large number of communes in the second zone also expressed their preference for Danish control.

The outlying possessions of Denmark are the Faröe Islands—area, 540 square miles and population about 20,000; Iceland—area, 39,756 square miles and population about 100,000; and Greenland—area, 46,740 square miles and a population of about 15,000, mostly aborigines (Eskimos). Until 1918, when they were purchased by the United States, the three West Indian islands of St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John also belonged to Denmark.

With the exception of the capital, Copenhagen (Kjöbenhavn), which has a population of about half a million, only Odense and Aarhuus have over 30,000 residents and only twelve other towns have more than 10,000 inhabitants each.

The surface of Denmark is undulating; but a plateau extends across the centre of Jutland, although the highest point in the kingdom (Ejer Bavnhöj), which rises to a height of about 565 feet, lies more to the north near Skanderborg. The whole west coast of Jutland is dangerous on account of its lack of harbors and its numerous sandbanks, the most perilous part of it being the Hornsrev, which extends for 23 miles. Even after rounding the Skaw, mariners find the Cattegat, with its shoals and rapid currents, scarcely less dangerous than the North Sea. Both the continental portion and the islands are penetrated deeply by numerous fjords, the largest being Limfjord, which intersects Jutland, and has insulated the northern extremity of the peninsula since 1825, when it broke through the narrow isthmus which had separated it from the North Sea.

The rivers, in view of the physical conformation of the land, are necessarily insignificant, except the Gudenaa, in Jutland, which is 85 miles long. The climate of Jutland, exposed as it is in the spring to the almost constant northwest wind known as the skai, and in the summer to the dense cold sea-fog called havguse, is somewhat inclement. On the other hand the southern islands have a comparatively mild and equable temperature.

Denmark is poor in minerals, except for a little coal and potter's earth in Bornholm, and is thus primarily an agricultural country, and it is a large exporter of dairy produce.

Elementary education is compulsory for children between the ages of seven and fourteen, while the principal institute of learning, the University of Copenhagen, has about 2000 students.

The established religion is Lutheran, to which the king must belong; but complete toleration is enjoyed in every part of the kingdom. Only one per cent of the population (including about 4000 Jews) belong to other forms of faith.

Since June 5th, 1849, Denmark has been a hereditary constitutional monarchy, the king being assisted by a cabinet of seven ministers. The national assembly or Rigsgag consists of an upper chamber called the Landsthing and a lower chamber known as the Folkething. The number of members in the former is

UNSOLICITED EMCO PACKET TESTIMONIALS

Packet No. 124 entirely satisfactory. I added over 450 new varieties to a previous collection of 2000 stamps.—H. S. Lynn, Pittsburgh, Pa.

I was very much pleased with the War Stamps I received in your 3000 variety packet as I added about 100 varieties to my collection of 300 Wars. It is a splendid packet all through.—R. Speer, Long Beach, Calif.

I added 316 stamps to a collection of about 3200, not counting the envelope stamps—(given as a premium) —I also found many better specimens to substitute for not-so-good ones already in my album. Then I made up the balance of the stamps into smaller packets and sold them to collectors for $3.00. As I only paid $3.25 for packet No. 124 in the first place, my net expense was 25 cents on the deal. I got so much fun looking the pile over (worth a good deal in itself) that I am converted to packets from now on.—F. M. Gracey, Cambridge, Mass.

Received packet No. 126 (2000 varieties at $10.00) in good condition and am very much pleased with same. Another order enclosed.—C. C. Colyer, Altoona, Pa.

Don't Hesitate—Your opportunity is now. Remember the packet must satisfy or we refund your money plus your postage in returning same. Could we be more convincing of these packets sterling qualities? Try one today—acts like a good tonic.

H. F. COLMAN SECOND NATIONAL BANK BLDG., WASHINGTON, D. C.

fixed at 66, 12 of whom are nominated by the king for life, while the remainder are elected indirectly by the large tax-payers. The number of members in the Folkething varies with the population, in the proportion of one member for every 16,000 electors. These are elected every three years by practically universal suffrage.

The early history of Denmark is lost in the twilight of the saga-period, with its Vikings and valiant deeds. Coming from the islands, the Danes occupied the lands deserted by the Jutes and Angles who had in the fifth century migrated to England. History really emerges from the mythical with the establishment of the Norwegian (originally Swedish) dynasty of the Ynglinger in Jutland at the end of the 8th century. The Ynglinger was finally expelled from Jutland by Gorm the Old, who re-united the peninsula and the islands, and whose attempt to extirpate Christianity throughout his domains led to his subjugation by the German king, Henry I, in 934, and to the conversion of the Danish monarchy into a German fief for two and a half centuries. Gorm's great-grandson, Canute the Great (1014-35), the conqueror of England, gave heathendom its final death-blow; and Canute's nephew Sweyn (1047-76), after repelling the attacks of the Norwegian kings, founded in Denmark the dynasty of the Ulfinger, which lasted four hundred years. Valdemar I, called the Great, (1157-82), conquered Rügen and won the overlordship of Norway, while his successor, Canute VI (1182-1201), forced the Dukes of Pomerania and Mecklenburg to become his vassals, subdued Holstein and Hamburg, and refused to acknowledge German suzerainty.

Under Canute's successor, Valdemar II, called the Victorious, (1202-41) Denmark was for a time the dominant power in northern Europe. His conquests extended so that the Baltic became a Danish sea. By the treaty of Calmar in 1397, Norway, Sweden and Denmark, already under one monarch, were formally united into one state. In 1448 the Danes elected as king Christian of Oldenburg, a descendent of their royal family who was also Duke of Schleswig and Holstein; and his line continued on the throne until 1863.

Sweden became independent in 1523 and in 1815 Denmark was forced to cede Norway to the kingdom of Sweden, and became an unimportant power of the third rank. In 1848 the Germanic peoples of the Schleswig and Holstein duchies rebelled against Denmark, and though the Danes succeeded in retaining the duchies, the trouble was renewed in 1863 when the duchies refused to recognise Christian IX. In December the Danish army retired before the forces of the German Bund, and the subsequent refusal of Denmark to grant Schleswig-Holstein a constitution of its own led to the German Danish war of 1864, after which the Danes were compelled to cede the duchies to Austria and Prussia.

One result of the Great War was to restore a large portion of Schleswig to the Danish crown, as already mentioned.

CHAPTER II.

Early Postal History.

The history of the Danish Post Office may be traced back as far as 1555 when, in the reign of Christian II, two Royal Ordinances prescribe arrangements for diverse ferry-boat services and for the despatch of letters by postal boats into the interior of the country. Orders were given for horses to be constantly kept in readiness at certain specified points to accelerate the service as much as possible.

Until 1602, however, the Post Office provided for the conveyance of State or official correspondence only, but in that year private persons were also permitted to take advantage of the service.

Mr. L. Hanciau, to whose researches we are indebted for most of what is known regarding the early postal arrangements, writing in Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Journal in 1907 says: "In 1607 an Ordinance for Messengers appeared in print, with a tariff of charges. A service by Messengers had been organised by the merchants of Hamburg, between that city and Copenhagen and extending over the greater portion of the country. These messengers carried on the service until many years later, even after a Postal Ordinance had been promulgated by Denmark. They were suppressed by an Ordinance of September 30th, 1653."

Posts were definitely established in Denmark in 1624 when the authorities were given the rights of supervision over the Messengers, while at Copenhagen the management of the Posts was entrusted to four Directors, chosen from the mercantile community by the Burgomaster assisted by the Council. It was stipulated that all salaries for officials were to be paid out of receipts.

In 1650 postal arrangements were made with Norway under which a mail was to leave Copenhagen for Christiania every Friday and to start from Christiania for Copenhagen every Saturday.

On July 16th, 1853, Paul Klingenberg was appointed Director-General of the Posts of the State, and he farmed out the undertaking on lease for a period of thirty years at an annual rental of 6000 rigsbank-daler. He introduced many improvements in the service and reduced rates so that 4 skilling carried a single letter for a distance of four miles, 6 skilling for five to ten miles, and so on.

After the death of Klingenberg in 1690, Count Christian Gyldenlöve, a natural son of Christian V, was placed at the head of the Posts. The office was conferred upon him free of charge and as the Count was only eleven years old at the time it is evident that this was done to provide him with an income and not with the idea of providing him with any official duties. Two Directors were appointed in 1695, one of whom, M. Moth, being left in sole charge later, purchased the under lease for a certain sum of money.

After the death of Gyldenlöve, the Posts passed into the hands of the widow, Dorothea Krag, who personally superintended them. Few changes were made under her administration and in 1711 the State took the Posts under its own charge again.

About 1833 the first steam packet appeared and this carried the mails between Kallundborg and Aarhus, while in 1844 the first railway connected Kiel and Altona. Up to that time the mails had naturally been conveyed by horsemen and carriages. For the latter purpose a special vehicle was used at one time, so built that it would only hold one person, in order that the driver might not be tempted to take up passengers on the road and thus cause delay by the additional weight to be carried.

On October 18th, 1842, a Royal Decree was published, authorizing the Post Office Department to appoint a Committee, consisting of officials of the department, to make preliminary investigations, in consequence of the Postal Reform which had taken place in England in 1840. The object was to introduce a new method of collecting the postage on letters, and also to lower the postal rates.

It will be easily understood that there was a long and laborious examination of the case, and that only after almost insurmountable difficulties had been conquered was a decision arrived at. It was a question of a reform which was almost revolutionary and which it was considered would inevitably cause considerable loss of revenue. The committee, however, came to an agreement at last, and on October 18th, 1850, a Bill relating to the Despatch of Packets, etc., by Post was laid before the Chamber of Deputies, its main principles consisting in the establishment of fixed and uniform charges for the conveyance of letters within the confines of the kingdom, and the introduction of postage stamps for the prepayment of these charges.

The Bill was passed by the Chamber and became law on April 1st, 1851.

A few days after the Bill had been sanctioned by the Chamber, a Postal Notice was issued referring to the forthcoming stamps and their use, from which we make the following extracts:

"1. The stamps, which will be forwarded to the Royal Post Office by the postal treasury in sheets each containing 100 labels, will be separated and affixed to the letters by the senders, in such number as the weight of the package requires according to the law, if the sender desires to prepay the postage by means of stamps. They are coated with gum on the back, so that when slightly moistened they are rendered adhesive.

2. The stamps can only be used for the franking of single-rate and registered letters and of packets which . . are considered . . . as being postal packets of no value. Stamps which may be found affixed to other packets will not be reckoned in payment of the postage and will have no value.

4. The stamp or stamps by means of which the packet is to be franked should not be affixed below or at the left where the mark denoting that the letter is franked is usually placed, but they should be affixed at the right-hand side of the address. Packets on which the stamps are placed below the address, at left, are regarded as prepaid in cash.

8. Every stamp affixed to a packet should be obliterated, immediately after the posting of the packet, by applying to it distinctly the die which will be supplied to the office for this purpose. The post office at the place to which the packet is addressed should observe carefully whether this instruction has been carried out, and, if it has not, this omission must be made good before the delivery of the letter; and if it should happen that the obliterating die has been in any way rendered useless, the ordinary mark for letters may be applied to the stamps as a temporary measure.

9. As soon as possible after the receipt of this circular, each Royal Post Office will make requisition direct to the General Treasury of the Post Office Department, for such a number of stamps, counted by the hundred, without fractions of sheets, as will correspond approximately with the number of letters despatched from that office to the various parts of the kingdom in the course of six months, which number of stamps will then be sent to the office, as soon as possible, by the Chief Cashier of the Post Office, less the number which will be sent out provisionally, on the earliest possible date, before the first requisition can arrive.

10. The sale of the stamps may commence as soon as the Post Office has received the first supply. Every person who applies to the Post Office during the hours of sale is entitled to obtain as large or as small a number of stamps as he may desire. For the sale of any number of stamps less than 100 the office is authorised to charge 4 r. b. s. for each stamp; on the other hand every complete 100 which the purchaser asks for at one time should be sold for 4 r. b. d. The office is authorised, for example, to charge 1 r. b. d. 4sk for 25 stamps, and 5 r. b. d. for 125 stamps.

11. Separate stamps (such as have not been affixed to letters when posted) cannot be received in payment of any charges."

The difference in the prices charged for stamps in lots of 100 or more as compared with less than 100 purchased at the same time amounted to a discount of 4%. The r. b. d. (rigsbankdaler) consisted of 96 rigsbankskilling, so that in the two official illustrations cited 25 stamps would cost 100sk and 125 would cost only 480sk.

A BRAZIL COVER FIND.

During the past week Boston stamp circles have been very much interested in the find of old Brazilian covers recently made by the Frank P. Brown Co. The find was made within a half-mile of his home in Malden by a party who has known him personally, and as a stamp dealer, for more than twenty-five years. Strange as it may seem, the correspondence has been there for over fifty years, since it was brought back from Brazil. We learn that there were approximately one hundred covers, all first and second issue. As the stamps were used to seal up the letters, fully two-thirds were damaged. There were about thirty-five covers in superb condition, ten pairs of 60r, a superb strip of four 60r, three pairs of 90r, two covers with 90 and 30, several blocks of four 60r second issue, pairs 90r, and the best item of the lot a grand horizontal pair of 180r, No. 11. This latter is now owned by a well-known New York collector.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP, BALLSTON LAKE, N. Y.

HISTORY OF CHEAP POSTAGE

By JAMES. W. HALE.

In complying with your request to furnish a brief sketch of my attempt to add to the "literature of business," it will be necessary, especially for the younger portion of your readers, that a few words be written regarding the currency upon which the old postage rates were based.

For half a century after the adoption of the Federal Constitution, the chief part of the silver currency used in this country was in Spanish coins, of the denominations of a sixteenth, eighth, quarter, and half-dollar, and valued, respectively, at six and a quarter, twelve and a half, twenty-five, and fifty cents. A few other coins were also in circulation, called the pistareen and half-pistareen, worth twenty and ten cents, respectively. About the year 1850, these old coins had very generally disappeared from circulation, and were replaced by the decimal silver coins of the United States; so that when the general suspension of specie payments occurred, the old Spanish coins had become quite a rarity; and today, many of our school boys would hardly be able to identify a six-and-a-quarter or twelve-and-a-half cent piece.

The old system of postage was probably invented by the Director of Posts, about the year 1789. The first action taken by Congress on the subject appears to have been in 1795; when, among other enactments regarding postal matters, it was decreed that private individuals should thereafter be "prohibited from establishing a horse or fo t post." And, strange as it may appear, there was no amendment or alteration of this law for fifty years, and not until long after the mails were transported by steamboats and on railroads.

The following were the rates of postage on single letters, from 1789 until 1845:

30 to 80 miles	10 cents.
80 to 150 miles	12½ cents.
Over 300 miles	25 cents.

By a single rate, it was always understood to mean a single piece of paper, however small; like an ordinary sheet of letter or note paper. If a sheet of foolscap paper was employed, it was not unusual to rate it as subject to double postage. Very few envelopes were used, because they were charged as an extra rate; and if anything was enclosed in a letter, such as a banknote, or a small pattern of lace, silk, or even a few garden seeds, the postage was doubled, or tripled according to the fancy of the post office clerk.

As long as forty years ago, these rates were considered exorbitantly high, and loud and frequent were the complaints. Able writers, like Coleman of the New York Evening Post, Barnabas Bates, Tremaine, and others, wrote strong and severe articles, urging our Government to reduce these charges. Their efforts, however, did not avail; the stupid plea being always put forth by every administration that to reduce the postage would virtually destroy our whole postal system.

In 1843, the writer of this sketch, having fully satisfied himself (and very few others) that he would violate no law then existing, determined to carry his ideas of cheap postage into practical effect, by doing it, instead of scolding in the newspapers about the old rates. "Hale's Independent Mail" was thereupon started, and was duly advertised in the papers, and by floods of handbills. At first, a daily mail was established between New York and Boston; postage on single letters (including envelopes, if desired), six-and-a-quarter cents. Immediately followed a daily mail between New York and Philadelphia; and every day thereafter, new routes were added, so that in a few months there were one hundred and ten offices, giving employment to more than one thousand persons, as messengers, carriers. clerks, &c.

The cheap postage plan had been in operation but a short time when a reduction was determined upon, and an additional convenience afforded to the public. This was by the introduction of the postage stamp, the first ever used in the United States and three years before the adoption of the stamp by the government. These stamps were of an octagonal form, about the size of a silver quarter-dollar, printed with light blue ink, with the name of the cheap postage man upon it. It was a good advertisement. These stamps were sold at the rate of twenty for one dollar; thus reducing the postage on a letter to five cents, and a letter with one of these stamps would be carried from the extreme eastern part of Maine to Michigan, a distance of one thousand miles, or more. By the old line, a letter from Boston to New York was eighteen-and-three-quarter cents, and from New York to Buffalo, twenty-five cents. The consequence was that the United States mails didn't carry nearly all the letters.

It would be impossible in this brief article to give any adequate idea of the innumerable annoyances and obstacles which were constantly interposed by the government, in its anxious and persistent endeavors to deprive the people of cheap postage. By means of detectives, spies, decoy letters, and other contrivances, the Postmaster General managed to bring nearly five hundred suits against the writer, who at that time was certainly the most arrested man in the world. These vexatious suits, which caused an unnecessary outlay of nearly ten thousand dollars in counsel fees and "trimmings," were continued, doubtless, for the two-fold purpose of discouraging the patrons of cheap postage, and of finding the "bottom dollar" of the horrible wretch who thus braved the fury of the Postmaster General.

A case was brought in the United States Circuit Court, at Philadelphia, and it was thought to be so essential to the interest of the government that the cheap postage system should be crushed out, that the venerable George M. Dallas, at that time Vice President of the U. S., was employed by the government to do the crushing. His argument against the Independent Mail man occupied nearly two days and during his speech he said: "Although I appear here to denounce and protest against the unwarrantable interference of this im with the legitimate functions of the vernment I am free to say that notthstanding its illegality he has done re for the people of this country than the Postmasters General we have d since the confederation." Rather a ong compliment for an opponent, sn't it?

Another trial took place in Boston, beire the learned and venerable judge, seph Story. The defendant admitted e daily carrying of letters, for pay, er what were designated as mail utes; and before the District Attorney uld commence his speech, the eminent rist on the bench said that "he could t see that any law had been violated, d if the government wanted a monopr of the letter-carrying business, it uld be necessary for Congress to act a law empowering it do so; the l law of 1795, prohibiting persons m establishing horse or foot posts, dn't interfere with traveling on steamats or railroads." The subscriber ll knew that when he started the siness.

Finding that the decisions of the urts were adverse to the old, high-e system, the Postmaster General, at opening of the session of Congress, 14-'5, recommended "that the rates of stage should be materially reduced, as e piratical interference of private pers was a manifest injury to his dertment." (Not a word about it being public benefit!)

Congress did, therefore, pass an act, take effect on the 1st of July, 1845, reducing the postage on a letter not exceeding half an ounce to five cents for four hundred miles and under, and ten cents for any greater distance; and some three or four years afterward the postage was still further brought down to the present uniform rate of three cents. The "Independent Mail" ceased to exist on the 1st of July, 1845, the object of its establishment having been accomplished. The whole people are hourly reaping the advantage of his labors, but the originator of the cheap postage system is already forgotten.

As an evidence of the advantages accruing from cheap postage, the annexed statistics of business done at the New York post office are given: The number of letters sent during 1870 amounted to 6,164,435, as compared with 5,638,696 for 1869. The number of letters received during 1870 was 5,715,714, as compared with 5,145,527 for 1869. The amount of postage for 1870 was $11,880,149, and for 1869, $10,784,223. There has been an increase in receipts in one year of over $1,000,000, notwithstanding the decrease in French letters of 1,177,663, on account of the war. At least 100,000 newspapers are despatched weekly from New York. The mails weigh eight tons every week. To the thinking mind, the contemplation of these figures will afford much gratification, and lead to measurable appreciation of the benefits of our present admirable postal system.

The inhabitants of the city of New York, alone, are saving, by the difference between the old and the present rates, the snug sum of $6,750 each and every day; but what good has it been to NEW YORK, February, 1871.

[The foregoing article is reprinted from the American Odd Fellow of 1871 and is of interest and value as having been contributed by James W. Hale, who was the originator of one of the first "local" despatches to issue stamps, the first Hale stamps having appeared about 1843. We are under obligations to Mr. Geo. L. Baldwin of Sioux City, Iowa, for rescuing this bit of lore and sending it to us.—EDITOR.]

STAMP ECHOES FROM NASSAU STREET

By WILLIAM W. RANDALL.

The 24 cent aeroplane stamp, one of the neatest ever turned out by the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, is again in the lime-light, by the recent discovery of a few sheets of the first known variety left arrow and top, with only one TOP in left margin. This is a brother to the right arrow and one TOP that was announced last fall. I had laid away three sheets of this variety that I got at the New York P. O. for over a year, but had never said anything of it. So the credit of the announcing the "find" of the right variety must be given to Mr. Edward Stern, who told the first news to the collectors of big plate number U. S. blocks, and sheets. The right sheets were quickly absorbed, and the left ones just mentioned will be but a memory soon. Mr. John Klemann says that if no more turn up, this latest variety will mount to big figures as time passes. Speaking of the 24 cent aeros, Col. E. H. R. Green, the multi-multi-millionaire collector, who acquired the sheet of inverted, writes: "The 24 cent inverted aeroplane stamps have a bottom margin, and a left-hand margin. On top the strip of stamps are straight edged, there is only one number on the plate, and that is in blue at the bottom." This probably makes this wonderful sheet of inverts doubly famous—for outside of the fact that it is the only sheet of inverted 24 cent, that escaped captivity, it is the only one that has but one plate number. A funny story is told of the acquirement of this sheet by Col. Green. It was sold over the 'phone to him, for $20,000, but he misunderstood the party telephoning to say that it was a sheet of the 2 cent Pan-American invert. The Col. kept 60 of the sheet, and sold the other 40 stamps at $200 each. The market today for this rare stamp is, "750 bid, $800 asked."

There is no question but that the collecting of the U. S. postal cards is coming back. The U. S. Government is largely responsible for this state of affairs. Up to this date it has been estimated by careful data that upwards of 48 cities have locally surcharged the 2 cent Jefferson red cards used during the raise in postage. There are two die varieties of these, and most of the cities using the cancelling machines to "revalue," (as the P. O. Dept. terms it), used both kinds of cards. There are more than 75 varieties of the normal types, not counting the errors and freaks, the latter being very much sought after by card collectors. Unfortunately nearly all the principal cities have sold their stock of the provisional cards and are using the 1 cent greens, and collectors will be forced to buy wherever they can get them. S. Schachne, Chillicothe, Ohio, and J. M. Bartels Co., Nassau St., are about the only dealers carrying anything like a quantity. When the official list of the late provisional U. S. cards will be made known by MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS, in its issue of March 19, it is to be hoped that the publishers of the Standard Stamp Catalog will take cognizance of the "handwriting on the wall" and reinstate a page devoted to U. S. postal cards, for the benefit of hundreds of collectors who naturally want to see their branch of the hobby properly listed in the only American catalog. When we notice that five pages are devoted to Telegraphs, which were never stamps of any kind, but stickers for dead-head franks for the sending of free messages, if you happened to be a friend of the President of the Telegraph Company issuing these pasters. The same reasoning applies to the collectors of cigar wrappers, some of these being just as valuable as Telegraphs. Another branch of philately that ought to be reinstated is the privately issued local stamps used before and during the first issues of U. S. postage stamps. They were recognized then by the Government as legitimate postal needs, many of whom are now almost priceless. There is no doubt in one's mind, even if they do not think of collecting postal cards, that they ought to be accorded the same footing in the stamp catalog as envelopes.

MIXED BRITISH WEST AFRICANS

Something for dealer, collector or exchange purposes. I can furnish a few lots of West Africans on paper comprising mostly Nigeria from the 2 pence to the 2sh 6d. Also some Gold Coast and Sierre Leone as well as a few Southern Nigeria mixed. Put up in lots of 100 with a good lot of high values for $5.00 per 100. As there are many shilling and 2sh 6d values, you are sure to get your money's worth. Better try one lot.

WHAT DO YOU NEED IN ICELAND?

I have a large variety and will furnish a list on request. If you need anything in the pictorial issues, send in your want list and see if I can fill it.

I want a few collectors who are interested in used British Colonials and other good 20th Century Stamps and who are not 50% off cranks to write me. Send a couple of references and get an approval selection from me. I carry only good grade stamps of 20th Century and specialize in postally used, and am ready to do business with anyone who is really interested in this sort of stamps.

TROUBLE

is a word of many uses. The kind which I mean is the trouble I take over your orders, that is, if you are a customer of mine.

If you are not already on my mailing list, you are missing some of the good things in life.

DELIVERY OF LETTERS BY AEROPLANE TO PLACES IN GERMANY.

(The following order was issued under date of Feb. 17 from the office of the Second Assistant P. M. G. This notice is published too late to be of any value excepting insofar as it refers to the opportunities of the future. No reference is made to a distinct airmail marking, and we shall be glad to receive early information relative to this point.—W. O. W.)

The steamship Mount Clay, to sail from New York on February 19, will take letters that will be carried from Cuxhaven to Berlin and other points in the Rhine district of Germany by aeroplane after they are transferred from the steamship to the German hangar. Senders in the United States should specially mark any letters they desire sent by aeroplane "Dispatch by Aeroplane from Cuxhaven," and they will be given the benefit of this special service.

The aeroplanes are capable of carrying from 375 to 425 pounds of mail matter, and when the mails specially assigned for aeroplane service are placed in distinctive sacks before dispatch from New York the steamship officers will hand these bags to the German air mail officials as soon as the steamship arrives in Cuxhaven.

This aeroplane mail service will be continued from other vessels sailing from New York for Germany, and announcements will be made by the department from time to time to indicate what are the steamships from New York designated to carry mail for ultimate delivery by aeroplane in the Rhine district, which includes Berlin among other places in Germany.

BRIDGER & KAY'S GREAT OFFER OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

We take great pleasure in calling attention to the page advertisement of Bridger & Kay offering for sale the finest known collection of New South Wales stamps. It is very seldom that an entire page in the WEEKLY is used to exploit the rarities of a single country, and every collector of the stamps of the country in question will read this page with interest. The fact that the offerings are made in English money (enabling collectors to take advantage of the low rate of exchange) may well be noted, and this too in the face of the assurance upon the part of the firm that the condition of the stamps is unusually fine.

Over one thousand Sydney views are offered, including unused in pairs and singles and used in blocks and strips. Many of the pieces in this collection were used for purposes of illustration in the book on New South Wales published by the Royal Philatelic Society. Of course the stamps quoted form only a small part of the collection. The later issues are found in profusion in singles and blocks, mostly mint condition. There is also a magnificent collection of proofs.

We appreciate the compliment paid us in the selection of the WEEKLY as a medium through which to reach the American collectors, and in calling the attention of our readers to Bridger & Kay's advertisement we desire to state that the firm also makes an appeal to the general collector to become acquainted with their stock books of U. S. A., Colonial and foreign countries.

KLEMANN-GRINNELL CONTROVERSY.

Some of our readers have requested that we make public such information as we may have in regard to the Klemann-Grinnell controversy over certain Hawaiian stamps, the particulars of which appeared in various representatives of the metropolitan press. To all such we have written that we prefer to wait until the matter comes to court, when the evidence presented will be public property.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Herman C. Gast has changed his office to 69 Martin St., Milwaukee, Wis., and patrons are requested to note the change. Pricelist No. 4 just at hand is an interesting booklet and should be in the hands of all middle-class collectors. It is especially fitted to meet the wants of beginners, and may be had for the asking.

—Will the collector in Clinton, Iowa, who sent an order to us for books,, furnish us his name and once more mention the books. desired?

—Gibbon, Minn., is a newcomer, with the 1, 2, 5, 6 cent denomination of the regular issue and the Pilgrim set out so far. I have several copies of the 16c aeroplane precanceled Troy, N. Y., which I have never seen chronicled anywhere.—C. J. HOHENSTEIN.

—"I read with a great deal of interest your extract from Mr. Krause's letter, in the WEEKLY of Feb. 12. Altho I have not the time to go over the figures I believe that my experience would pretty nearly duplicate his. My business has practically been built up thru advertising in the WEEKLY."—A. M. MCFADDEN.

—Elsewhere in this issue will be found the advertisement of the Leader Stamp Co. of St. Louis. The moving factor in the new firm is Carl T. Wessbecher, formerly with the Fennell Stamp Co. It is probable that the new company will make use of the columns of the WEEKLY to get acquainted with our readers.

—Stamp Life, published by Frank E. Hadley, Plainfield, N. J., is taking on an air of ability and stability that suggests to us the idea that our subscribers send for sample copies. They will no doubt be furnished on request.

—We have run short of the issue of Jan. 22. Copies mailed to this office in the original folds will be very welcome. A foreign exchange will be given in return.

—"I am one of those who was bitten by C. P. Mego. On Oct. 20th, 1919, I sent Money order for $2 for 1000 mixed S. A's, in response to one of his offers. This order was cancelled and returned as "Money Order Service Discontinued," and immediately, on Nov. 6th, I sent $2 bill by Registered Mail. This is the last I ever heard of money, stamps or C. P. M—, though I wrote at least two letters of inquiry to him, which were never noticed. On Mar. 22d, 1920, I made report to P. O. Dept., but was never able to gain any further information." —CHAS. A. PEASE.

NEW SIAM SET.

We have received from Nai Teng a set of Siam commemorative stamps that will prove of interest. It consists of the 2, 3, 5, 10, 15, 25 and 50s known as the third issue of the "Wild Tiger" stamps with the overprint "Scout's Fund" across the lower portion of the stamps. Mr. Teng states that the stamps were issued in connection with a fair held in the Chitr Lada Park, Bangkok, Siam, in aid of the scout's fund. Each value was sold at an increased price as indicated in the detailed chronicle below, the profit being devoted to the fund in question. The fair was held for six days, Jan. 5 to 10. The detailed information is as follows:—

2s sold at 7s surch. in blue.
3s sold at 7s surch. in red.
5s sold at 12s surch. in blue.
10s sold at 17s surch. in red.
15s sold at 22s surch. in red.
25s sold at 52s surch. in blue.
